Reed and his son, Carl Bicknell Reed, passed away the past few days and a double funeral was held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Stanton at North Weymouth. The double affliction which comes upon the family is shared by a large number of friends.

Carl B. Reed was a native of Weymouth, a graduate of the High school and of the Worcester Institute of Technology, class of '09. He filled the position of chemist for the city of Concord, N. H., for several years and then assumed the office of assistant chemist at Cleveland, O. That city is erecting a large new laboratory and while inspecting it Friday forenoon, Mr. Reed fell and fractured his skull. An operation failed to save his life.

His father, George A. Reed, had been ill for several weeks at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Wyman Underwood at Leominster and he passed away Saturday evening. Mr. Reed was a native of Weymouth, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Augustus N. Reed.

After leaving school he engaged with his father, who was superintendent of the finishing room at the Commonwealth factory and later succeeded to the position. He fired the engine, called the Kingston, that drew the first freight train on the single track between Boston and Plymouth. In 1873 he became an engineer on the Mexican Central and ran the first through train from El Paso, Tex., to Mexico

City, a distance of 1200 miles. President Diaz of Mexico was one of the passengers. Later he worked at the Boston Locomotive Works in Taunton and the South Boston shops of the Old Colony. He was last employed at the Fore River shipyard, retiring twelve years ago.

Besides the son with whom he made his home, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Robert Steele of Boston and five grandchildren. He was a member of Fellowship lodge of Masons, Bridgewater.

COATS FOR PRESENT WEAR PRESAGE STYLES FOR SPRING

FOR the younger girls, the last coats for winter are very simple in line and becoming to their slim, youthful figures, and those for spring show no radical departure in styles. In colors, beige, sand, pheasant, castor and golden brown shades are favored, and these soft tones make a lovely background for embroideries in colored wool on coats for little girls. Also certain green shades are shown.

It is good business to buy coats for the younger girls at the after Christmas sales, providing conservative colors and designs are chosen. A coat like that pictured, in dark gray velours, with collar of squirrel fur, will be good style for several seasons, at least until it is outgrown. It has deep armholes and wide sleeves, smartly trimmed with rows of flat silk braid and finished with turn-back cuffs. It is bloused over a plain belt at a low waistline and fastens with large buttons in groups of two at the neck and belt line.

Judging from recent French importations, Paris is inclined to feature the sleeves in coats for the younger girls. One model has a wing sleeve—a cape-like portion cut in one with the coat sleeve. Another, of light beige velours has deep armholes and sleeves split along the top, where plaited crepe is set in. One side of the split is decorated with a row of round buttons and the other with simulated buttonholes. A model for a little girl—from Lanvin—is covered with latticework embroidery and Patou sponsors a short jacket, open down the front and bloused over a hip band.

SPRING'S CURTAIN RISES ON STYLES FOR CHILDREN

THE curtain has been rung on styles for spring in children's clothes, and many enterprising mothers will be glad to know something of the first appearance of new models for little tots and younger girls. As the former wear cotton frocks all the year round and will wear printed silks for dress-up times, in the spring and summer, their outfits may be made ready long before they are needed. In January and February much of the children's sewing is done.

The bloomer-dress combination appears among the new arrivals for little girls from two to six, and there seems nothing else so practical for everyday wear. It is shown in printed sateen, cotton crepe, plain and other ginghams, and white poplin often does its attractive bit in round collars and cuffs. In lines the new dresses differ very little from those of last year; sleeves are usually a little shorter than elbow length, and sometimes very short, amounting to a puff or cap at the top of the arm. The majority of the dresses are straight-line models like the two pictured, but there are some quaint affairs with "baby" waists and puffed sleeves.

Plain voile, batiste, or other fine, sturdy cottons make the dressier frocks of the littler girls, like those shown in the picture, with embroidery of colored cotton floss. For similar wear there are especially printed silks with amusing figures in set patterns, scattered over the white or light colored background. For instance, a crepey silk, in oyster white, has jungle figures, palms, birds and a border of elephants outlined about the bottom. Plain bloomers of crepe de chine are to be worn with this frock. Applique of solid color fabric on bright printed sateen, in triangles and other figures is new and odd.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BILLIE BROWNIE'S TRIP

"Well," said Billie Brownie, as he came back to Brownland, "I certainly had an interesting trip, and saw so many wonderful sights."

"He Was Very Proud."

had used his picture or the picture of a rooster in announcing and telling about the show.

"Yes," he said, "there were ducks, and geese, and pigeons, and hens, and guinea pigs at the show, but the rooster's picture was the one they had on the tickets and outside the door and in the papers."

"He was very proud of that."

"Of course," he added, as he crowed some more, "that is just as it should be."

"Then I stopped in at a circus for a few moments, and there I saw an act where many of the performers were dressed to look like butterflies, and had wings of some sort which kept them up."

"I thought it would be nice if sometime we gave a surprise fancy dress party, and went to visit the fairies dressed up as butterflies of all kinds."

"It would be a fine idea," said all the other Brownies.

So they decided they would go in a very short time—just as soon as they could get their costumes ready.

"It was a very pretty act," said Billie Brownie, "with the lovely wings of different colors."

"And I saw a lot of children having a party on the back porch of a house. They had dressed up peanuts to look like bugs, and they had a peanut hunt for these things."

"Instead of having regular peanuts to hunt for, they hunted for these dressed-up peanuts. It was more fun when one of these were found than when an ordinary peanut would be found, for there were not so many of these, and they had been hidden in very difficult places."

"I must tell you how they were made, for I thought we could have a peanut hunt with some of these fixed-up peanuts to hunt for as well as the other kind."

"The peanuts were painted. Then legs were attached, and the legs were made of pipe cleaners. There were little bits of old feathers for the tail, and the pipe cleaners were painted where they were turned up to look like feet—and the toes were marked in paint."

"They had painted eyes, of course. They were very funny in appearance, and I think we could fix up some of these creatures for our next party. The more ideas we get the better it is."

"The better it is," agreed the other Brownies.

"I saw a red-headed woodpecker eating suet on a lilac tree, and there were a few little signs of buds on the lilac tree which made me know that Mistress Springtime had sent word that she'd be visiting us before long."

"And I visited some bees in a cellar. They were eating their honey and having a fine time."

"Some one was going to make a business of bees and was starting in with these bees in the cellar during the winter time, and as soon as there were enough boxes the work would begin."

"The bees said their honey was quite delicious!"

"And then I saw some figs in a fruit store."

"They were very angry, for it seems that some one had been in the store, and when this person was talking she had said: 'I don't care a fig for walking,' and her lip had curled as she said it."

"The figs said they didn't like their name to be used like that—especially the way people had of saying they wouldn't give a fig for this, or they didn't care a fig for that."

"The figs said the people sounded as though they thought the fig was about as unimportant as could be, and the figs thought it was very rude of them."

"So, you see, I saw lots of things and had a most interesting trip. Yes, when all is quiet and no one is noticing Billie Brownie he likes to take a trip and see the sights!"

Predicts Earth's Cold Future.

Professors and weather prophets are fond of predicting great future changes in climatic conditions on our earth. As a rule they wisely refrain from precise particulars as to when these changes will take place. Maj. R. A. Marriott has been more definite. Working on the late General Drayson's theory of a big change in the inclination of the earth's axis, Major Marriott tells us that for the next four centuries the winters will grow progressively warmer, until about A. D. 2295 the difference between summer and winter will be least. Subsequently, however, the earth will get colder and colder every year, and instead of the tropical temperatures which some predict, another glacial epoch is promised by Major Marriott, the maximum severity of which will be felt by the human race—if any are left on the earth—in A. D. 15839.

A Narrow Escape.

An overhead tramway wire charged with electricity at a high voltage was responsible for an unusual accident to a motoring party on a busy street. A motor cyclist was driving his wife and child in a side-car through a large city when the wire broke and became entangled with the side-car, showering sparks on all sides as it struck the metal of the machine. A terrible death awaited the motorist if he had got off to attempt to remove the live wire, but he sat still, while people called out: "Sit still! Live wire!" and the rubber tires of the machine acting as insulators, prevented the current from passing through the steel work of the cycle. The dangerous wire was removed by engineers with rubber gloves, and the party proceeded unharm.

Peat-Cutting in Ireland.

The peat-cutting industry is carried on very profitably in Ireland. Work usually begins at the bogs at the end of April. The skilled cutter, who has two men with low sideless wheelbarrows in attendance, uses a kind of spade, called a slane, the sods being cut up and removed to dry land. A few days later, when the sods have become a little less soggy, they are spread carefully all over the ground and left to dry. The next step is to pile the turf into a skillfully-made heap, which allows the wind to pass between the different pieces. Usually it is two or three months before the peats are ready for use as fuel. Peat is used in Ireland to such an extent that few people in the country districts ever burn coal.

Merely a Rattlesnake.

Down along the Miami river in Florida the natives are not usually easily scared, but one night the conversation turned to spirit manifestations and one man spoke up: "Don't believe in them," he stated, "but I did once. One night I wakes up in my cabin and hears somethin' slooshin' across the floor. Spooks, I thinks. It was so creepylake. Scared? Well, I reckon. But I gets the nerve to crawl out of bed an' to light a match and then I'm cert'ly plumb ashamed of myself an' I ain't never believed in spirits since. Why, it weren't nothin' in the world except jest a big, common, mean, sneaky rattlesnake."

Night of Queer Happenings.

There is perhaps no night in the year which the popular imagination has stamped with a more peculiar character than that of the evening of October 31, known as All-Hallow's evening, or Halloween. The idea with reference to Halloween is that it is the time when supernatural influences prevail. Spirits come from their hiding places and walk about. There is a remarkable uniformity in the fireside customs connected with this night all over England and America. Nuts and apples are everywhere in requisition. In north England the celebration at the time is called "Nut-Crack night."

Orchestra Conductors.

Although it is known that Lully died from accidentally hitting his foot with his baton, the first modern use of it in orchestral conducting was attributed to Spohr in 1820. Hitherto there had been a dual control of the orchestra. An eminent musician was at the piano-forte to "play with the orchestra at pleasure, which when it was heard," says Spohr, "had a very bad effect. The real conductor was the first violin, who gave the tempo, and now and then when the orchestra began to falter, gave the beat with the bow of his violin."

The Home of Patience.

The East is the home of patience. You see it expressed in the exquisite carvings of Persia and in the rugs of Asia Minor, whose myriad knots, deftly placed in marvellous precision, amaze you with their infinite number. With endless perseverance, year after year, often through a lifetime, the artisan of the East will labor patiently at his task that it may be perfect. Inspiration will not alone produce such artistic creations; only boundless patience, steadily applied, will accomplish them.

What Is Good Lens?

A "good" lens, in the photographic sense, is one which will give a perfectly clear distinct image, without distortion, and without "false images," when it is used with a large stop, and over a wide angle. Before, therefore, we are in a position to say whether a lens is "good" or not, we must know at what aperture it will work, and what angle it includes. It is evident, therefore, that something more than a mere capacity to give sharp pictures is necessary.

ABSORBER FOR AUTO MADE FROM OLD TUBE

Will Improve Riding Qualities of a Light Car.

Rubber Is Cut Into Two Long Ribbons and Wound Around Each End of Rear Axle—Mount While Machine Is Loaded.

An effective shock absorber for a light automobile was made from an old inner tube. The tube was first straightened out, cut through, and split twice lengthwise, thus forming it into two long ribbons of rubber, one for each end of the rear axle. These were wound around the axle, and around a hanger, which was made from some scraps of metal and bolts, as illustrated. The two ends of each ribbon were clamped by the use of simple metal clips, to keep them from slipping around. For the best effect, such a shock absorber should be mounted while the car is loaded with a normal weight of passengers, or an equivalent weight. This is in order that in operation the rubber will begin to stretch, just as soon as the frame begins its travel above its normal position. That is, the rubber should exert no force while the springs are being depressed, or while they are returning to normal, but the action should begin immediately when the car begins to be thrown upward by the rebound of the spring.—Charles Walte, Louisville, Ky., in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

A mixture of shellac and graphite is suggested as a medium for preventing rusting of the rims and the wheels.

A tire that "bellies out" just above the point where it touched the ground should be inflated immediately until it is well rounded.

JACK IS USEFUL IN LIFTING CAR

Device Illustrated Can Be Constructed to Elevate Auto
Three Feet or Higher.

QUITE EASILY CONSTRUCTED

Is Comparatively Light and Makes Serviceable Addition to Shop or Service Car—No Special Machine Work Needed.

The usual car-jack lifts only to a height of about ten inches, making it necessary to use an overhead hoist for lifting in excess of this.

The jack shown in the attached sketch can be constructed to lift three feet or even more.

For road-repair work or in the shop-yard this jack is especially useful and by means of it the front or rear end of a car can be elevated three feet or more and the wheels set on trestles or high supports while repairs are made underneath.

An Easily Constructed Jack That Will Be of Great Service to the Automobileist.

The construction of this special jack does not require any special machine work, and steel plate is used for the two main parts.

The base is made broad, 2 feet by 2 feet, of plate 1/2 inch thick, which permits its use on soft earth without tipping over.

The side members are of 1/2-inch plate, 8 inches wide, 7 feet long, or more if required, doubled over at the top and riveted to the base at the bottom. Two rows of drilled holes are made through these side plates about 4 inches apart, with the positions of the holes in the opposite rows staggered.

A lifting-bar 3 feet long of 3/4-inch plate, tapered to a handle at one end, 3 inches wide at the opposite end, which is turned up and cut on the lower edge to engage the pins as shown, is used similarly to a jack handle. In operation, two 1/2-inch diameter pins, of the same size as the drilled holes through the uprights, are alternately placed under the bar.

The pin in the rear hole is placed first, the bar pried down until the forward pin can be inserted. The bar is tilted back and the pin inserted in the next hole above in the uprights.

This is continued until the car is elevated as far as required and the bar is locked by placing the pin in a rear hole above the bar.

This jack is comparatively light and makes a serviceable addition to the shop or service-car.—G. A. Luers in Popular Science Monthly.

ALIGNMENT OF WHEELS

The average motorist and garage man knows that the front wheels of a car have a certain necessary alignment. They must be drawn in below to provide ease in steering and must toe in in front to allow for spreading under traction.

Front wheels on new cars are toed in the full amount, but, being stiff, they do not easily spread. Consequently, the tires temporarily run out of alignment. Under such conditions, say tire experts, the treads of the front tires scuff off rapidly.

TRAFFIC BEACON LIKE LIGHTHOUSE

The above traffic beacon, which is operated on the same principle as a marine lighthouse, acts as a silent traffic policeman at Dayton, O. Traffic beacons, similar to the above, were presented to the city by the Dayton Automobile club, whose insignia is placed on the beacon.

You Auto Know

That the "smoke" which issues from the exhaust pipe when the engine is started during cold weather is not really smoke at all, but steam—analagous to that which comes from one's mouth when the air is chilly or laden with moisture. Incidentally, the reason for this is precisely the same as in the case of the human body.

The combustion which takes place in the engine gives rise to a certain amount of water vapor which, at ordinary temperatures, passes off without condensing. In cold weather, however, this water-vapor condenses into steam the moment it strikes the air, and the car will therefore give the impression of "smoking" badly for a minute or two or at least until it gets under way and the movement of the wind has an opportunity to disperse the cloud. The color of the exhaust will, however, definitely show to what cause the smoke is due. If it is white, it is nothing more than steam; if it is light blue, it is because too much oil is being used, and if it is black it is gasoline smoke. ### PLAN TO RAISE AUTOMOBILE

Two by Fours and Inch Boards Put Together as Illustrated Will Relieve Tires.

When the automobile is placed in the garage in the winter it is always advisable to raise the car from the floor to take the weight off the tires. A simple and easy way is to make four supports out of two-by-fours and inch boards, as shown in the illustration, and set them under the axles as close to the wheels as possible. The old-fashioned, home-made wagon jack is handier to use in raising the auto to slip the supports under than the regular auto jack. When the auto is wanted all that has to be done is to push it off the supports, and no jack is necessary. The supports should be high enough to raise the tires about an inch off the floor.

WHY MOTORS WILL NOT STOP

Cause of Engine Continuing to Run After Ignition Is Shut Off Is Due to Several Faults.

The usual cause of an engine continuing to run after the ignition is switched off is overheating, due to faulty cooling system, lack of water, oil, poorly circulating oil or oil that is congealed, tight bearings or fan not in operation. Overheating may be carried on to a point where the engine will cease to operate, its bearings and pistons seizing tightly so the engine cannot revolve.

COOL ENGINE IS IMPORTANT

In Hot Weather Flush Out Water System at Frequent Intervals—Fill With Clean Water.

To keep the engine properly cooled during the warm summer months, flush out the water system at frequent intervals and fill with clean water. In connection with efficient operation, adjustment should be made to the fan belt. The position of the spark lever should be watched to see that it is kept in an advanced position, thus assuring better cooling of the motor.

Keep the radiator clean. Flush the water circulating system to remove any rust or sediment deposits, as these tend to heat the motor.

Proper inflation is as important as proper loads. Underinflation results in flexing of the layers of fabric, which cause early deterioration of the tire.

If your car is not equipped with an extension trouble lamp it is well to provide a pocket flash lamp. For making repairs at night such an accessory is almost indispensable.

The operator of a motor vehicle or motorcycle should not drive within ten feet of the running board of a street car which has been stopped to load or unload passengers except by signal from an officer.

Sediment in time will collect in the bowl of the carburetor and from time to time the drain cock in the bottom should be opened to rid the instrument of any foreign particles which may have accumulated.

SMALL HOME HAS LASTING BEAUTY

Use of Permanent Material Assures Its Durability.

CAN BE BUILT ECONOMICALLY

This Little Bungalow Has Distinctiveness That Will Make It Stand Out in Any City—Convenient Arrangement.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

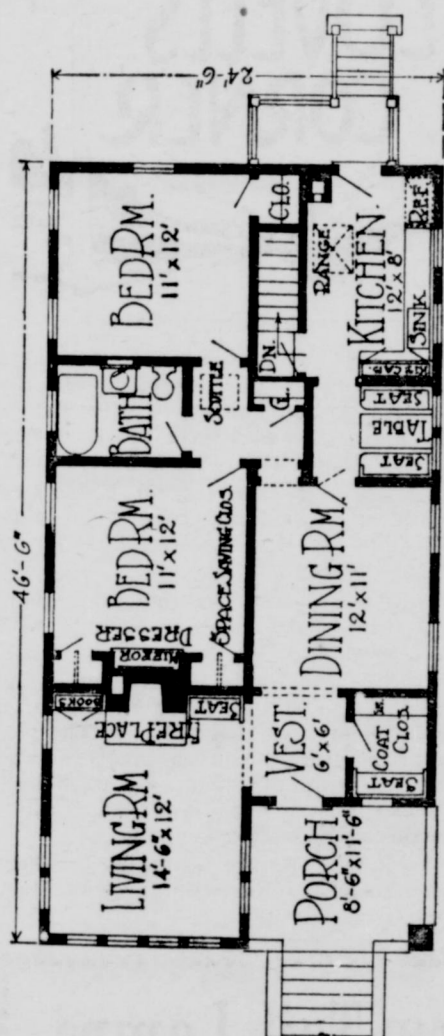

There is a decided tendency in America today to build smaller homes. Many home-seekers no longer seem to care for a large house, but are preferring small, compact and cozy bungalows. They realize it doesn't take such a great deal of space to live happily and comfortably. A bungalow is much easier to take care of and may be furnished so much more economically and still attractively.

The modern apartment buildings introduced and are responsible for the popularity of the small living quarters. After enjoying the advantages, conveniences and labor-saving efficiency of apartments many people were no longer satisfied with a large house after they had moved into a private home. Then they found that the small little homes like the one shown in the accompanying photograph offered all the advantages of an apartment house without any of the disadvantages they frequently have.

This little bungalow is especially designed for those home-seekers who prefer a stucco home, yet one that is small and comfortable. It has a distinctiveness that will make it stand out in any city. It will attract the attention of every passer-by for its beauty and aristocratic appearance. It is a place that you will look forward to go to, a place you will be proud to point out as your home.

One of the most desirable features—also a most important one—is the economical cost at which this residence could be built. Your local dealer and builder will be able to quote you reasonable figures, for it is constructed of regular, substantial and permanent materials. It is well put together, will last a long time and give excellent service.

The interior arrangement is very pleasing and convenient. The living room, two bedrooms and bath are located on one side of the house, while the vestibule, dining room, breakfast room and kitchen occupy the other half. The rooms are all large and comfortable and are well lighted and ventilated.

They have remembered in designing this bungalow that first of all a home should have a comfortable atmosphere. They have made provision for all the features that make your home what it should be—the place you enjoy going to most.

From the front porch you enter the vestibule, which is 6 by 6 feet. Directly to the right is a coat closet and built-in seat, providing a very handy place. The living room, directly to the left of the vestibule, can be furnished very attractively and comfortably as it is an excellent size, 14 feet 6 inches by 12 feet. It has four windows facing the street and three on the side. On one side of the room is a genuine fireplace, a built-in seat and built-in bookcases.

Directly ahead of the vestibule is the dining room, a particularly convenient size, being 11 by 12 feet. One of the most attractive features in this charming bungalow is the neat little breakfast room just between the dining room and kitchen with table and seats to accommodate four.

The kitchen, not too large or too small, is a practical size that every housewife will appreciate. It is small enough to save steps, yet there is plenty of space for all the equipment she needs. It opens onto the back platform.

The two bedrooms and bath open onto a short hall that is entered from the dining room. The bathroom is located just between the two bedrooms. The bedrooms are very comfortable, both being 11 by 12 feet. There are two windows in one room and three in the other arranged so there always will be plenty of fresh air. One room is equipped with a space-saving closet similar to those installed in most high-class apartment hotels.

An attractive small home such as this can be built of cement stucco on concrete blocks or tie, or on metal lath placed on wood studs without the inclusion of sheathing, and then plastered both outside and in. The metal lath makes a rigid reinforced concrete exterior which fully protects the wood frame, and is of itself practically indestructible.

The house is 24 feet 6 inches by 45 feet 6 inches and sits well on a good-sized lot, leaving plenty of space for a beautiful lawn.

Fig Juice Used to Dye Cloth.

As far back as history goes the fig tree has been a house-yard tree. "Beneath the vine and fig tree" is used more than once in the Old Testament to designate "home." For centuries the fruit, fresh or dried, has made up a large part of the food of the natives of western Asia and southern Europe. Its juice is used to make a drink, and also to dye cloth. Its leaves polish ivory, and the bark makes cord. The sap of one species is poisonous.

The fig tree, in climates congenial to its growth, produces two and sometimes three crops of fruit the same year, on distinct shoots. The trees grow readily from cuttings, and are propagated by budding, grafting, and seeds. The large, beautiful leaves are deciduous, palmately veined, three-to-five lobed, wavy-margined, and somewhat rough and leathery.

Washington's First Inauguration.

March 4 marks the beginning and end of congresses of the United States. March 4, though not the anniversary of the first inauguration of George Washington as President, is the anniversary of the day when the new-born United States began proceedings under the Constitution.

The first Wednesday in March of 1789 fell on March 4, which, therefore, became the inaugural day of the government of the United States of America.

It was April 30, 1789, before George Washington was inaugurated first President of the United States. Since then, however, Presidents have been inaugurated on March 4, with a few variations, due to caution when that date happened to fall on Sunday.

Colorful Tiled Floors.

Tiled floors are being used more than ever. They are sanitary, easily kept clean and very attractive. They are used in many rooms, though predominating in bathroom, sun parlor and kitchen. Some of the colors obtained are various shades of green and dull blue, rich dark reds and lovely creams and yellows.

Expressive Criticism.

In Chicago the other day a monument was unveiled in honor of Eugene Field. Most of us remember Field mainly for his verses; the only prose remark of his that we personally can recall offhand is one about an actor who in "Lear" "played the King as though he was afraid some one would play the Ace."—Boston Transcript.

CHURCH CALENDAR PAGE

The new "Church Calendar Page" which will be printed monthly in the first issue of the month, makes an auspicious start this week. All the churches of Weymouth were invited to forward their calendars for the month and were not limited on space. Neither was there any expense to the churches. They responded almost unanimously and it will be seen that there are great possibilities and opportunities for this new feature, printed on Page 13. Some other features will be added if space will permit, but next month there will probably be more church advertising. This page will also be printed on cards for posting about town.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH

Oscar Gaillardet, 43, single, living at 11 Center street, was killed in a peculiar accident at the plant of the East Weymouth Wool Scouring Co. on Wharf street, where he was a member of the night gang. While he was working there in the early hours of Saturday one of the chambers on a carding machine burst while the machine was operating at a speed of 700 revolutions a minute. One of the flying pieces of steel from the machine struck Gaillardet in the back of the head as he was walking by it, with such force that it hurled him 15 feet across the floor to a so-called "hopper hole", where he dropped 10 feet to the floor below, landing on another machine which was operating at a slower speed. This machine was going so slowly that it did not mangle the unconscious body, but the man was dead when the doctor arrived.
The body, however, was not immediately discovered. George N. Corville, a fellow workman, when he heard the noise of the explosion, went to investigate and could not locate Gaillardet. It was some time before the workers, hunting for him, found his unconscious body on the floor below, revolving with the other machine. Dr. J. H. Libby was immediately called and found the man dead when he arrived. Medical Examiner John C. Fraser, also summoned, ordered the body turned over to a local undertaker. He declared the death to be purely accidental.

KNOCKS AND BOOSTS

By Nick Quad
George Edgar Oliver, musical critic highly praises P. Colby Shaw in a recent issue of the Albany Evening Journal. Mr. Shaw was born in the vicinity of Central Square, and is descended from one of Weymouth's early settlers. Central Square was once called "Shaw's Corner", the musician's ancestors having owned considerable property in that section. He has a brother, Sumner F. Shaw, living in East Weymouth. Extracts from Mr. Oliver's article follow: "It is my firm conviction that the Strand orchestra, under the very able and experienced conductorship of Colby Shaw, is one of the best orchestras in the United States. . . . It is no easy matter to assemble and train a body of instrumentalists, for the conductor must know each instrument, be perfectly familiar with the various scores and have such tact and firmness to secure the results desired. By the remarkably fine playing of the Strand orchestra it conclusively shows that Mr. Shaw is an accomplished musician and a leader who knows what he wants and how to get it. . . . This splendid body of men is most thoroughly trained in high class music by Mr. Shaw, and their interpretation and rendition of the various selections will compare favorably with any orchestra of its size (fifteen) in the country."

Michael Burns of Hull was a visitor at the East Weymouth "Forum" last Sunday. "Mike" Burns is known to all the sporting men of the country, and anybody who is (or was) prominent in sporting circles can be seen swapping yarns at "Mike's" place at Nantasket during the summer.

GOVERNOR COX' MESSAGE

Confidence has been restored. Employment is normal. The people have increased their purchasing power. Their needs of manufactured products are many. The tremendous volume of Christmas trade as reported by the retail stores reflects the vast improvement in conditions. There is an unusual amount of present and proposed building construction. Plans long held in abeyance are now being put into operation. The year 1923 promises healthy and sound business. It is my earnest hope that that promise may be fulfilled and that widespread happiness and prosperity may be the portion of the good people of Massachusetts.

THE CARDINAL'S NEW YEAR'S MESSAGE

"Last night the old year died. We sat in the lengthening shadow and before us passed, perhaps, the face of a dead friend, the loss of a great hope, the scars of a deep grief; and we bowed our heads in silence as the waning hours closed about the vanishing year.

"We intoned our solemn De Teum for all the gifts that God had sent us; yes, even for the wounds which had left their indelible mark, for many a scar is but a badge of honor.

"And today we face the future with head erect and heart aglow; with an undimmed faith and a hope that is new and high and radiant. The world is struggling still towards order and peace. By our own faith we can help to light the way; by our new courage we can help to lead the way. The past is dead. The future is what we choose to make it.

"Let us face the rising sun and march on with fullest faith in God; and 1923 may be the richest, the best, the happiest year of all our lives. God grant it so to all.

"WILLIAM CARD. O'CONNELL."

LIEUT. GOVERNOR OPTIMISTIC

"I believe we are all set for the greatest business year in the history of the United States. Always heretofore as far as I have been able to observe, there has been a disposition on the part of the buyers to wait until after the New Year before placing orders, but the business community today and during the past month has been placing orders to an extent that has made December the greatest in history.

HOW

RECENT INVENTION WILL REDUCE PRICE OF SILK.
 —Silk has always been considered an article of luxury on account of its high cost in comparison with other textile materials, writes United States Commercial Attache H. C. MacLean from Rome. This has been due in large degree to the labor necessary in handling the cocoons and preparing the thread for spinning. Consequently the silk industry has flourished only in countries where cheap labor is available.

After soaking the cocoons in water the thread has always been unreeling by hand, which is a work of great delicacy, but one for which it has not been possible to pay high wages. Thus, while silk weaving in Italy has been making progress the preparation of the raw silk has shown a decline. It is now reported that an Italian silk expert has succeeded in perfecting a machine which will perform the operation of unreeling the thread mechanically. A new company has recently been formed, which has taken over the patents covering the invention and will manufacture the machines.

If the invention succeeds commercially as well as it has in the experiments that have been made it bids fair to revolutionize the silk industry, and, according to the inventor, the cost of silk may be reduced to such an extent that it will be able to compete with cotton and linen.

MAN'S NOSE SENSITIVE ORGAN

How Extraordinarily Minute Particles in Air at Once Affect the Olfactory Nerve.

Do you know why you have to "sniff the air" when trying to detect a faint odor? It is because the nerves governing the sense of smell are not located, as is generally supposed, in the nasal passages, but in an area of sensitive membrane about the size of a dime and located high above each nostril. A portion of the hairlike tips of the olfactory nerves terminating in this membrane receives the sense impression and conducts it to the brain. Because of the position of this membrane outside the natural path of the breath, it is necessary to draw aside a current of air by sniffing before the exact shade of odor can be determined.

The effects of snuff and smelling salts have nothing to do with the sense of smell. They react only on the lining of the nasal passages.

So far as physiologists have been able to learn, smells are pigeonholed in the brain as visual impressions. Each smell carries associations good or bad and these associated images are brought forth by the brain when particular nerves are excited.

The reaction of the brain to an odor depends also to a large extent on the sense of taste. Only by combining the brain reports of these two senses can odors be accurately catalogued.

Degenerate as the olfactory nerve sense of man has become through evolution, it still retains the marvelous ability to detect one part of camphor in four hundred thousand parts of air, and one part of vanillin in ten million parts of air. As for the obnoxious smell mercaptan, the human nose can detect the presence of one part in twenty-five million parts of air.—Popular Science Monthly.

How Icebergs Are Detected.

Icebergs are usually the greatest menace to transatlantic shipping: it was an iceberg which sent the great Titanic to the bottom with such fearful loss of life.

A new device has been brought out by a French inventor which detects icebergs when they are six miles away. Melting ice sends out rays which are invisible to the eye, but which will affect a delicate instrument called the thermo-couple. This apparatus can be made so finely that it will register the presence of a lighted candle at a distance of half a mile.

The thermo-couple is connected to a telephone receiver on the bridge of the ship. When conditions are normal it emits a continuous note of unchanging pitch. As soon as an iceberg is approached, however, the note changes, and the look-out man knows at once that there is danger.

His Deduction.

"Land o' the livin'!" ejaculated Mrs. Johnson in the midst of her reading. "It says here in the paper that a bunch of scientific professors are going to Africa to hunt for humans with tails!" "Uh-huh!" nonchalantly replied Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "What do they aim to do when they find 'em? tie 'em in cans to 'em?"—Kansas City Star.

Why He Had to Steal.

Judge—How could you be so conscienceless as to steal the watch of the doctor who had just prescribed for you?

Prisoner—Well, yer honor, I was in a bloomin' fix. Yer see, his prescription read "a spoonful every hour," an' I had no timepiece.—Boston Transcript.

How Algebra Got Name.

Algebra is an Italian word derived from the Arabic al-jabr, meaning the reunion of broken parts. It was in early use in the sense of bone setting.

Introducing Mr. Grandage

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright, 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"We might as well ask Miss Wynn," commented the elder of the Emmett sisters. "It isn't as if it was a regular party, and she'll understand, of course, that our asking her to an affair of this sort doesn't put her or us under any sort of future social obligation."

"Well, all right," quoth the other Emmett. "And she'll probably be so flattered to be asked that she'll buy a lot of the pans and kettles. I imagine she has quite a little money."

So that is why Miss Emmett No. 1 telephoned to Mary Wynn that night, something unprecedented in the six months that Mary Wynn had come to live in Farnham.

"I thought perhaps you'd be interested in coming around to our house Wednesday," said she, taking pains not to let her voice carry too much cordiality. "There is a young man who is agent for the Gold Star Kitchen Wear who is coming for a demonstration. He asked me to get together some of the ladies in the neighborhood. And he says," emphasized Miss Emmett, "that if it will be any inducement there will be refreshments and that you're not to bring your purse. He doesn't want to sell anything now. He came to me naturally as president of the Farnham Woman's club and, wishing to help any young man working his way through college, I told him he could have his demonstration at our house."

Miss Emmett did not add that she had consented most willingly as the young man in question had agreed to give Miss Emmett 5 per cent of any sales that resulted from her demonstration party, and that he was, moreover, going to prepare and provide materials for the refreshments served.

Miss Wynn tried to hide her excitement and happiness from Miss Emmett on the telephone. She had come to Farnham six months ago to live in a house that had been willed to her by an uncle who had lately died. But so far Farnham had not received her very warmly. They eyed her with suspicion. Old Mr. Wynn was something of an eccentric. There were tales of Mary Wynn's high-down notions. She had lived abroad, she could talk French as well as she could English and she came to Farnham with rather shabby clothes. Therefore Farnham eyed her with suspicion.

Now it seemed to Mary Wynn as if the ice was broken, as if at last Farnham were opening its arms.

It was an odd enough party at the Emmetts' that Wednesday afternoon. Twenty chairs or more had been carried into the kitchen to accommodate the guests and late comers sat in open doorways to the dining room or perched upon the drain board of the kitchen sink. Mary Wynn, who had arrived early in a deep summer frock, sat close to the stove, where nothing that the young man from Hilton college said or did could escape her. To the others sent "back" back he may have seemed self-assured and perfectly at ease, but to Mary Wynn it was obvious that at times he felt the awkwardness of his position—he a novice in the art of cooking, a greenhorn in the kitchen. Telling these seasoned housewives how to make better omelets than they had ever made before, assuring them that coffee as they had made it before could never equal coffee as he was making it in one of the new Gold Star coffee pots, and Mary Wynn thought once or twice as he stirred the eggs for the omelet or measured the coffee to put in the coffee pot that the boyish hands trembled with confusion.

Apparently he was not entirely familiar with his sales talk for he consulted from time to time the notes that he had before him neatly written on pages from a university notebook. Once or twice when there was an awkward pause in his sales talk his eyes inadvertently met those of Mary Wynn and then a boyish smile came into his eyes and Mary Wynn flashed back a look of encouragement that cleared the air.

Mary was thinking that it would be a very great thing for any woman to have a son so bent on getting his education that he was willing to spend his summers as an agent demonstrating in women's kitchens. For Mary Wynn, though not more than twenty-five, usually thought of herself as very much older. Her own youth seemed very far away.

Then an end came to the demonstration and the amber-clear coffee was poured in Miss Emmett's second best tea cups and the feather-light omelet was cut in sample pieces and passed around. Assurance came into the face of the demonstrator when he saw and heard the praise of the women. "Now," he said, "I'll pass these blank cards and a pencil. Will you each one write your name and address on a card?"

Having collected the cards and having looked them over with some interest, he went on, "Now, I want to call on each one of you personally—" this was all, of course, only part of the selling plan laid out at the headquarters of the Gold Star office. "Mrs. Brown, when may I call on you? I want to answer all your questions; I want you to tell me your problems in cooking—equipment and then I want to help you solve them." There was a sort of personal appeal in the words that made Mrs. Brown giggle and say "Any time."

And so on. Robert Grandage went the rounds, making definite appointments to call on each of the guests present, with the object, of course, of making sales of the kitchenware for which he was agent.

"Have I arranged with everyone?" he asked.

There was a pause and then Mary Wynn looked up. "You haven't arranged with me," she said, then blushed unaccountably. Robert Grandage showed confusion too. "You are Miss Wynn—I didn't really forget," he said. "I didn't have the card with the rest." He apparently put her card away from the others for safe keeping in his waistcoat pocket and that was why he had not called her name.

"When do you want me to come? I'm not going to let you out of it, you see. Shall I come in the morning, afternoon or would you like an evening appointment?"

"Why, if you could come in the evening," suggested Mary Wynn. "You could come any evening. I'm always home."

"How about this evening?" he suggested and he laughed with boyish amusement at something in Mary Wynn's face when she told him that that time would do.

Then the ladies withdrew to Miss Emmett's spacious porch while Robert Grandage was left to clean up in the kitchen. "I could have had one of the maids do it," suggested Miss Emmett, "but I just told them they could both go out for the afternoon. No more than right that he should clean up his own mess."

"Really, he's a dear boy," said one of the women.

"Isn't he cute?" sighed another. "Really, I was quite fussed when he asked to call. Wouldn't be put off, either."

"And he came near forgetting poor little Mary Wynn—"

But that night when Robert Grandage called at Mary Wynn's house he made it clear that this was exactly what he hadn't done.

"I didn't call your name this afternoon," he said, "because I had put the card you gave me in my pocket, where I'd know which one it was. I wanted to come to see you before I left town, but I didn't want to come to talk about selling pans and kettles."

"Why did you want to come to see me?" asked Mary Wynn with wide eyes and shy smile.

"Because I thought I'd like to know you. It seems, somehow, as if you and I would have a lot of interests and sympathies in common."

"I suppose we might," agreed Mary Wynn. "I always admired young men who worked their way through college immensely. I was thinking this afternoon that if I ever had a son and he should want an education enough to work for it, I'd be the proudest mother living."

Robert Grandage laughed. "I'm not a poor student working his way—I'm a poor instructor. I intended to get a job in an office this summer, but it fell through; meantime one of the students who arranged to work as an agent for the Gold Star company defaulted and I had a chance to take the work. It is fairly well paying, for these days, and I am anxious to earn what I can, because next summer I am going to go abroad. I want to travel a little and then I want to spend a few months studying before I come back to take my doctor of philosophy examinations."

He talked of many things that evening, but never once of Gold Star Kitchen Utensils. As he arose to depart Mary Wynn reminded him of it. "I forgot all about it," he said. "I must come again tomorrow night. I shall be here only two days more."

So the next evening Robert Grandage again called at the Wynn cottage. "Miss Wynn," he said, "I am leaving tomorrow. I have done very well here and I want to do the whole country in three weeks. But before I go I want to get you to promise something. Will you answer my letters? And when the time comes for me to take that trip to Europe will you go with me as my wife?"

And Mary must have said yes, for when Robert Grandage went back to college that autumn he took with him a wife. The old Wynn house was sold and when the next summer vacation came plans were all made for an entire year to be spent in European travel and study.

ALL MADE EQUAL AT DEATH

Ruler of Egypt and the Humblest of His Subjects Had to Submit to Custom.

The Egyptians, as is well known, did not, like most other nations, consign the bodies of their dead to destruction; they preserved them by embalming, and celebrated their obsequies with extraordinary solemnity. But these funeral honors were never bestowed unless by virtue of solemn and judicial decree. A court granted the warrant for every funeral. The character of the deceased was rigorously investigated, and if any criminal or improper conduct was proved, the customary honors were refused him. If his life had been virtuous and exempt from all blame, a public panegyric was pronounced, and permission was granted for the usual embalming and obsequies.

She—Indeed! Perhaps I had better give you one of my brother's cards.

He—Why, what do you mean?

She—He's an oculist, you know.

The Ambition of Letitia

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

At twenty Letitia was a veteran houseworker, for she had begun working for the Dawsons when she was twelve, and had served a right apprenticeship under Mrs. Dawson for six years. Mrs. Dawson had died and, as Grandmother Dawson was by this time disposed to remain in her easy chair, the entire tasks of housekeeping had then fallen to Letitia. This meant doing the cooking, cleaning, washing and mending for the indolent Grandmother Dawson, Mr. Dawson the widower, and Tom Dawson.

Mrs. Dawson had called Letitia her "hired girl." She had rescued the little girl from the county poor house after the death of her widowed mother, though it may have been a rescue more in name than in fact. Since Mrs. Dawson's death Mr. Dawson paid Letitia a meager wage, but one considerably greater than the pin money allowed by Mrs. Dawson.

It was as "Dawson's hired girl" that Letitia was generally known in the community. However, there was no special social line drawn between her and her employers. She sat beside the same lamp with them, reading or mending on winter evenings. She ate at the table with them, jumping up, of course, every few minutes to get fresh supplies from the kitchen.

It was one chilly evening in October. Grandma Dawson had retired and Letitia sat with her mending in her lap, while Father Dawson read the paper and Tom leaned abstractedly over the table where he was working out problems in his correspondence course in scientific farming. Several times Letitia had looked up, opened her mouth to speak and had then remained silent.

After three or four false starts she managed to say: "There is something I was wondering. I thought perhaps, if it was just the same to you, maybe now, since I'm getting to be older and all—that maybe you'd just as soon call me a housekeeper instead of hired girl. If you'd just drop it that I was the housekeeper then other folks would get the habit."

Letitia looked up and for a painful moment her eyes met those of Tom Dawson, eyes that were flashing with indignation. Apparently embarrassed at meeting Letitia's glance, his eyes dropped and his tanned face reddened.

"I don't see why you should be so vexed with me, Tom, for asking," Letitia said, resuming her darning furiously.

"I wasn't vexed with you, Letty. I— but it doesn't make any difference, I suppose."

Mr. Dawson had been cogitating the situation. He ended by laughing and looking amused over his reading glasses at Letitia.

"So you want to be called a housekeeper, do you? Well for myself I don't see any difference between a hired girl and a housekeeper. No disgrace in either. What you been reading, Letty, to put such notions into your head?"

"Nothing," snapped Letitia. "And you don't have to do it if you don't want to. Only I want you to know that my folks were as good as any in the county. My father was a parson and my grandfather had as big a farm as this—and it would have been nine, too, if he hadn't sold it to buy him oil stock, or something."

Letitia said she had not been reading anything to put new ideas into her head, but this was not quite true. Letitia had invested in a book on etiquette—an elaborate volume that opened up unreclaimed worlds of luxury and ceremonious living to her. She read it eagerly, and now she knew by rote the duties of butler, footman, lady's maid, first gardener, second gardener and the rest. She dwelt with especial interest on the paragraphs dealing with housekeepers.

They wore no aprons, were permitted to wear a silk dress in the afternoon, provided it was high-necked. They were addressed as Mrs. or Miss to distinguish them from regular servants, and they ate their meals in their sitting room—brought up on a tray by one of the maids. They carried the keys to the supply closets, had the hiring of less important servants, paid off household bills, kept guests and, where that work was not done by the butler, took instructions for meals from their employers.

Letitia's ambition was to be a housekeeper. She thought with satisfaction of herself as a middle-aged person in a stiff black silk frock, eating in solitary grandeur in her private sitting room. But she could not become so important a personage all in one day. She must work up to such heights. The rudiments of housekeeping she had learned from her service with the Dawsons. The flourishes she must learn by experience in more pretentious households.

She had definitely decided to go to the city and apply at an employment agency for a position as a housekeeper, in a less pretentious establishment than that described in the book to begin with. But she must be able honestly to say that she had been a housekeeper—not a hired girl.

Apparently she gained nothing by her petition to the Dawson men, difficult as it was to deliver. Mr. Dawson, Sr., simply hadn't taken her seriously, and Tom as usual answered in an indefinite sort of scared manner. Ever since he had been working on that correspondence course he had seemed preoccupied. Once several years ago he had taken her for occasional walks and had driven her to town, but apparently his ambition to become a scientific farmer left no thoughts for Letty, "the hired girl."

Letitia's darning needle flew back and forth as she sat by the reading lamp, and once a large tear splashed on one of Tom Dawson's heavy woolen socks that she was darning. She rose to retire when the clock struck half-past eight, and on some pretext or other Tom followed her to the kitchen, where she went to get her little lamp to light her to bed.

"I want to talk to you, Letty," Tom said, barely looking at her. "Stay in your room until father has gone to bed, then come down quietly."

Letty went about lighting her lamp and said only after a long pause. "All right, Tom, I'll come back."

A half hour later Tom and Letty met in the living room and Tom led the way to the little side porch where, though the air was chilly, they could talk with no fear of being heard.

"It's about your wanting to be called a housekeeper," Tom began. "I don't blame you not wanting to be called 'hired girl,' but father doesn't really mean to hurt your feelings. I'd have made matters different from what they are long ago if it had been any use trying. . . . Instead I made plans, and part of the plan was to take this course in agriculture. I came into that money from mother last spring when I was twenty-one. I'm going to finish my correspondence course and next winter take time to take the shorter course in agriculture at the State college. Father has agreed. Then I'll come back and buy a farm of my own; and when I do that—Letty, if you were Mrs. Tom Dawson it wouldn't be so bad as being Dawson's hired girl, would it?"

There was a trying pause and Letty kept her head turned from Tom's.

"Letty, I love you," Tom said with more bravery than he knew he possessed. "I know you have ambition and didn't want to be called a hired girl, but I've had ambitions too. I don't want to be an old-fashioned, blundering farmer. That's why I've worked so hard on that correspondence course. I want to marry you."

"But I'd have to love you—" Letty began.

"Don't you—a little?"

"I don't know. I'll have to think," said Letitia under her breath. "When I have had time to think things over I'll tell you. Good night, Tom, and thank you for—for understanding."

With that Letitia went back into the house and upstairs to her little room. For an hour she sat in her single upright chair thinking. Then she took up a pencil and wrote on a piece of writing paper.

"Dear Tom,

"I love you."

"LETITIA."

Then Letty unlocked a drawer of her bureau, took from it a book and started out of her room. She slipped the note under Tom's door and went down stairs. There she opened the stove that was closed for the night. She dropped the book on the coals and left it to smolder there through the dark hours.

HAVE EYES ALL OVER BODY

Nature Particularly Liberal to Some of Her Creatures, the Dragon Fly Noticeably.

There is a most astonishing diversity among animals in respect to the number and location of their eyes. In mammals, birds, reptiles and fishes they are limited to two and are invariably placed in the head, but others of the animal kingdom may have anywhere up to 50,000, and they seem to have been placed anywhere they might be handy.

The dragon fly possesses eyes composed of an aggregation of about 10,000. In spiders and scorpions there are usually eight or ten eyes in one or more clusters on the dorsal aspect of that part of the body which is formed by the union of the head and thorax. The starfish has an eye on the tip of each of his five rays, or arms, as has the sea urchin, which is homologically nothing but a starfish with the ends of its rays drawn close together in a circle around which is considered the hinder part of his body. The scallop has numerous eyes on the edge of its mantle, extending from one end of the animal to the other, and forming a semi-circle. Some marine worms have eyes in clusters not only on the head but also along each side of the body, even in the tip of the tail, and they are connected individually with the median nerve cord.

In the lowest forms are found many infusoria which have neither eyes nor nerves, but are nevertheless sensitive to light, either seeking or avoiding it.

Largest Power Dam.

The Keokuk dam, which extends across the Mississippi river from Keokuk, Ia., to Hamilton, Ill., is the largest power dam in the world. From the 15 turbine generators propelled by the water which passes over it, electric power is transmitted to St. Louis, 145 miles away, and to smaller cities in Illinois, Iowa, and Missouri. The turbine wheels, one of which weighs 65 tons, or four times as much as any ever before made, will eventually be 30 in number, and together will produce 200,000 horse power.

Portable Oil Refinery.

A Texas man is the inventor of a portable oil refinery mounted on railroad cars that can be readily moved from one oil field to another.

LAW OF COMPENSATION

"I had no mother's voice to tell me to sleep when I was a boy," sobbed the first man.

"And I had no father's voice to call me in the morning," chuckled the second.

Thus we see nature's wonderful law of compensation applied to the human equation.

The Verdict.

"We find the prisoner not guilty by reason of insanity."

"But the plea was not that of insanity," remarked the court.

"That's just the point we make," rejoined the foreman. "We decided that any man who didn't have sense enough to see that an insanity plea was the proper thing must be crazy."

A New Law Enforced.

"I'll just fine ye $25 for speedin'."

"All right, squire. I'll pay it, but I wouldn't have been in such a hurry to get through your burg if I hadn't thought it was the sorriest looking town I ever laid my eyes on."

"And $10 for contempt."

"Contempt of what?"

"Our town."

There Might Be.

"There are specialists who will design you a coat of arms."

"So I've heard."

"And there are other specialists who will provide you with a family tree you can flaunt in anybody's face."

"Well! Well! Do you suppose there are filling stations where blue blood is pumped into plebeian veins?"

Logical.

"Can I interest you in automobile insurance?"

"I haven't an automobile on my place."

"Well—er—what of that? You have burglar insurance, I presume, and yet you have no burglar on your premises."

THE ANSWER

"Strange, Edith should invite that horrid grass widow to her wedding; she has such a disagreeable past."

"Yes, my dear, but she's rich enough to furnish a very agreeable present."

Our Prescription List.

No friend of mine
Is Horace Hoel.
He always wants
To borrow dough.

Exhausted Her Interest.

Her Husband—But why should we move? We were perfectly delighted with this neighborhood when we came here a year ago.

Mrs. Chatterton—I know I was, but I'm tired of talking about the same old neighbors for a whole year.

Trained.

"Jones, I don't understand that man Spiffums. He used to be absolutely dependable, and now you can't believe a word he says."

"Yes, poor boob; he married a woman who requires detailed explanation of trivial events."

That's Different.

"What's all the row?"

"It's a two-family house."

"That need not cause a continuous disturbance."

"Ah, but it is occupied by a young married couple and their parents, her family and his."

On a Party Wire.

"A good many women call our neighbor."

"It is quite all right."

"Huh?"

"They are teachers with excuses. He's principal of a large public school."

Righto.

"Say nothing but good of the dead," said the philosopher.

"Yep," agreed the practical person.

"No use slandering a man who can't entertain you with an argument."

Question.

"What are these dehydrated fruits?"

"They have all the water taken out."

"Will the process work with stocks?"

His Treat.

Father (visiting college)—Son, those are better cigars than I can afford.

Son—That's all right, dad, take all you want; this is on me.—Virginia Reel.

To Reach the Homes In the Country

The City Merchant should use the country weekly.

First—Because it devotes itself to the good of the community; and in thus becoming a part of the family life, it is necessary to make it purely and simply a family paper—minus the trash and the tragedy of the outside world.

Secondly—Because it is a welcome visitor in the household, and when the daily papers are picked up and placed in the discard, the country weekly retains the place of honor on the family table until the next issue comes out.

That's the Reason it Pays

Because it is thoroughly read by the people in its district—and if they are not interested in your goods today, they will be tomorrow.

If you desire to reach the people within a given radius of the city of Massachusetts we suggest the following list of weeklies:

WATCH NIGHT SERVICE

A "Watch Night" service was held in the Methodist Episcopal church on New Year's Eve under the auspices of the Epworth League in conjunction with the regular evening church service. At 9 o'clock a regular preaching service was held in the auditorium with Rev. R. E. Davis of the Newton Centre M. E. church as the speaker. Mr. Davis is a man of strong personality and he certainly brought a wonderful message for the closing of the old year. Solos were rendered by Mrs. W. A. Hodges and a duet by Mrs. Hodges and Mrs. H. A. Mattson.

At 10 o'clock the meeting adjourned to the vestry where light refreshments were served and readings by Miss Hazel Hollis were enjoyed. At this time Mrs. Hodges and Mrs. Mattson again rendered solos. At 11 o'clock Rev. Earl E. Story, pastor of the church, took charge of a song and consecration service, bringing the end of the old year to a close in prayer.

A large circle was formed around the vestry and while the bell rang out the midnight hour all bowed in silent prayer.

The service was a union service in that the members of the Congregational church were invited to attend and were cordially welcomed, their pastor having a part in the first period of the service.

EPWORTH LEAGUE INSTITUTE

The first night of the Winter Institute of the Old Colony Epworth League was held in the vestry of the M. E. church on Monday evening. A good attendance was on hand considering the bad weather. Supper was served at 6.30 o'clock by a committee consisting of Pauline Blackwell, Eleanor Chandler, Olive D. Sylvester, Arlene Hannaford, G. B. Lincoln, Summer Chandler, and Raymond Blackwell.

The dean of the Institute, Harold Kidder, took charge of the program. Rev. Miron Morrill of Hanover had charge of evening watch and a very inspirational talk was given by him with many helpful suggestions for the coming year. Classes were conducted by pastors and laity in all departments of League work.

The registrar, Roland Smith, was right on hand to receive any enrollments and to get as many new members as possible for this year. The evening closed with a social hour under the direction of the fourth department. This opening meeting of the Institute forecasted a very successful year and we invite all who have not attended, to come next week and enjoy the fellowship.

APPLE ORCHARDING

No where in the wide world are better apples grown than those produced in the hill towns of Massachusetts. Hood river apples can compete in color and in size, but beneath the skin they are not in the same class as Massachusetts grown apples. The interest in apple orcharding is steadily increasing in the state for it is one of the half dozen special lines of farming that are profitable and capable of extension.

Because of this interest a few years ago the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture engaged a corps of experts to prepare a book on orcharding in general. With the edition exhausted there came up the question of a revise. It was found that if in the new edition information about trees other than the apple was included the book would be far too large and the former plan is abandoned and the book is now restricted to information about the production of apples.

The eleven chapters of the 200 page book are each written by an expert in that phase of orchard management. They cover in an exhaustive way the problems which confront the grower from the establishment of a new orchard to the correct packing of the fruit for market.

The chapter on renovating an old orchard with its clearly written text and the instructive illustrations will be found very helpful by owners of old and more or less neglected apple trees. The questions of pruning, of grafting and budding, of fertilizing and handling the soil in orchards are among the topics of orchard management that are fully discussed.

The insect enemies and diseases of the apple are told in text and picture and the way to successfully control these pests are given in detail. The farm storage of apples, the proper way of packing apples for market, and the apple grading law designed alike for protection of grower and consumer are discussed in detail by experts in each of the topics.

Any Massachusetts man or woman interested in growing apples, whether it be to make the most of the trees they now have or how to select it to be to make the most of the trees they now have or how to select the site, prepare the soil, set out the trees and care for a new orchard will find this book instructive, suggestive, and helpful. Any citizen of the State can obtain a free copy by writing the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture, 136 State House, Boston 9, and asking for "Apple Orchardling".

REAL ESTATE SALES

The following Weymouth transfers of real estate were recorded in the Norfolk registry last week:
Elroy C. Baldwin to Fred W. Baldwin, Main and Front streets.
Ephraim Cohen to Mary E. MacDonald, Washington street, Baker avenue.
Margaret A. C. Eagan to Elizabeth Eagan et al.
Styles A. Fish to Lilian G. Davis, Fish avenue.
Florence A. Hartung to David R. Nordwell et ux, way on Pond street.
Ruth A. Lunt by mortgagee to Arthur W. Phillips, Bicknell road.
Otto D. Sweet to D. Arthur Brown, Lakewood avenue.
Union Congregational Society, Weymouth to Clare B. Church.
Marguerite L. Whitelaw to Laura M. B. Brigham, Broad street.

NOT INTERESTED

The profiteer was buying books.
"Here's one you should have, sir," said the assistant. "Boswell's 'Life of Johnson'."

The profiteer drew himself up.
"I am not interested in the careers of colored pugilists," he said, and continued to turn the pages and look at the illustrations of the various books on the shelves.

Inefficient Office Boys.

"Where's your office boy, Dave?"
"Fired him Saturday—never did anything but stand around, looking wise."

"Well, he won't be in your way any more, I reckon, now you're rid of him."

"Don't be so sure about that. He may turn up here some day as an efficiency expert."—Everybody's Magazine.

Explained.

"What is your regular business?" asked the judge of the man who had just been convicted of selling a gold brick to an unsuspecting citizen of New York city, which is the only place they can be sold nowadays.

"Your honor," answered the man, "being honest is my regular trade and I was on my vacation."—Farm Life.

BANNED

"When I was engaged to her I used to call her 'Cutie'."

"When I was engaged to her I called her 'Hon,' now no girl'll let you call her either 'Cootie' or 'Kun.'"

How About It?

When knighthood was in flower
Each damsel got a seat.
She didn't have to glow
Or tire her dainty feet.

Strategy.

"You always take your husband along when you go to buy a new gown?"

"Certainly. In the presence of half a dozen beautiful models and a modiste who speaks perfect French he hasn't the nerve to talk about economy."

Free Rides.

Blackstone—Jenks and his wife enjoy a motor trip every Sunday morning.

Webster—Why, I never knew they owned a car.
Blackstone—They don't. But Jenks has been corresponding with real estate agents lately.

Might as Well.

Spoter—Yes, I'm very fond of hunting.
Speer—It's a pleasure to meet a great sportsman.

Spoter—But, you see, I'm a member of the society for the protection of animals. So to satisfy that sporting spirit I use blank cartridges.

Hubby's Idea.

Hub—How about your new dress? I thought you meant to wear it tonight.
Wife—Yes, but it wasn't ready. The dressmaker is putting the finishing touch to it.
Hub—Oh, I thought I was the one to get the finishing touch.

TO BEGIN ON

"So your husband refused to buy you an automobile?"

"Not exactly refused; he said I ought first to become familiar with machinery in general, so he bought me a sewing machine."

Girl to a Tightwad Sweetie.

"They say that time is money, but now listen, bo," said Mary Blue. "To spend your time with me's alright, but spend a little money, too."

Different.

"There," said Jones, "there is a woman in a million."

"So?" queried Smith. "Feminist? Politics?"

"Nothing like it, but she will tell you or anyone that she has more clothes than she needs and that she is satisfied with her husband."

Tremendous Force of Habit.

Restaurant—Want a new counter-man? Where's the fellow I hired yesterday?

Manager—Too absent-minded, sir. He's an ex-barber and he would scrape the whipped cream off the pies.

Banting and Banter.

"Since her marriage Carrie is losing pounds and pounds. Is she dieting?"
"No, she explains that her husband belittles her."—Life.

Confirmed.

"What? You! The woman hater married! How you have changed!"
"On the contrary, I am now a great woman hater than ever before!"

Church Union Says Advertising Pays

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Newspaper publicity, through new stories and paid advertising, was endorsed in a public statement today by a committee representing the Chicago Church Federation.

"The most effective way to reach the crowd and interest them in the church is through the newspapers".

"It pays in dollars to advertise. One metropolitan church increased its loose collections to $22,000 in two years, certain other smaller churches showing a proportionate increase.

"Advertising lifts the standard of preaching and service in order to make good and come up to the advertising.

"Magazines spend large sums in taking page advertisements in the newspapers. It pays, or they would not do it.

Get on good terms with the newspapers by occasionally furnishing news which does not especially concern you or your particular church.

"In church announcements put the attractive feature first".

The committee's report was its finding on the National Publicity conference held here Oct. 31, attended by more than 400 ministers from eleven states.

The Gazette-Transcript expects that this "Church Calendar Page" will be crowded with church advertising Feb. 2, the first issue in February.

Give it a TRIAL.

COTTAGE CHEESE CLUB SANDWICHES

Tasty Dish for Lunch or Supper or Unexpected Guests.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

For a tasty dish for lunch or supper or unexpected guests, the United States Department of Agriculture recommends cottage cheese club sandwiches.

This sandwich is made of three good-sized slices of toasted bread, one or more being spread thickly with cottage cheese. The rest of the filling may be varied to suit the taste or the larder. Such sandwiches are often cut diagonally and served on individual plates with the halves arranged in diamond shape. It is desirable to toast the bread on one side only and to cut it immediately after toasting, otherwise the pressure of cutting crushes out the cheese and spoils the appearance of the sandwich. The cut slices may be placed together again while the sandwich is being filled, and the filling may be sliced through with a sharp knife.

In addition to the cottage cheese these club sandwiches may contain mayonnaise dressing, lettuce, and tomato; or thin-sliced cold ham spread with mustard; or sliced tart apple, nuts; or sliced orange, watercress; or sliced Spanish onion, pimento; or two tiny strips of bacon; or cucumber and green pepper, pimento. Lettuce and salad dressing are usually used in all these combinations.

Sweet sandwiches may be made with layers of cottage cheese and marmalade, or a paste made of dried fruits. For these the bread need not be toasted and the lettuce and mayonnaise should not be used.

GOOD PORK SAUSAGE RECIPE

Homemade Product Favored More by Many People Than Any That Is on the Market.

Many people like homemade sausage cakes better than any other on the market. An excellent pork sausage may be made by using three parts of fresh lean pork to one of fat pork, the United States Department of Agriculture says. Cut into small pieces and pass through meat grinder, using a rather coarse plate. Weigh the meat, and for each pound add two teaspoonfuls salt, a pinch of sage, a few grains of ground nutmeg, and a saltspoonful of black pepper. Mix thoroughly and pass again through meat grinder, using small plate. Form into little round or flattened cakes and fry in deep fat until nicely browned.

MILLIONS OF SHOES WASTED

Annual Loss to Country Placed at $250,000,000 by Bureau of Chemistry—Poorly Shaped.

The 105,000,000 people of the United States buy about 300,000,000 pairs of shoes a year. Their needs could be supplied by 250,000,000 pairs, if the shoes were well cared for and kept in repair. The wasting of a single shoe a year by each person costs the country at least $250,000,000 at present prices, says the bureau of chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture.

Shoes of poor shape are one cause of waste. Attractive shoes of good shape combine comparatively straight inner lines, rounded toes, heels of medium height, and moderately thick soles, all of which make for greater serviceability, comfort and safety.

SIMMERING BURNER IS BEST

Helps Greatly to Cut Down Amount of Gas Necessary in Boiling and Stewing Meats.

The use of a simmering burner helps to cut down the amount of gas consumed in the processes of boiling and stewing, suggests the United States Department of Agriculture. Most gas stoves are provided with but one "simmerer," but a second one could easily be substituted for one of the larger burners.

New linoleum will last longer and clean more easily if given a light coat of varnish.

Add a tablespoonful of vinegar to the last rinsing water, to bring up the color—do not use blue.

When washing colored clothes add a handful of ordinary salt—it prevents the color from running.

Brooms may be made quite new and clean if dipped into a pail of boiling soda water, then dried in the sun.

Apple sauce that has its sugar added after it is removed from the fire will not turn an unappetizing brown color.

To stew steak allow about one and three-quarter hours to two and three-quarter hours, according to amount and thickness.

Juice may be extracted from an onion by cutting a slice from the root end, drawing back the skin and grating on a coarse grater.

Old furniture can be stained mission color with a package of green dye. Simply add one quart of water to the dye and boil it and then put it on with any common paint brush. The result will be a rich mission color.

RECIPE FOR MAKING A GOOD PLAIN CAKE

Suitable for Icing in Layers or in Tiny Squares.

One Has Been Tested by Department of Agriculture and Found Suitable for Purposes Named—Use Good, Clean Fat.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There are many uses for a quickly made, economical, plain cake recipe of the "cottage pudding" type, suitable for icing in layers or in tiny squares, diamond shapes or triangles which are to be iced "all over." The following one has been tested by the United States Department of Agriculture and found excellent for the above purpose. Almond or other flavor may be substituted for the lemon. Clean, good fat of agreeable flavor, or without pronounced taste or odor may be used, such as lard, oil, compound, or vegetable fat. If butter is used, the fat should be increased to four tablespoonfuls. The frosting will be found very reliable if made as directed in the double boiler.

Plain Cake Recipe.

2 tablespoonfuls fat 1 teaspoonful vanilla
2½ cupful milk
2½ teaspoonfuls ½ cupful granulated sugar
½ teaspoonful baking powder 1½ cupfuls flour
1 teaspoonful lemon extract 1 egg
1 teaspoonful lemon juice ¼ teaspoonful salt

Cream fat and sugar together, add egg well beaten and milk and flour alternately, reserving about quarter-cupful of the flour. Sift baking powder with this reserved quarter-cupful of flour and fold in last. Bake in 9-inch square pan at moderately low heat for twenty to thirty minutes, increasing the heat until the cake is brown, after ten or fifteen minutes. This cake will not be a success unless baked very slowly at the beginning.

Frosting.

White of 1 egg 4 tablespoonfuls cold water
1 cupful sugar 1 teaspoonful vanilla

Place the first three ingredients in a double boiler over a low fire, and beat until it stiffens enough to hold shape. Then add a pinch of salt and beat until thick enough to spread. Add vanilla or other flavoring. Chocolate flavoring may be made by melting two and a half squares of unsweetened chocolate and pouring into the mixture when it has stiffened enough to hold shape. Then cook until thick, and spread. For caramel icing caramelize two or three tablespoonfuls of sugar until dark in color, and add an equal amount of boiling water. Substitute two teaspoonfuls of this syrup for two teaspoonfuls of the water in the frosting recipe, and continue according to the above directions.

POTATO STUFFED WITH PORK

Holes Made With Apple Corer and Filled With Cooked Sausage Is Most Excellent.

Pare large potatoes, suggests the United States Department of Agriculture, and then make several holes through each one with an apple corer. Fill the holes with previously cooked sausage meat and bake. Potatoes that have been peeled take longer to bake than those in their skins.

When Sink Stops Up.

When you find that the sink is stopped up, turn on the tap until the sink is three-quarters full, then turn it off. Put the palm of your hand flat over the hole and lift your hand up and down very quickly. This will soon make the water run away.

Use for Old Stockings.

When packing furniture for moving, old stockings will be found invaluable for wrapping legs of chairs and tables. They will not tear or leave exposed places for scratching as paper does.

The Author of "Ulysses."

It has been maintained by a recent critic of Swift that the caricature of humanity in Gulliver was suggested by Swift's observation of the "Wild Irish." Swift, however, bore the Teagues of his time no ill will; but Mr. Joyce is so minutely personal in his mockery that the doubt arises whether his original intention—to catch in a word of art the whole phantasmagoria of a day of life in Dublin—has not been prejudiced by something short of good humor. Thus A. E. passes by, and Mr. Joyce sets us all cackling. It is extremely well done, and we cannot help joining in, but it is not—shall I say—very high class. I except all that relates to Bloom in this epic work. In the philosophic Bloom Mr. Joyce has added a new character to that company of real imaginary personalities whom we know better than our nearest acquaintances, perhaps better than ourselves.—John Eglington, in the Dial.

This Plant a Weather Prophet.

The abrus or earthquake plant is a curious plant which grows wild in Cuba and India. Claims are made for it that it is a real prophet. The first man who made a study of the claims of the plant as a weather prophet was Baron Nowack, an Austrian, whose success in predicting a thunder storm so caught the imagination of the king of England that he is said to have invited Nowack to London to broadcast the plant—with what result history seems to have left unrecorded. It is said that when an earthquake is about to be born the abrus changes color, in company with the appearance of a spot on the sun. At any rate, the natives of Cuba and India frequently consult this oracle.

Indian Ponies of Arab Descent.

The original Indian ponies were descendants from horses escaped from the earliest Spanish explorers and conquistadores, and those horses were descended in Spain from old Moorish stock which had its origin in Arabia. The animals were comparatively small, but possessed the Arab's unwearied energy and great carrying ability. It was that stock that became the Indian pony of the lands west of the Mississippi, the wild horse of the Far West, the smaller cayuse of the Oregon and Washington country. Naturally it degenerated in appearance through lack of special selection in the sires, but it retained its stamina and small feet to a remarkable degree.

Sapphires of Varied Tints.

The sapphire is a sister to the ruby, so to speak, for the parent of both is corundum, the pure varieties of which when red is the ruby and when blue is the sapphire. The shade of the latter varies. Some of the sapphires from Siam are so dark as to be almost black while a green tint is not unusual in Australian stones. They go from palest blue to deep indigo, but the most precious tint is cornflower-blue. Some of the crystals are clear with the blue in patches and some are of a yellow shade. The slightly cloudy ones sometimes form when cut a brilliant six-pointed star.

Woodpecker's Usefulness.

The wood-boring insect so destructive to forest trees, has one implacable enemy—the woodpecker. Better equipped than a telephone lineman for climbing; supported by a spurred tail; provided with hooked claws for clinging to the bark; hammer-headed, chisel-beaked, and armed with a tremendously long, strong, lance-pointed, barbed, extensible tongue, the woodpecker drills through the wood directly into the spot where the borer lies hidden, pushes in the tip of his barbed tongue, spears the victim and whips it quickly into his open beak.

Two Ways to Retain Job.

It was Mabel's first office job. She was just out of business school and, besides being inexperienced, really was not very efficient in dictation and typewriting. Clara, whose desk was next to Mabel's, watched proceedings and saw that Mabel wasn't getting along very well. One day she took Mabel out to lunch and gave her some expert advice. "Mabel, honey," said Clara, "you ain't quite up to snuff on your job. Now, if you was real pretty—well, I tell you, if you want to hold your job you either gotta do some tall practicing on the typewriter or you gotta go to a good beauty parlor."

Odd Beliefs Concerning Cats.

From the earliest times, cats have given rise to many queer superstitions and beliefs. They have frequently been regarded as supernatural animals. The chariot of the mythical Freyja was drawn by cats, and Holda was supposed to have a bodyguard of maidens mounted on cats. The domestic cat has been regarded for hundreds of years as a weather prophet. Sailors are very superstitious regarding cats. To throw a cat overboard means an invitation to bad weather, and when a ship's cat is frisky, heavy gales are foretold.

As She Understood It.

A colored couple was brought before the magistrate charged with quarrelling. "I fear that you two are poorly mated," remarked his honor; then, turning to the man, "Your wife seems to be much younger than you—May married to December, as it were." "Ah, don't know what yo' honor means by sayin' May married to December," put in the woman. "If you'll goin' to talk dat way it seems mo' like a case of Labor day bein' married to de day of rest."

Beasley's Christmas Party

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

VI—Continued.

"From the Dispatch, hay?" Mr. Peck gave me greeting, as he would a knit comforter about his neck. "That's good. We'd most give you up. This here's Mr. Grist, and Mr. Henry P. Cullop, and Mr. Gus Schulmeyer—three men that feel the same way about Dave Beasley that I do. That other young feller," he waved a mittened hand to the fourth man—"he's from the Journal. Likely you're acquainted."

The young man from the Journal was unknown to me; moreover, I was far from overjoyed at his presence in the group.

"I've got you newspaper men here," continued Mr. Peck, "because I'm goin' to show you some'n' about Dave Beasley that'll open a good many folk's eyes when it's in print."

"Well, what is it?" I asked, rather sharply.

"Jest hold your horses a little bit," he returned. "Grist and me knows, and so do Mr. Cullop and Mr. Schulmeyer. And I'm goin' to take them and you two reporters to look at it. All ready? Then come on."

He threw open the door, stooped to the gust that took him by the throat, and led the way out into the storm.

"What is he up to?" I gasped to the Journal man as we followed in a straggling line.

"I don't know any more than you do," he returned. "He thinks he's got something that'll queer Beasley. Peck's an old fool, but it's just possible he's got hold of something. Nearly everybody has one thing, at least, that they don't want found out. It may be a good story. Lord, what a night!"

I pushed ahead to the leader's side. "See here, Mr. Peck—" I began, but he cut me off.

"You listen to me, young man! I'm givin' you some news for your paper, and I'm gittin' at it my own way, but I'll git at it, don't you worry! I'm goin' to let some folks around here know what kind of a feller Dave Beasley really is; yes, and I'm goin' to show George Dowden he can't laugh at me!"

"You're going to show Mr. Dowden?" I said. "You mean you're going to take 'em along with us on this expedition?"

"Take him!" Mr. Peck emitted an acrid bark of laughter. "I guess he's at Beasley's, all right."

"No, he isn't; he's at home—at Mrs. Apperthwaite's—playing cards."

"What?"

"I happen to know that he'll be there all evening."

Mr. Peck smote his palms together. "Grist!" he called, over his shoulder, and his colleague struggled forward. "Listen to this: even Dowden ain't at Beasley's. Ain't the Lord workin' fer us tonight?"

"Why don't you take Dowden with you," I urged, "if there's anything you want to show him?"

"By George, I will!" shouted Peck. "I've got him where the hair's short now!"

"That's right," said Grist.

"Gentlemen!"—Peck turned to the others—"When we git to Mrs. Apperthwaite's, Just Stop Outside Along the Fence a Minute."

Shivering, we took up our way again in single file, stumbling through drifts that had deepened incredibly within the hour. The wind was straight against us, and so stingingly sharp and so laden with the driving snow that when we reached Mrs. Apperthwaite's gate (which we approached from the north, not passing Beasley's) my eyes were so full of smarting tears I could see only blurred planes of light dancing vaguely in the darkness, instead of brightly lighted windows.

"Now," said Peck, panting and turning his back to the wind; "the rest of you gentlemen wait out here. You two newspaper men, you come with me."

He opened the gates and went in, the Journal reporter and I following—all three of us wiping our half-blinded eyes. When we reached the shelter of the front porch, I took the key from my pocket and opened the door.

"I live here," I explained to Mr. Peck.

"All right," he said. "Jest step in and tell George Dowden that Sim Peck's out here and wants to see him at the door a minute. Be quick."

I went into the library, and there sat Dowden contemplatively playing bridge with two of the elderly ladies and Miss Apperthwaite. The last-mentioned person quite took my breath away.

In honor of the Christmas eve (I supposed) she wore an evening dress of black lace, and the only word for what she looked nas suffered such misuse that one hesitates over it: yet that is what she was—regal—and no less! There was a sort of splendor about her. It detracted nothing from this that her expression was a little sad; something not uncommon with her lately; a certain melancholy, faint but detectable, like breath on a mirror. I had attributed it to Jean Valjean, though perhaps tonight it might have been due merely to bridge.

"What is it?" asked Dowden, when, after an apology for disturbing the game, I had drawn him out in the hall.

I motioned toward the front door. "Simoon Peck. He thinks he's got something on Mr. Beasley. He's waiting to see you."

Dowden uttered a sharp, half-coherent exclamation and stepped quickly to the door. "Peck!" he said, as he jerked it open.

"Oh, I'm here!" declared that gentleman, stepping into view. "I've come around to let you know that you couldn't laugh like a horse at me no more, George Dowden! So you weren't invited, either."

"Invited?" said Dowden. "Invited where?"

"Over to the ball your friend is givin'."

"What friend?"

"Dave Beasley. So you ain't quite good enough to dance with his high-society friends!"

"What are you talking about?" Dowden demanded, impatiently.

"I reckon you won't be quite so strong fer Beasley," responded Peck, with a vindictive little giggle, "when you find he can use you in his business, but when it comes to entertainin'—oh no, you ain't quite the boy!"

"I'd appreciate your explaining," said Dowden. "It's kind of cold standing here."

Peck laughed shrilly. "Then I reckon you better git your hat and coat and come along. Can't do us no harm, and might be an eye-opening fer you. Grist and Gus Schulmeyer and Hank Cullop's waitin' out yonder at the gate. We be havin' kind of a consultation at my house over some'n' Grist seen at Beasley's a little earlier in the evening."

"What did Grist see?"

"Cabs! Cabs drivin' up to Beasley's house—a whole lot of 'em. Grist was down the street a piece, and it was pretty dark, but he could see the lamps and hear the doors slam as the people got out. Besides, the whole place is lit up from cellar to attic. Grist come on to my house and told me about it, and I begun usin' the telephone; called up all the men that count in the party—found most of 'em at home, too. I ast 'em if they was invited to this ball tonight; and "Look at that!" Peck turned to Dowden, giggling triumphantly. "Wha'd I tell you! How do you feel about it now?"

"But where are the cabs?" asked Dowden, gravely.

"Folks all come," answered Mr. Peck, with complete assurance. "Won't be no more cabs till they begin to go home."

We plunged ahead as far as the corner of Beasley's fence, where Peck stopped us again, and we drew together, slapping our hands and stamping our feet. Peck was delighted—a thoroughly happy man; his sour giggle of exultation had become continuous, and the same jovial break was audible in Grist's voice as he said to the Journal reporter and me:

"Go ahead, boys. Git your story. We'll wait here fer you."

The Journal reporter started toward the gate; he had gone, perhaps twenty feet when Simoon Peck whistled in sharp warning. The reporter stopped short in his tracks.

Beasley's front door was thrown open, and there stood Beasley himself in evening dress, bowing and smiling, but not at us, for he did not see us. The bright hall behind him was beautiful with evergreen streamers and wreaths, and great flowering plants in jars. A strain of dance-music wandered out to us as the door opened, but there was nobody except David Beasley in sight, which certainly seemed peculiar—for a ball!

"Rest of 'em inside, dancin'," explained Mr. Peck, crouching behind the picket-fence. "It'll be the house is more'n half full of low-necked wimmin!"

"Sh!" said Grist. "Listen to Dave Beasley."

Beasley had begun to speak, and his voice, loud and clear, sounded over the wind. "Come right in, Colonel!" he said. "I'd have sent a cab for you if you hadn't telephoned me this afternoon that your rheumatism was so bad you didn't expect to be able to come. I'm glad you're well again. Yes, they're all here, and the ladies are getting up a dance in the sitting-room."

(It was at this moment that I received upon the calf of the right leg a kick, the ecstatic violence of which led me to attribute it, and rightly, to Mr. Dowden.)

"Gentlemen's dressing-room upstairs to the right, Colonel," called Beasley, as he closed the door.

There was a pause of awed silence among us.

(I improved it by returning the kick to Mr. Dowden. He made no acknowledgment of its reception other than to sink his chin a little deeper into the collar of his ulster.)

"By the Almighty!" said Simoon Peck, hoarsely. "Who—what was Dave Beasley talkin' to? There wasn't nobody there!"

"Git out," Grist bade him; but his tone was perturbed. "He seen that reporter. He was givin' us the laugh."

"He's crazy!" exclaimed Peck, vehemently.

Immediately all four members of his party began to talk at the same time: Mr. Schulmeyer agreeing with Grist, and Mr. Cullop holding with Peck that Beasley had surely become insane; while the Journal man, returning, was certain that he had not been seen. Argument became a wrangle; excitement over the remarkable scene we had witnessed, and, perhaps, a certain sharpness partially engendered by the risk of freezing, led to some bitterness. High words were flung upon the wind. Eventually, Simoon Peck got the floor to himself for a moment.

"See here, boys, there's no use gittin' mad amongst ourselves," he vociferated. "One thing we're all agreed on: nobody here never seen no such a darn peculiar performance as we jest seen in their whole lives before. Therefore, ball or no ball, there's some'n' mighty wrong about this business. Ain't that so?"

They said it was.

"Well, then, there's only one thing to do—let's find out what it is."

"You bet we will."

"I wouldn't send no one in there alone," Peck went on, excitedly, "with a crazy man. Besides, I want to see what's goin' on, myself."

"And so do we!" This declaration was unanimous.

"Then let's see if there ain't some way to do it. Perhaps he ain't pulled all the shades down on the other side the house. Lots o' people fergit to do that."

There was but one mind in the party regarding this proposal. The next minute saw us all cautiously sneaking into the side yard, a ragged line of bent and flapping figures, black against the snow.

Simoon Peck's expectations were fulfilled—more than fulfilled. Not only were all the shades of the big three-faced bay-window of the "sitting room" lifted, but (evidently on account of the too great generosity of a huge log-fire that blazed in the old-fashioned chimney-place) one of the windows was half-raised as well. Here, in the shadow just beyond the rosy oblongs of light that fell upon the snow, we gathered and looked freely within.

MONDAY CLUB

On New Year's Day the children of members and other small guests assembled at Masonic Temple for the Monday Club's children's party. It required more than the stormy weather outside to dampen the spirits of the 125 or more children who gathered from all parts of town for this annual frolic. The decorations of the hall were appropriate to the holiday season, and after the customary Salute to the Flag in which the children participated, an entertaining program of music and dancing was given.

The Misses Dorothy and Gwendolin McMurray of Hingham, who are not strangers on Monday Club programs, entertained in costume with a group of dances, including toe dancing, a Russian dance and ballet dancing.

With an air of unconcern and self-confidence which would be the envy of many older entertainers, Master Ralph Young, the four-year-old son of Mrs. Ralph Young, sang two groups of little songs accompanied by his mother.

Then Ralph Wilder, son of Mrs. Ralph Wilder of North Weymouth, entertained with a clog dance.

At the conclusion of the program the treat, without which no children's party would be complete, ice cream and cakes, was served.

The diminutive guests then assembled for the grand march, and in their party array they made an attractive group indeed.

Mrs. Lena Thomas' orchestra furnished music for dancing, which continued until five o'clock.

The next meeting of the Monday Club will be held in East Weymouth Congregational church at 2.30 P. M. on Jan. 15.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY BILL

Amendment of the Constitution of Massachusetts to provide that the Legislature may, if it sees fit, change the method of selecting district attorneys, is asked in a petition filed with the clerk of the House of Representatives by John C. Brimblecom, Representative from Newton.

Mr. Brimblecom would provide in his proposed amendment that the General Court be given power to determine whether district attorneys shall be elected or appointed, either by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Executive Council, or by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court. Those officers are now elected by districts.

Since the Constitution already provides for the election of district attorneys for such terms as the Legislature shall prescribe, Mr. Brimblecom was asked to explain the intent of his proposal. He said that he believes that recent agitation and experience directs that a change should be made in the method of election or appointment of law officers.

Mr. Brimblecom also filed a petition to authorize the General Court to have similar powers over the selection of sheriffs, clerks of court, and registers of probate, the latter being a step toward the inauguration of the so-called "short ballot".

GAZETTE HELP APPRECIATED

December 30, 1922

Editor Gazette-Transcript:

Kindly permit me to extend to you our sincere appreciation for the assistance which your newspaper has given us in our efforts to handle the Christmas mail in a satisfactory manner.

The business which was done this year in the Postoffice was at least 25 percent greater than any previous year. The fact that so many of our patrons of the Post Office mailed their packages earlier this year than ever before was undoubtedly due to a great extent to the kindly and efficient co-operation which the newspapers gave us in putting the advantages of early mailing before the public.

With my kindest regards and wishing you a very Happy and Prosperous New Year, I am

Sincerely yours,

ROLAND M. BAKER,

Postmaster

When Worster Bryant comes home from the Navy for a furlough we all know it. Worster is a most ingenious fellow—there is nothing but what he can do. This time he arrived a day or two before Christmas and as usual set about doing something beautiful and unusual. He has a flag pole in his yard that is 52 feet high and he arranged a beautiful star and Christmas tree covered with electric lights of all colors on top of the pole, making a wonderful sight. It was admired by everybody and being situated so high could be seen from a great distance. It remained there one week until after New Year's.

FIFTY-SEVENTH YEAR

VOL. LVII. NO. 2

WEYMOUTH, MASSACHUSETTS, FRIDAY, JANUARY 12, 1923

PRICE SIX CENTS

Col. W. C. Sweeney
At C. M. A. Men's Club

Nearly seventy men did not allow the severe winter weather and hard travelling to prevent their attending the monthly supper of the Clapp Memorial Men's Club Wednesday evening. The usual delicious hot roast beef supper was served.

After eating, the club president, William J. Holbrook, introduced the speaker of the evening, Col. Walter G. Sweeney. This gentleman delivered a most instructive address that was listened to throughout with intense interest by those present. While his subject was "Reds and Pinks", he delivered a very interesting prologue describing for the most part America's participation in the late war. Because of his active connection from the beginning he was well informed and could give many interesting sidelights.

He strongly believes in preparedness and felt that if America had been prepared in 1916 it would have been unnecessary for her to enter the war. Germany had made certain deductions, discounting America's entry, due to the many different people in distinct groups over the country, the lack of equipment and trained men, lack of means of transportation; and in fact the speaker in his first interviews with Allied officers learned that they hardly expected America to enter, feeling that she was just bluffing.

The fact that America did enter showed while the country was large, no matter what corner one goes into all Americans have the country's interests at heart. This was shown by the prompt enlistment of its cream of young men, and the operation of what was thought impossible—the draft. The draft did show up a large percentage of physical disability, and made it necessary to send green, in some cases, insufficiently trained men against seasoned troops of Europe, and this naturally led to a greater sacrifice of human life than would have been the case had this country been prepared.

Lord Roberts of England, before his death a couple of years prior to the war, urged preparedness and training for England. This in a large measure would have saved the cream of that country's youth. The speaker felt that an erroneous impression of military men like our generals of the present day is held by the people at large. Those men do not want war, would prefer not to have it, but through their training they realize what a horrible thing war is and what preparedness means towards its prevention.

The speaker said that you would not accuse your doctors of desiring an epidemic, just because they are doctors and need the practice, and likewise the business of the military leaders should not be misrepresented. There is no militarism in the United States; no one man like the Prime Minister of England or France can plunge this country into an unnecessary war, for in this country it requires a two-thirds vote of the Senate hence the argument about secret treaties of this country appearing in many of the current dailies is "hosh".

Equally as interesting as the opening words of the speaker was his subject of the evening, which was most ably and interestingly presented. He described each of the different best known groups of agitators like the Communists, Radicals, Agitators, Bolsheviks, and Socialists and while they may go under these various names, in reality they are of the same breed.

There is no better way of describing them than by taking the first letter of each of these five terms to form a word. Even the early scientists had hard work to classify this specimen, and the characteristics of the human models are much the same. His description of each branch and their activities could not help but raise disgust and resentment among thinking people. Some people can read Marx without harm, but there are those who use it as a bible.

Some of these agitators, realizing the greatness of the country depends upon the sanctity of the home and religion, have gone to the extent of abolishing religion and marriage. The speaker warned every citizen to be on the lookout for danger signals on every side, and to listen intently for dangerous utterances of the pacifists, who make up a very dangerous element of our population. Largely through the activities of the latter can be traced much of the large loss of life, particularly in our training camps, in 1917, due wholly to unpreparedness.

Parents and citizens of all walks of life should be on their guard and know who some of the speakers are and what subjects they are bringing before the young people of the present day.

An interesting phase of the speaker's talk was his connection with the censorship of letters during the war. He mentioned that when there were two million American troops overseas letters back home appeared in six different languages. In three or four cases, such as the Western Indians, the men themselves had to be called in to interpret their letters. This gives some idea of the vast magnitude of this work.

Annual Reports of the Weymouth Hospital

A goodly number attended the annual business meeting of the Weymouth Hospital, Inc., held at High School hall Thursday evening. President William C. Earle presided and the secretary's and treasurer's reports of activities since the incorporation of the body last spring were read. These reports showed splendid progress that has resulted in Weymouth having an up-to-date institution. A few figures from the treasurer's report are of interest and while space will not permit the printing of the full report, it should at the first opportunity be read by all.

Total receipts for the year received including returns from the drive, pledges and special donations was $24,694.59. From this amount over $2000 was received from patients receiving attention and some $500 worth of charitable work was rendered and there still remains over $1000 due from patients.

The expenditures are given in detail to show how well the funds at hand have been carefully and properly spent.

Wages $6,602.41, food $2,237.21, fuel $44.72, electricity 165.23, gas 167.69, laundry $1,074.53, telephone $86.68, furnishings 4,038.02, equipment 1,756.68, printing and stationery 308.88, repairs and improvements 1,290.12, medical and surgical supplies 2,870.71, insurance $50, postage, carfare and express $82.80, housekeeping sundries $28.21, incidentals 15c, band, flyers for opening day, and ice bill $196.11. Total expenditures $23,030.11.

This leaves a cash balance of over $1500, plus the amount due the hospital from patients.

There is still a large amount due from pledges and it is hoped that those that signed the pledges will promptly pay up so that the hospital may receive the benefit of the money.

The report of the superintendent is as follows:

"During the past seven months we have treated two hundred seven patients: during May, three cases; June 31, July 26, August 20, September 25, October 28, November 40, December 37.

Among these there were 75 medical, 45 obstetrical, and 87 surgical cases. The surgical cases include 27 major and 41 minor operations.

The nominating committee consisting of Dr. Fraser, Dr. Libby, and R. L. Whitling brought in their report which was accepted, and the following officers were chosen for 1923:

President, William C. Earle
Vice-president, W. Carleton Barnes
Treasurer, George E. Emerson
Clark, William J. Holbrook

Five trustees for three years were: Sidney G. Dunbar, Elmer E. Leonard, Prince H. Tirrell, Rev. J. B. Holland, and Jacob S. Wichert.

For vacancies existing in the trustees due to resignations: for two years, Harold W. Raymond and Robert S. Hoffman; trustee for one year, Charles Y. Berry.

Dr. Jacoby gave an interesting account of the Hospital Association, its past activities, the final disposition of the Castle property and from its proceeds the generous gift to the new hospital of a complete set of instruments. He spoke in glowing terms of the new hospital and said it was the best of its kind and size anywhere. And pledged the support of the old Association.

Dr. O'Donnell of the State Board of Health was the speaker of the evening in the place of Dr. Cabot whom sickness prevented from attending. He called it a fine hospital, seeing it was wonderful in so short a time to have such a fine institution and such good reports.

During the evening Miss Richards

HOLY NAME SOCIETY

Sunday the men of Sacred Heart parish will receive Holy Communion in a body at the early mass. A musical program arranged for under the direction of Messrs. Beauregard and Coridon will be given and a special sermon, appropriate to the day, will be given by the spiritual director, Rev. Fr. Holland.

In the evening the society will gather for benediction, to be followed by a meeting in the church hall, when the annual election of officers will be held. Reports of committees will be read and a constructive program for 1923 activities outlined.

An analysis of the past fifteen months shows that 2360 men received Holy Communion with the society during that period—or an average of 155 men each second Sunday of the month. The homes of the sick and deceased have been visited and services held. One all-night vigil was observed and Eucharistic Sunday was specially commemorated. Thirteen social hours have been held, when cycle talks have been given, and dresses delivered, educational moving pictures shown, and concerts heard. All in all, it has been a year of progress. Under Father Holland's guidance the society steadily grows stronger. Each month new members are attracted and the campaign, begun over 700 years ago to promote respect and honor for God's Holy Name, grows apace.

Harry Morrison was re-appointed delegate to the Welfare Association. It was voted to continue the Sunday evening pictures. The matter of holding a winter Chautauqua after some discussion was left in the hands of Rev. Mr. Bitler. Linwood Crowder was elected corresponding secretary to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Fred Souther.

She Loathed
Extravagance

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Everybody knew Miss Jessie Kapper for a person of the highest principles; what was not so well known was that her thrift, which was alike hereditary and habitual, forbade use of the principles for every day. She spoke eloquently of the larger vision, world humanity, harmony with cosmic law, above all, the crying need of the uplift. She was, further, more than generous of her time and her breath for all manner of causes that might serve as pedestals. Notwithstanding, there were chuckles from the unregenerate mass over the washerwoman's verdict: "Hit ain't only that she wants to be bell-wether or no sheep—somebody else must pay for the bell."

She looked exceedingly well to the ways of the household—her mother was an invalid, her father away half the time in congress. That gave her added prestige, if she didn't go to Washington with the general. Her mother was excuse quite sufficient—and daughterly devotion was thus an added asset. She paid cash for everything save her subscription to church and charity—for them she set apart the increment of her small economies.

She loathed extravagance—especially the Carroll Beaton sort. Carroll also kept house for a rather helpless family—a pretty, frightened, incapable mother, and a scientific father, who lost himself in his work. Luckily they had a fixed income—a fairish one—but Carroll wore clothes it pained Mrs. Grundy to see, admittedly because she could not afford better. Yet she bought the best of everything in market—not always the costliest rarities, but the best of its sort. She kept a maid for her mother, and a man-cook, who also looked after the lawn and the laboratory both, at wages that seemed fabulous to Allyn town, the while doing her own sewing, and even making over her hats. She had little parties, too—very simple—cake and ice cream or tea and sandwiches in cherry or strawberry time—the fruit serving in place of sweets. There was dancing, too, on the piazza or the grass, to the phonograph that was Mamma Beaton's consolation. New records for it, costly ones at that, further jarred Miss Kapper's amiability. So badly, indeed, she said outright to her gossip, Miss Susan Fife: "If ever anybody needed a guardian it is Carroll Beaton—unless she gets one of some sort, she'll die on the town."

"She can get a mighty fine one, any minute (she'll say 'yes,' Susan returned smiling slyly.

Miss Kapper bridled, saying acidly: "You don't really believe John Huntly has serious intentions? I know he goes there right along—but it's to see the professor, same as it has always been—"

"Maybe he's saltin' the old cow for the calf—but I have my doubts," from the gossip. Miss Kapper opened her lips to speak, but shut them with a snap of the jaws on what she had meant to say, running on after a minute to her fall clothes—which meant making some few new ones and making over many that had seen service. Dyed, recut and refurnished they would look new and wear just as well—and such a saving! Jennie Britt, the little old maid dressmaker, charged so moderately even Carroll Beaton could afford her—if only she would. And so obliging—always ready to turn, and contrive, make the most of every scrap of lace or trimming—and never send in a bill till the end of the quarter. Jennie was an institution, said Miss Kapper, and "John Huntly'll agree to that," said Miss Susan. "He goes there every little while to hear her tell about his mother—they were little girls together, and went to the same school. She gave him his first case when he started law practice—I shall always say she'd never a-gone and sued the Prices on that last land note if she hadn't wanted to show folk what John could do."

The land money safe in a 7 per cent mortgage, Jenny Britt felt she could let it ride, a sure provision for age or illness, meanwhile earning a trifle more than she spent to live if she did work so cheap. She had rooms downtown—two, shabby but clean always and rather cheery by lamp light. John Huntly found them so upon a rainy October evening, whose early luck had somehow made him lose relish for work. Aunt Jennie would brace him up—she was so birdlike, always cheery, no matter where the wind sat. She would give him tea, just the sort he liked—not too strong—clear and very hot, with rose leaves she had candied herself, floating in it, dark blurs against her single eggshell cup. They were in the kitchen brewing it when there came a merry rattle upon the outer door.

Miss Jennie smiled to hear it. "Sit still here and don't you peep," she adjured her first visitor over her shoulder as she vanished, leaving the door ajar.

Next minute he heard Carroll saying gayly: "Ah, ha. Keeping Blind Jack's holiday, Miss Jen! Don't blame you—rain always makes me lazier than usual. So I had to rush out in it to bring you these—just a few late peaches, and some pears not yet mellow. Mother said you must have some the minute she saw them. No—can't sit down—company coming to supper

Out of the Darkness

By Charles J. Dutton

A mystery story of breathless interest, in which evidence disappears in a most unaccountable manner and clue after clue leads astray or ends in a baffling enigma.

When one of the chief witnesses at an inquest is murdered in the presence of a hundred people and no one knows who did the deed, even the astute criminologist who is ferreting out the mystery is baffled. But only for a time. He solves the murder and brings the story to a climax that even the most clever and discerning reader is unlikely to foresee.

To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the scout law.

To help other people at all times.

To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight.

This is the Scout Oath, and is required of every boy who becomes a Boy Scout.

Weymouth is in the jurisdiction of Old Colony Council, which is comprised of twelve towns.

33% of the entire membership of the council is from Weymouth, in which fact Weymouth may well take pride.

In no campaign for funds for the support of this organization has Weymouth ever contributed the quota assigned as her share of the expenses.

Mystery Calling to Mystery

Out of the Darkness

By Charles J. Dutton

John Bartley, the great detective, is again called upon to exercise his powers in solving strange crimes which began with a burglary and led to two murders. All other means failing, he is driven to working upon the superstitions of suspected parties. He employs an ouija board, stages a thrilling scene and brings to his aid the seemingly mystic powers of a so-called medium, with slate writings and materializations. All very terrifying to the criminals and entertaining to readers, who quickly realize that the occult manifestations are merely clever tricks. But they have their effect and wring a confession from a most unexpected source. You will be both charmed and puzzled by this out-of-the-ordinary detective story.

Frank Craven is one of the few American actors who is also a play writer. He is now starring in "The First Year," one of his own comedies which had a run of two solid years in New York, and is now booked for a long run in Chicago. Its appeal lies in its clean, wholesome humor.

The Friendly Path

By WALTER I. ROBINSON

CO-OPERATION

LEARN to co-operate. The leaders in everything of consequence who are getting ahead are not doing so by their own stubbornness. They have come to recognize that the greatest amount of good can only be accomplished by persuading others into following them along the logical pathway, rather than in trying to force them like cattle being driven into their pen.

There is nothing new in co-operation. Wise men have recognized its importance and recommended it to others for ages. But for the co-operation of men, the pyramids would never have been built and without the co-operation of a woman, Columbus would not have started on his memorable trip.

One hundred years ago John Skinner, editor of the "American Farmer," in discussing the future of farming, urged co-operation in order that the industry might succeed and assure agriculturists more pleasure in life. He said:

"Farming in the future will no longer be a matter of brute force. It will be a business for brains, organization and intelligence."

If he could return to this world now and see the wonderful progress in agriculture since he last looked upon our waving grain fields and cool meadows of hemp and corn, he would understand more clearly than he did a century ago that co-operation was the surest way to win. On every hand he could see evidence of the use men have made of "brains, organization and intelligence," and he would doubtless be hopeful of greater co-operation, particularly in marketing, in order that farmers might get more for their products, though consumers would pay less.

In home, business and industry, co-operation is the one word to keep in mind. It means not only an easier path to success, but a surer road to joy.

Has Anyone Laughed At You Because —

By ETHEL R. PEYSER

You lend money? Haven't people said to you, "You'll get stung!" "Can't you see you'll never get it back?" Never mind; you think it is better to hit it right sometimes than never to lend. Lending if not in excess is all right. It helps the lender to lend—it eases some good folk to borrow and you like to ease folks and you think the good shouldn't suffer for the dishonest.

SO

Your Get-away here is:

To lend as well with your mind as your heart—then let them laugh. If you have done some good it has paid you well—by your knowing you have made the borrower and the lender happier.

WHY

Do Men Have Instinctive Fear of the Darkness?

And while I am on the question of influences, I would like to add my testimony concerning that enigmatic sensation, the fear of the dark. Why is it, do you suppose, that two grown men, who have deliberately fled the great white ways because of the joys of the great unlighted—why should they prefer to stick around the campfire after dark? Once I slept alone in the woods for two months and at the end of that time I was no more broken from the faint distrust of something beyond the firelight than at the beginning. It was the safest place in the world, my Adirondack camp. There were no dangerous animals, no dangerous insects, no snakes, no tramps. I took supper regularly with friends on the other side of the lake, paddled over alone under glorious heavens, and suffered no feeling of the nerves. But my tent was 50 feet back from the water's edge, and those 50 feet through darkness up the familiar path verged on the unpleasant. I should have left a lantern on the landing to light me home, but that seemed childish. There was always relief I had lighted the lantern in my tent—a very slight relief, but actual. I never thought about being alone after the light was burning or minded waking up at night. I would like to know whether forest rangers, Yellowstone guards, nightwatchmen and all the citizens whose legal business is conducted after dark, have this same faint distrust of it, that is many degrees less than fright, yet a shade different from daylight ease. All our cave-men ancestors could not have been ardent cowards, lying in mortal terror at the approach of twilight. Yet anything short of that could scarcely have survived as instinct when so many other instincts have fallen by the way.—From T. Morris Longstrech's "The Adirondacks."

DATES FROM ANCIENT TIMES

Why the Unmarried Female of Today Is Officially Designated by the Word "Spinster."

The word "spinster" comes down from old English times, when the males and females of a family were described as of the "spear side," or "spindle side," from the different occupations of the sexes. While the men worked or fought, the women stepped at home spinning wool or linen.

In those days every woman, whether single or married, was a spinster, because in the literal meaning of the word, her chief work was spinning while the men fought or hunted.

Gradually the word spinster came to mean more especially the unmarried daughters, possibly because it was understood that they were spinning for themselves, and the future "bottom drawer," whereas the word wife meant literally one who had been a weaver, and therefore was not now. Later spinster stood exclusively for the unmarried, and in 1617 it became the legal term for such.

Why Swimming Is Healthful.

There was never a time when swimming was so widely recommended as today—not only as an amusement, but also as a health cure.

A few years ago swimming was but indifferently popular. Now, strange as it may seem, it is being used as a treatment of diseases as well as a means of increasing fitness of healthy men and women and children of all ages.

For swimming is the only exercise in the world which a man partially paralyzed can engage in. The weight of the body is supported by the water. Those limbs which have escaped damage can be used for locomotion, and even the damaged limbs obtain valuable exercise.

Very favorable reports have been made on this new therapeutic method.

How to Polish Stone.

A stone surface may be smoothed and polished quite satisfactorily by means of a good smooth, flat, hard stone and a piece of sole leather attached to a board. Emery powder, No. 90 to No. 100, which is procurable at any hardware store, is spread over the surface to be polished, a liberal supply of water is added and the flat stone is vigorously applied in a circular motion. The amount of patience and muscle exercised determines the smoothness of the stone. When sufficiently smooth the leather is applied in a similar manner and a very fine and lasting polish is secured.

Why Eddies Whirl Counter-Clockwise.

A correspondent writes to the Scientific American asking if it is true that all whirlwinds, tornadoes, cyclones, typhoons (movements of air), maelstroms, water leaving a washbowl or bathtub (movements of water), unless artificially interfered with, revolve counter-clockwise. If so, what causes this? The answer is: "The rotary motions which you describe are caused by the earth's rotation on its axis. They are counter-clockwise in the northern and clockwise in the southern hemisphere."

Why He Delayed.

She (banteringly)—Didn't you swear that if Miss Bute rejected you you would cast yourself into the deepest part of the sea?

He—Well—er—you see, I'm still gathering statistics. It's no easy matter to find out where the deepest part of the sea is.—Boston Evening Transcript.

Community Press
100% American, 100% Clean

At the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Press Association in Hotel Vendome on Monday, Gardner E. Campbell of the Wabash Daily Item was elected president; Walter D. Allen of the Brookline Chronicle, L. E. Chandler of the Palmer Journal and W. J. Heffernan of the Spencer Leader were elected vice presidents.

Gov. Cox, speaking at the banquet in the evening, urged a gasoline tax. He said the present automobile registration fee is inadequate, as it does not impose a tax in proportion to the damage the cars inflict on the roads and bridges. A gasoline tax, he said, would distribute itself in accordance with the speed, weights, and other details, which cause the road and bridge deterioration, as the amount of gasoline used will be greater with the exaction of these details. The Governor stated that easiness and cheapness of collection would be other advantages of such a tax, as he pointed out, it would be imposed at about twelve sources. The Governor desires that one cent per gallon be retained by the State and one cent be divided among the cities and towns; but all be used to improve the streets and bridges.

Following an address by Representative John C. Brimblecom, editor of the Newton Graphic, the association presented him an equipped travelling bag in recognition of his election to the presidency of the National Editorial Association.

Representative Brimblecom suggested that the newspapers of the country should support the Constitution by refusing to print jokes that tend to create disregard or indifference for the laws, and instance the matter of prohibition.

L. C. Hall of Wareham, retiring president, said that the papers of the country should establish a sound code of ethics that would be a binding, creed founded on obligations to the public and to themselves.

Carl F. Prescott of the Weymouth Gazette was re-elected secretary. R. S. Osterhout of the Hudson News and Alex Starbuck of the Waltham Free Press-Tribune were respectively re-elected treasurer and historian. Ralph C. Metcalf of the Belmont Citizen was chosen auditor.

Following is the address of President Lemuel C. Hall, delivered at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Press Association in Boston Jan. 8.

Two years is not long in the life of an average man, yet there are periods in the life of every man that stand out above all others to be cherished in memory.

The two years during which I have presided over the activities of the Massachusetts Press Association will leave an impress upon my memory because of the very pleasant association with its members, because of the friendships formed and because of some slight record of achievement.

First and foremost I have found this association to be composed of MEN, men with ideals, men with brains, and men with a mission above the sordid ambition of achieving material things alone. To have been closely associated with such men, to have received their support and to have shared in their accomplishments is in itself an honor and a source of gratification.

The editors and publishers of the Community Press of Massachusetts are the peers of any who have chosen journalism as their vocation and it is my firm belief that because of them Massachusetts stands firmly in the forefront of accomplishment and that they have served to raise the standard of the profession to a plane high in the estimation of every thinking citizen.

It is a source of gratification that the Community Press of America has never been prostituted to such material ends as to become the tool of propagandists, of selfish interests or of sinister elements.

Whenever a moral issue is raised in Massachusetts the support of the Community Press is vigorously sought and unselfishly given. While opinions of individual editors may vary upon political questions and upon matters of policy there has never been two minds when great moral issues have been involved and no community paper in Massachusetts, represented in this association, has ever been found advocating un-American ideas, seditious sentiments, or salubrious arguments. The Community Press of Massachusetts is 100% American and 100% clean. It stands staunchly side by side with the churches, the schools, and the educators in promulgating ethical advancement and in frowning upon moral and intellectual filth. It is foursquare behind the enforcement of the laws of the Commonwealth and Nation, a rock against which waves of vindictive radicalism are bound to break. Massachusetts needs no Ku Klux Klan to guard its sacred interests and traditions so long as the Community Press continues to exist in the hands of the men who at present guide it.

Should the time ever come when we can no longer trust our chosen representatives; when our political rectitude fails to equal the standards established by our forefathers, when our cherished institutions become threatened and in danger, the Community Press of Massachusetts may be depended upon to lead in the right direction and if need be it will fight as vigorously for right and rectitude as did our ancestors at Lexington and Bunker Hill.

In my more than twenty years experience with the newspapers represented in this organization I have never known one of them that could justly be called subsidized, sordid, or unmindful of great responsibilities. The charge that newspaper policies are dominated by their advertisers is not true so far as the members of this association is concerned. There isn't a publisher here that wouldn't indignantly spurn any offer or suggestion that he considered prejudicial to public interests, no matter from what quarter the offer or suggestion came.

While I wouldn't for a moment be understood as advocating more extensive participation of our newspapers in partisan politics, I do strongly advocate that they take a strong and decided stand upon matters pertaining to the political welfare of our state. They should see to it that clean, honest, efficient, and responsible men are elected to office; that our government be made better and more business like; that appointments be made solely on the ground of fitness and that in all ways they stand as watch dogs at the gate to warn people whenever political or economic dangers threaten.

I am not one who has sympathy with the "neutral" newspaper. There are only two sides to any question—the right and the wrong—and it is the duty of the publisher to stand vigorously for what is right, let the consequences be what they may. I hope the time will never come when the Community Press will be afraid to assert itself. The editor and the newspaper must always merit the confidence and respect of his fellow men—if he can't do this he isn't fit to be numbered with the fraternity.

In our association meetings we rightly give much time and consideration to matters of technical importance. We discuss ways and means of securing more advertising and subscriptions, questions pertaining to the mechanics of our business and to discussions about the proper way to treat the space gratters. These are practical questions and necessary if we are to make our papers pay. It is necessary that they be made to pay if they are to continue to exist and unless they do pay and are prosperous they cannot command the respect of the community and the publisher cannot be regarded as one whose opinion is of value. To be influential one must be successful—this applies to newspapers as well as to individuals. No one has any respect for the ideas of a financial failure.

Our first aim is to publish a newspaper that every member of the community will want to read. When we have accomplished this we need have no fear that we will not get a proper proportion of advertising revenue. When the merchant becomes convinced that we have a genuine circulation that really covers our territory he will of his accord come to us with his business. I have no sympathy with the publisher who makes a charity proposition to his community—who solicits support from business men and readers to help support the newspaper. If the fact that a newspaper is not capable of being self-sustaining becomes evident there is no reason under heaven why anyone should want to keep it alive. If it cannot make a place for itself in the community for its intrinsic value it had better go out of business.

I feel that some of us are too apologetic sometimes in our attitude toward our community. We are too apt to ask favors when we should demand rights. I do not consider that any person does me a favor by subscribing to my paper or by inserting an advertisement in its columns. If he or she does not consider that they are setting value received I do not want them to contribute toward my support.

I am hopeful that this association will formulate a code of ethics that we can print in our respective papers which we may establish as a creed as binding as the laws of the Medes and the Persians. I am hopeful that we will consider our obligations, not only to the public but to ourselves. That we will cease to be imposed upon, exploited and worked by every group of selfish axe-grinders and that we will insist that we do business on a business basis.

In closing I wish to express the hope that my successor may receive the same whole-hearted support that I have received while president. I hope that in retiring from the chair I leave the Massachusetts Press Association as strong as I found it upon taking office. If I have merited the approbation and justified the confidence of the members I am truly proud and whether my administration may be considered a success or a failure I shall always feel that the opportunity given me and the honor bestowed upon me equals and even exceeds any other I have had in the past or may have in the future.

To have been the president of the Massachusetts Press Association is a distinction to be cherished, an honor to be proud of and something never to be forgotten. It is one of the oldest associations in the United States; one of the most active and one of the best in my estimation and as Massachusetts stands high among the states in the esteem of the nation so the Massachusetts Press Association stands among other press associations—a pioneer with a record for achievement.

TOWN AND VICINITY

—Dealers in Somerville are selling coal at $25.60 per ton.

—The bank commissioner makes a call on the banks for a statement five times a year, and there is some rivalry to see which bank mails first to its bank correspondents and others folders showing the condition as of the day of the call. On Tuesday at eight minutes past 10, the Granite Trust of Quincy received telephone notice of the call, and at 56 minutes past 10 the printed statement was in the Quincy postoffice addressed to the bank commissioner.

WOMEN GIVE OUT
Housework is hard enough when healthy. Every Weymouth woman who is having backache, blue and nervous spells, dizzy headaches, and kidney or bladder troubles, should be glad to have this Weymouth woman's experience:

Mrs. Nellie Parnell, 47 Richmond street, says: "Several years ago I was in a bad condition with my kidneys. They were sore and there was a dull, heavy feeling through them. My kidneys acted too freely and I was languid and tired. I could hardly stop on account of sharp pains in the small of my back. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and the results others had received from them. I used several boxes and my kidneys became normal. The pains left my back and I was completely rid of the trouble."

Price 60¢ at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Parnell had. Foster-Milburn Co. Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Mystery Calling to Mystery

Out of the Darkness

By Charles J. Dutton

John Bartley, the great detective, is again called upon to exercise his powers in solving strange crimes which began with a burglary and led to two murders. All other means failing, he is driven to working upon the superstitions of suspected parties. He employs an ouija board, stages a thrilling scene and brings to his aid the seemingly mystic powers of a so-called medium, with slate writings and materializations. All very terrifying to the criminals and entertaining to readers, who quickly realize that the occult manifestations are merely clever tricks. But they have their effect and bring a confession from a most unexpected source. You will be both charmed and puzzled by this out-of-the-ordinary detective story.

LEGION CANDIDATE

There is a feeling about town that the American Legion should this year be represented on the Board of Selectmen. Why not Bryan Leonard?

BASKETBALL

Last night at Clapp Memorial the C. M. A. basketball five won from the Cosmopolitan five of East Weymouth 34 to 19. Gunville made 17 points.

TOWN AND VICINITY

At the January communication of Orphans Hope lodge the members enjoyed a good supper at 6.20, when the entertainment committee introduced Walter Eccles, the humorist, who delightedly entertained for an hour. Several candidates were elected. There will be two special meetings this month for work.

It will be good news for many that next week Greeley's Market in the Music Hall block will reopen under new management. The stock will be added to, made more complete, thus giving South Weymouth an up-to-the-minute market.

Joe Taylor of Main street, who for the past few weeks has been confined to home because of sickness, is improving and his friends hope he will soon be out again.

The musical numbers for the evening service of the Methodist church Sunday will be rendered by Percy Ames, violinist, and George Kittredge, organist.

The "Precinct Seven" fire alarm boxes will be found on the fire alarm page, which is up to date.

It is said that Harry E. Bearce may try again as a candidate for Selectman. He made a good run last year, and would probably do better this year. Weymouth needs younger men on its Board of Selectmen.

Weymouth has produced two more inventors. Charles F. Brown, the popular fish dealer of South Weymouth, and Ralph L. Tedesco, a well known electrician of Weymouth Landing, have received patents on a fish scaling apparatus which they invented and which Mr. Brown has been using scaling fish for a year.

The morning prediction was—Unsettled, followed by fair and somewhat warmer.

Twenty percent off on suits and overcoats is the attraction for the "sale" advertised by Remick this week. Suits and overcoats from $16 to $40. A special working suit for $13. Sheep-lined ulsters now $14.50.

A comic strip "Mickie, the printer's devil" will be a feature of this paper for several weeks. Cartoons are another new feature.

An effort was made to obtain the officers and members of Combination One for the fire alarm page, but was unsuccessful. Perhaps they will be forthcoming for the February issue.

Now voting lists will be necessary for Precinct Four and Precinct Seven. Do you know the boundaries of Precinct Seven?

GEM THEATRE ATTRACTIONS

Apparently the Gem Theatre is to become Weymouth's chief home of amusements, as well as Braintree's for the residents of these towns are turning out strong in their support of Mr. Rogers in his splendid undertaking. The splendid attendance on Saturday afternoon and evening argues well for the popularity of the theatre and its proprietor. Mr. Rogers has the good wit and best wishes of his friends, business men, and patrons, and his success is a ready assured. Much favorable comment is heard in regard to the beauty of the edifice, its decorations and splendid accommodations.

Mr. Rogers is selecting none but the best pictures procurable and with the continued support of his patrons will continue to give and add more to make his theatre a continuous attraction. Following is a list of pictures that Mr. Rogers has purchased and will exhibit for the approval of his patrons: "Manslaughter", "Blood and Sand", "The Rajah", "To Have and to Hold", "The Storm", "Human Hearts", "Rich Men's Wives", "Wild Irish Rose" and others.

Mr. Rogers has also purchased that wonderful picture: "Ninety and Nine", which is being exhibited at Tremont Temple, Boston. This picture will be shown at the Gem theatre directly after its conclusion at the Tremont Temple, Boston.

A NEW story, bringing in John Bartley, investigator of crimes. The talented detective, returned from secret service work in the war, was immediately engaged by the governor of the state to ferret out some facts in connection with an application for a pardon.

It seemed a small case, hardly justifying the employment of such a prominent sleuth, yet it led to something big; to a mystery which, for a time, baffled all of his keen abilities. Those who read a detective story in order to match their wits against the author's, will find a rare treat in this new serial.

SCHOOL DAYS

EASY

By WILL M. MAUPIN

I BOUGHT my wife a meerschau pipe
 And kept it hid away;
 Until I could hand it to her
 Upon last Christmas day.

For me she bought a collarette—
 A sealskin beauty, too.
 She hung it on the Christmas tree
 And said: "Dear, it's for you."

That evening, when 'twas time to dine,
 We both sat down to sup,
 She with the pipe, I with the fur—
 And traded, even up.

Mother's Cook Book

It is a great office to make life pleasant, to make it worth living. So far as it is done, it is done chiefly by women, but not by women whose motto is "Women for women," or "Every woman for herself."—Edward Sanford Martin.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

WE TIRE of the sameness of food, no matter how well prepared and served. "Variety is the spice of life." Let us remember this and vary the menus.

Tip Top Omelet.

Boil one-half cupful of milk, add a tablespoonful of butter and mix with one cupful of bread crumbs. Season well, add the yolks of three eggs well beaten, stir in slowly the stiffly beaten whites and brown in a well-buttered frying pan.

Grape Juice.

Cook a kettle of grapes with a very little water until the juice has been well drawn from the fruit. Drain and add one cupful of sugar to each quart of the juice. Boil, skim and pour into bottles boiling hot. Seal with paraffin. Apple juice or the juice of any fruit may be bottled in the same way and will be nice to use not only as drinks but for pudding sauces and in various other dishes.

Detroit Salad Dressing.

Take one-fourth of a cupful of mayonnaise, one-fourth cupful of heavy cream beaten stiff, one hard-boiled egg chopped, two teaspoonfuls of chives, one green onion or shallot, both chopped, one tablespoonful of powdered sugar, two teaspoonfuls of cooked chopped beets, the same of parsley, and red pepper, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of caviar, two teaspoonfuls of chili sauce, one-fourth teaspoonful of paprika and one tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar. Mix thoroughly and allow the mixture to stand in a cool place to become seasoned. Serve with lettuce.

Scalloped Potato With Ham.

Take six cupfuls of diced potato, two cupfuls of diced ham, four cupfuls of hot milk, one-third of a cupful of flour, one-third of a cupful of ham fat, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of pepper, two tablespoonfuls of parsley. Melt the ham fat, add the flour, stir until smooth, add hot milk and bring to a boiling point, stirring constantly; season. Cut cold boiled potatoes in half-inch dice, dice the ham. Put all in a casserole and bake twenty minutes. When serving, add parsley.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

YOUR GRIEVANCES

BEFORE you complain, analyze your complaint.

The chances are you will find that it isn't really a complaint at all.

For example, many men feel aggrieved because others, doing apparently the same work, are better paid. Watch them a while, and you are pretty sure to find that they are either doing more work or better work than you are.

If they are brothers or cousins of the boss, and are better paid for that reason, charge that up to human nature. You are bound to run into cases of that sort. They are not grievances, but just the ordinary facts of life which you have got to meet.

If you are aggrieved because your clothes cost too much, find out if you can't get perfectly good clothes at cheaper prices by looking somewhere else. Nine times in ten you can.

And anyway, if you start a little investigation into your personal expenditures you will discover that you are spending, without any complaint whatever, extravagant amounts on things that you do not need.

There is no denying that for most people the fight for existence is pretty tough.

But it isn't tougher for you than it is for anybody else.

And all around you men are getting into better positions, earning more money, accomplishing important things. And most of them started with exactly the same chance that you have.

Don't complain of your luck; hard luck isn't a complaint, it is necessary discipline. It comes to everybody, and unless you can succeed in spite of it, you don't deserve to succeed.

Sickness, bereavement, accidents you can't help. They are real grievances. But 90 per cent of your grievances are only fancies.

Analyze them and see if that isn't true.

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

"VAUDEVILLE"

THAT the word "vaudeville" is French, is plainly evident from its spelling, but, behind it, lies the story of an unknown man, who, as early as the Fifteenth century gave to the world a new form of entertainment which has achieved the full measure of its popularity in comparatively recent years.

The man who launched vaudeville was a fuller, living in the valley of the Vire in Normandy, who composed some humorous and satirical drinking songs which were very popular throughout France under the name of "Vaux de Vire." Sometime during the following century, the name appears to have been slightly altered, for in a collection of songs published at Lyons in 1561, we find the title "Chansons Voix de Ville," and fifteen years later at Paris, there appeared a booklet bearing the statement: "Recueil des plus belles Chansons en forme des Voix de Ville." Both of these publications were probably reprints of the original songs, although vaudeville as a distinct type of entertainment did not make its appearance until many years later. Even then, it was understood to mean a play in which songs were introduced, and it is in this sense that it is used in France today—the French vaudeville being more on the order of the American "review" than the "variety" or succession of unrelated acts.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

YOUR TOMORROW

AS YOU go about your duties today, acquiring a larger knowledge of your obligations to others and a better understanding of your work, you are paving your way to a better tomorrow.

If you are careful, conscientious, even-tempered and loyal today, determined to make every stroke tell, you will not be lacking in these excellent qualities tomorrow.

By holding steadily to such a course, there will come to you gradually a new-born strength which will ease your burdens and inspire a new confidence in your ability.

Power is not given to ordinary mortals to go at one stride to the top. The summit of hope can be reached only by repeated steps, sometimes hard and painful, calling for patience and an extraordinary control of the heart, the hand and the tongue.

If you succeed in mastering yourself today, it is likely that tomorrow will be less imperious in its demands upon you, and yield a little in its inclination to get you in trouble.

Upon the other hand, if you are indifferent, careless and indisposed to make the best of opportunities today, tomorrow will hold these shortcomings against you, and begin at the breakfast table to make you unhappy.

It will follow you as you go to work, snapping at your heels like a surly dog. And when you confront your task you will feel the sweep of contrary cross-currents and inconstant squalls, ready at the first drop of an ugly word to make you thoroughly miserable.

It is too late now for regrets. You have lost a day and are slipping down hill, while the "still small voice" is calling in your ears to be steady, dutious and thoughtful of your future.

Thousands of light-headed, variable young men and women have missed their goal through their unconcern of tomorrow.

Instead of looking forward, sharpening their wits, keeping their vision unclouded, and giving each hour the best that is in them, they play fast and loose with today, and thereby misstep with the progressive and fall behind.

Though they rail against the Fates, which they feel will bring them the frown of tomorrow, they shun helpful faith and courage, forget their prayers and slip hopelessly down and down to the yawning abyss of despair, too weak to rise or turn their faces toward the still smiling countenance of Hope.

"Out of the Darkness"

By CHARLES J. DUTTON

NEW GAZETTE SERIAL

to Start Jan. 19

We knew that whiskey running from over the Canadian border would in time lead to other crimes which, like the secret traffic which produces them, would be cloaked with much mystery; and we have been expecting one of the clever writers of detective fiction to seize some of these incidents and make them the basis of a stirring novel. Here it is, true to expectations, on time and brimming over with exciting episodes.

We doubt not that the main facts of this stirring tale were taken from life, for they fit very closely into accounts that have appeared in the news of the day. They fit almost identically into the case of one particularly big conspiracy, with attendant robberies and murders, which was uncovered in the northern part of the state of New York. If the authorities have not yet unravelled all the details of that case and apprehended all the guilty parties, it is because they have not had the assistance of such an astute criminologist as the hero of Mr. Dutton's story, "Out of the Darkness". The foundation of facts makes this a better story than if it had come entirely from the author's imagination; and we recommend all secret service men and police authorities to study the unique methods of this detective.

Gazette Readers Will Find

This a Different Kind of a Story

This story contains a suggestion for obtaining confessions that you will feel is a decided improvement on the old "third degree" methods. We are not going to spoil the pleasure you will get from the reading by revealing it in advance, but we will volunteer a few of its interesting phases.

The detective was called in to solve what appeared to be a simple case of burglary. He quickly found that it involved something more important. In the midst of his investigations a mysterious murder occurred.

At the inquest called on the scene of the killing, one of the chief witnesses also was murdered, in the presence of a hundred people, and no one knew who committed the deed.

Evidence disappeared and clues led astray in a manner almost as mysterious as the crimes. The detective was baffled, but only for a time. Instead of the old-fashioned grillings, quizzings, and possibly more brutal methods which every criminal expects and prepares himself to meet, the clever criminologist staged a scene in which he worked upon the superstitions and fears of the guilty party.

The result was surprising and brought a confession from a most unexpected source. Even if you are a practical follower of detective stories and one who reads them in order to match your wits against the author's, we doubt if you will be able to guess the solution of this mystery.

Charles J. Dutton is a young writer who is able to produce that rare thing, a new ending in detective fiction. He is original in other respects, and his super-detective is likely to become as famous as Sherlock Holmes, Craig Kennedy, or any of the other well known scientific investigators, for the simple reason that he is so different.

FASHION COMMENDS TAFFETA FOR WEAR BETWEEN SEASONS

SPRING lines of apparel for juniors and the younger girls do not reveal that any definite changes in the styles have been introduced. But there are new fabrics, new color schemes and new details of decoration that are interesting, and for wear between seasons and in early spring, there are many frocks of dark taffeta and of taffeta combined with crepe de chine. Many of these frocks have slender waists and bouffant or ruffled skirts.

Either crepe de chine or taffeta will serve for the pretty and practical frock shown in the illustration. It is a slip-on model that fastens with hook and eye on each shoulder. The sleeves are lengthened by bands joined to them with a piping of covered cord and the neck and shoulder openings are finished in the same way. The needlework decoration on the skirt and bodice—at the front—is done in colored silk floss and the belt of the material is plain. Some of these dark taffeta frocks are finished with scallops at the bottom of the skirt and sleeves—in each scallop a gay butterfly is embroidered and one of them finds a resting place near the left shoulder.

Party frocks for these younger girls are made of crepe de chine with plaited panels introduced at the side of the skirt and in the bodice. The skirt panels hang below the bottom of the skirts, in the manner of grown-up styles. White fur is a favorite trimming and girdles of ribbon, or of the material made of braided folds, usually finish a moderately low waistline. Sleeves are short and necks are round. Cotton crepes may be counted upon for spring, in solid color and printed effects, also ratine and ginghams to make frocks for hard, everyday wear. Crepe weaves, in printed silk, are to be featured for children, including little folks and half-grown girls.

Pretty Things that are made at Home

ALMOST every woman has an eye for beautiful needlework. It is an old fashioned, feminine accomplishment and nothing is better worth while doing than the making of adornments and furnishings for the home or for personal use. Men admire, especially, expert needle craft, and similar accomplishments, in their women folk—and every season brings in new and ingenious creations that are soon broadcast by clever copyists everywhere.

A few new pieces are pictured here, leading off with a small and convenient work box in a new shape and having a novel arrangement of its fittings. It appears at the left of the illustration and reveals a small round box, covered with brocaded silk or ribbon, and mounted on a covered disk of cardboard that is bound with narrow gold braid. This gold braid forms straps for supporting papers of needles, a thimble, spools of thread and any other small fittings that are held to the outside of the box. Three small spools of heavy silk, in colors likely to be needed, are strung on a silk cord at one side. The inside of the box will carry darning cotton, a small pair of scissors, a tape line and other fittings and the box is enclosed by a larger box, also covered with brocade and finished with gold braid, which forms a cover for the work box. Black and gold brocade is handsome and very practical for these boxes and rose color and old blue are popular colors.

A collar bag, shown at the top of the picture, is convenient and slightly for carrying men's collars. It has a shallow round box of pasteboard as a foundation, lined with plain satin and is covered by a wide strip of satin or ribbon pulled on at the bottom. A fancy braid, set on at the top of the foundation box, forms a satin puff about the side and a flat gold braid, let in a casing near the top, closes the bag.

THE FOXES

Daddy Fox was devoted to Mother Fox. He had brought her food and had seen that she had eaten it at the time when her mind was on the little baby foxes.

When the little baby foxes were very, very young, Mother Fox was along with them because she wanted to be quite alone with them at first so she could whisper to them some mother fox secrets.

Mother Fox had three dear small children and was very proud of them. They had been born in the good old homestead in a hollow tree.

They were quite blind when they were born and they were black in color.

But their helplessness only made them more appealing and wonderful to Mother Fox.

"You will grow up to be such beautiful foxes," Mother Fox said to them as they dreamed and slept.

She did not want them to become conceited, but she liked to talk to them and tell them how she loved them, and they could tell by the sound of her voice and by her sweet ways with them that she loved them.

Mother Fox believed in telling her little ones how much she cared for them because she thought it would make them want to be worthy of all those splendid things she thought of them.

And their daddy thought the same way, too.

"Yes, and you will want to go hunting for mice and other small, delicious animals."

"You will enjoy insects, too."

"And once in awhile you will have a poultry banquet which will make people very angry."

"But you needn't think of people, for people and their wishes are not so important as foxes and their wishes."

"Your family name is that of Gray Fox. But you have many cousins."

"There is the Red Fox family. They are far more clever than we are, but in many ways they are like us. They, too, care devotedly for their little ones just as we do."

"The Daddy and Mother Red Foxes love each other all their lives and have so much happiness by being so devoted and fond of each other."

"The Red Fox family care more about having a superior home than we do."

"They often keep the same home for years and years. They have more than one entrance to their home, too, so that if they're surprised at one entrance they get away out of another."

"There are the Alaska Red Foxes, too. They dig nice homes with different entrances for safety, and they, too, make lovely mates and devoted and loving parents."

"In the winter time it is hard for them for they live far North where they have to hunt under difficulties for their food."

"Oh yes, they do not have it so easily."

"Then we have the Silver Fox cousins and the Desert Fox cousins and the Cross Fox cousins."

"And none of us are stupid. We are all very bright, though the Desert Fox family is not nearly so bright as the rest of us."

"Ah, my little Foxes, grow up to be fine strong, beautiful foxes and you will hunt and be happy, and though you may be considered crafty and sly by people, you will be good to each other."

"For such are the ways of foxes. Ah, yes, such are the ways of foxes!"

And Mother Fox called Daddy Fox and asked him if he didn't think the children were very beautiful.

And I think you may be able to guess the answer that Daddy Fox gave:

No Wonder He Ran.

Turning a corner at full speed, the boy collided with the minister. "Where are you running to, my little man?" asked the minister, when he had regained his breath. "Home!" panted the boy. "Ma's going to spank me." "What!" gasped the astonished minister. "Are you so eager to have your mother spank you that you have to run home so fast?" "No," shouted the boy over his shoulder, as he resumed his homeward flight, "but if I don't get there before pa, he'll do it!"

Ralph Bacon for Combination No. 3; and Donald F. DuVal for Combination No. 5. William J. Trask is the relief chauffeur. The chauffeurs receive one day off in five.

There are also eighty-six (86) call men in the Weymouth Fire Department; about twenty men to each combination. The call men receive $12 per year as a salary, and 75¢ per hour for services at fires. This is very small pay in comparison to other towns the size of Weymouth for call men in the Fire Department.

The equipment today of the Weymouth Fire Department is as follows: North Weymouth Station: a Knox Combination (Hose and Chemical) Automobile Fire Truck.

East Weymouth Station: a Knox Triple Combination (with Pumping Engine); an Automobile Fire Truck; and a Hook and Ladder Truck with a Ford Tractor.

Weymouth Station: a White Combination (Hose and Chemical) Automobile Fire Truck, and one two-horse drawn Hook and Ladder Truck. This truck will be equipped without doubt with a tractor the coming year.

PROVIDES GOOD HOME FOR SHEEP

Protection From Winds and Dampness First Consideration.

GIVES FRESH AIR IN PLENTY

While Nature Is Generous to Sheep in Matter of Winter Coats, Proper Protection in Winter Is Essential.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD
When it comes to providing her children with warm coats to protect them from the cold of northern winters, nature is most generous, especially with sheep. These animals, more delicate than most, take on a coat in the fall that protects them from the winter weather, but shepherds have discovered that a healthy flock must be provided with shelter against winds and dampness.

Before they were domesticated sheep lived in sections where shelter was abundant. Now that man has taken them from their natural surroundings he should provide for their needs.

Fresh air—plenty of it—is what sheep need to be healthy. But at the same time they need protection from strong winds and must be sheltered in a building that is dry. These needs are met in the modern sheep barn, a good example of which is shown in the accompanying illustration.

It will be noted that one side of the building is open, permitting the sheep to seek shelter when they want it and be free to go outside as they please. The building is set east and west with the open side toward the south. Thus the cold north and west is determined by guess, the requirements of the farmer are first carefully considered and the building designed accordingly. This method permits a considerable saving in money, as the building is large enough for the purpose and there is no waste space in it.

Provided with well-drawn plans the contractor puts up the building exactly as the architect designed it. There can be no mistakes in the building when this method is followed, and the owner gets exactly what he bargained for. Also, with plans a pretty definite estimate of the cost of the materials and the work can be secured from the material dealer and the contractor.

Good buildings cost more than flimsy ones, but when their long life, the saving of labor in caring for live stock and the health of the animals are considered the cost is justified.

JUST CAME TO HIS MEMORY

And Clergyman Felt That It Was His Duty to Impart Important Information at Once.

The sister of a well-known writer tells an amusing story of the first lesson which she and her brother ever received in Roman history.

Among their most loved and honored guests, during their childhood, was a New York clergyman. At times the conversation turned on history, and the sister remembers that, on one occasion, the clergyman asked the boy and girl if they could give him the names of the first Roman triumvirate.

At that period of their existence the name "Caesar" was associated exclusively with an old colored man, whom they often visited, and who lived upon a lonely road in the neighborhood. The children were vastly astonished, therefore, to learn that the name had ever been borne by a more illustrious person than their dusky friend; but they listened entranced to the story of the rivalries of Caesar and Pompey for the empire of the world.

Unhappily, the good doctor could not remember the name of the third triumvir, and the lack troubled him greatly. That night, about two o'clock, the girl was startled by a loud knock on her bedroom door, and the doctor called out:

"Alice, are you awake?"

She replied that she was—as indeed was every one else in the house by that time.

"It's Crassus," said the doctor, and then he returned to his room, greatly relieved.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Aunt Prudence Hecklebury.

Aunt Prudence Hecklebury put little pantalettes and skirts on the table legs in her house years ago, because she did not think it proper for legs to be entirely unclothed. And yet Aunt Prudence Hecklebury has never wished to be entirely out of fashion; she wants it known that she at least knows what the styles are. So, several seasons ago, when short skirts became the vogue, Aunt Prudence reluctantly shortened the skirts on the table legs. Now that long skirts are in once more, she thanks heaven for it, she says; she can ask people in to tea again without feeling embarrassed when they sit down to the table.—New York Tribune.

Rice Production Increased.

While Japan does not produce sufficient rice for the needs of her people who, even after an elaborate banquet, require a bowl or more of their staple food, production has kept pace with the increase of the population. In the early days of the Meiji reign, when the population was 35,000,000, there was 35,000,000 koku of rice produced. This year, with a population of 70,000,000, the crop is estimated at an equal number of koku. The increase in production is due more to improved methods than greater acreage under cultivation.

The Interrupted Story.

As a recommendation of the literary works of a certain popular author may be cited the instance of a man sentenced to electrocution in New York. In the morning he became engrossed in the novel. He hurried his dinner to return to the book, reading rapidly to get to the end of his story before he reached the end of his life. The fatal moment arrived first and as he was led to the execution chamber his keeper told him of the ending incidents of the story.

Made Nickname Famous.

Plato's real name, was Aristocles. The name Plato, which is the Latin form of the Greek Platon, meaning broad, was bestowed on him derisively as a nickname, on account of his broad shoulders. But he accepted it, and made it far more famous than his petronymic.

SOME SMILES

SEEKING THE FACTS

"Don't you think she's gifted?"
"She may be."
"You ought to know. You've just heard her sing."

"Why didn't you ask me if I thought her gifted as a singer? Then I could have answered promptly. I thought perhaps she could do something else."

Too Much Service.

"Walter," said the fussy old gentleman.
"Yes, sir."

"I've made three different attempts to take a dose of medicine in half a glassful of water. Each time I got the water reduced to the right quantity you rushed around and filled up my glass. Stay away from me until I want you."

Disarming Criticism.

"Do you believe campaign orators should enliven their speeches with humorous anecdotes?"

"Certainly," said Senator Snorts-worthly. "After a speaker has told one or two good stories nobody but an exceptionally hard-boiled character would have the heart to heckle him."

Watch That Didn't Vary.

"Henry," said Mrs. Gloomip, at dinner, looking down at her watch, but speaking to Mr. Gloomip on the other side of the table, "my watch hasn't varied a second in a week."

"Remarkable!" said Mr. Gloomip. "How did you get it to vary so little?"

"I broke the mainspring."

Knows Too Much.

"How is Mr. Grabcoin's business career?"

"In what particular?"

"Would it bear a close inspection?"

"I don't know about that, but I dare say Mr. Grabcoin's lawyer is about the last man in the world he'd want to write his biography."

SOME HOPE

"Reggie, do you ever intend to quit smoking cigarettes?"

"Deah boy, why should I?"

"Because if you don't they will kill you."

"Well, when they do deah boy, I'll quit."

The Bucketshop Blues.

To market, to market
To buy a little stock;
Home again, home again
To put my watch in hock.

Nonproductive Arts.

"You lack the creative faculty."

"I make money."

"But you don't create anything that will live—like a poem, a picture, a piece of music."

"I understand—something that will live, but is hard to live on."

The Exception.

"Remember, there is room on top for everyone," said the professor to the graduating class.

"Not in my father's business, sir," spoke up a student. "He paints liberty poles and flagstuffs on skyscrapers."

Qualified.

The County Commissioner—I'd like to recommend you for the job of superintendent of the poorhouse, but what experience have you had?

Mr. Longsuffer—Ever since I've been married I've run a small poorhouse for the benefit of my wife's relations.

His Goal Won.

"You have no ambition," complained his young wife.

"Not now," he replied indolently.

"You never did have any."

"Oh, yes, I did, but I achieved my ambition when I acquired a rich father-in-law."

Might as Well.

"Women demand more liberty."

"Don't they vote and smoke and do pretty much as they please? What more do they want?"

"I understand some of them would like to hoist one foot on a fire plug and talk politics the way men do."

Rural Quietness.

Tourist—Is that a quiet place?

Fisherman—Well, it were, sir, until folks began coming here to be quiet.—London Punch.

Out at Eyebrows.

"Phyllis looked a perfect fright when she returned from that hunting trip."

"Yes, there was six weeks' growth of eyebrow on her face."—Life.

VI—Continued.

Part of the room was clear to our view, though about half of it was shut off from us by the very king of all Christmas trees, glittering with dozens and dozens of candles, sumptuous in silver, sparkling in gold, and laden with Heaven alone knows how many and what delectable enticements. Opposite the Tree, his back against the wall, sat old Bob, clad in a dress of state, part of which consisted of a swallow-tail coat (with an overgrown chrysanthemum in the buttonhole), a red necktie, and a pink-and-silver liberty cap of tissue-paper. He was scraping a fiddle "like old times come again," and the tune he played was, "Oh, my Liza, po' gal!" My feet shuffled to it in the snow.

No one except old Bob was to be seen in the room, but we watched him and listened breathlessly. When he finished "Liza," he laid the fiddle across his knee, wiped his face with a new and brilliant blue silk handkerchief, and said:

"Now come de big speech."

The Honorable David Beasley, carrying a small mahogany table, stepped out from beyond the Christmas tree, advanced to the center of the room; set the table down; disappeared for a moment and returned with a white water-pitcher and a glass. He placed these upon the table, bowed gracefully several times, then spoke:

"Ladies and gentlemen—" There he paused.

"Well," said Mr. Simeon Peck, slowly, "don't this beat hell!"

"Look out!" The Journal reporter twined his sleeve, "Ladies present."

"Where?" said I.

He leaned nearer me and spoke in a low tone.

"Just behind us. She followed us over from your boarding house. She's been standing around near us all along. I supposed she was Dowden's daughter, probably."

"He hasn't any daughter," I said, and stepped back to the hooded figure I had been too absorbed in our quest to notice.

It was Miss Apperthwaite.

She had thrown a loose cloak over her head and shoulders; but enveloped in it as she was, and crested and epauletted with white, I knew her at once. There was no mistaking her, even in a blizzard.

She caught my hand with a strong, quick pressure, and, bending her head to mine, said in a soft whisper, close to my ear:

"I heard everything that man said in our hallway. You left the library door open when you called Mr. Dowden out."

"So," I returned, maliciously, "you—you couldn't help following!"

She released my hand—gently, to my surprise.

"Hush," she whispered. "He's saying something."

"Ladies and gentlemen," said Beasley again—and stopped again.

Dowden's voice sounded hysterically in my right ear. (Miss Apperthwaite had whispered in my left.) "The only speech he's ever made in his life—and he's stuck!"

But Beasley wasn't; he was only deliberating.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he began—"Mr. and Mrs. Hunchberg, Colonel Hunchberg and Aunt Cooley Hunchberg, Miss Molanna, Miss Queen, and Miss Marble Hunchberg, Mr. Noble, Mr. Tom, and Mr. Grandee Hunchberg, Mr. Corley Linbridge, and Master Hammersley:—You see before you tonight, in my person, merely the representative of your real host, Mister Swift. Mister Swift has expressed a wish that there should be a speech, and has deputed me to make it. He requests that the subject he has assigned me should be treated in as dignified a manner as is possible—considering the orator. Ladies and gentlemen!"—he took a sip of water—"I will now address you upon the following subject: 'Why We Call Christmas Time the Best Time.'

"Christmas time is the best time because it is the kindest time. Nobody ever felt very happy without feeling very kind, and nobody ever felt very kind without feeling at least a little happy. So, of course, either way about, the happiest time is the kindest time—that's this time. The most beautiful things our eyes can see are the stars; and for that reason, and in remembrance of One star, we set candles on the Tree to be stars in the house. So we make Christmas time a time of stars indoors; and they shine warmly against the cold outdoors that is like the cold of other seasons not so kind. We set our hundred candles on the Tree and keep them bright throughout the Christmas time, for while they shine upon us we have light to see this life, not as a battle, but as the march of a mighty Fellowship! Ladies and gentlemen, I thank you!"

He bowed to right and left, as to an audience politely applauding, and, lifting the table and its burden, withdrew; while old Bob again set his fiddle to his chin and started to scrape the preliminary measure of a quadrille.

Beasley was back in an instant, shouting as he came: "Take your partners! Balance all!"

And then and there, and all by himself, he danced a quadrille, performing at one and the same time for four lively couples. Never in my life have I seen such gyrations and capers as were cut by that long-legged, loose-jointed, miraculously flying figure. He was in the wildest motion without cessation, never the fraction of an instant still; calling the figures at the top of his voice and dancing them simultaneously; his expression anxious but polite (as is the habit of other dancers); his hands extended as if to swing his partner or corner, or "opposite lady;" and his feet lifting high and flapping down in an old-fashioned step.

"First four, forward and back!" he shouted. "Forward and salute! Balance to corners! Swing partners! Gr-r-rand Right-and-Left!"

I think the combination of abandon and decorum with which he performed that "Grand Right-and-Left" was the funniest thing I have ever seen. But I didn't laugh at it.

Neither did Miss Apperthwaite, at my side.

"Now do you believe me?" Peck was arguing, fiercely, with Mr. Schulmeyer. "Is he crazy, or ain't he?"

"He is," Grist agreed, hoarsely. "He is a stark, starin', ravin', roarin' lunatic! And the nigger's humerin' him!"

They were all staring, open-mouthed and aghast, into the lighted room.

"Do you see where it puts us?" Simeon Peck's rasping voice rose high.

"I guess I do!" said Grist. "We come out to buy a barn, and got a house and lot fer the same money. It's the greatest night's work you ever done, Sim Peck!"

"I guess it is!"

"Shake on it, Sim."

They shook hands, exalted with triumph.

"This'll do the work," giggled Peck. "It's about two-thousand per cent better than the story we started to git. Why, Dave Beasley'll be in a padded cell in a month! It'll be all over town tomorrow, and he'll have as much chance fer governor as that nigger in there!" In his ecstasy he smote Dowden deliriously in the ribs. "What do you think of your candidate now?"

"Wait," said Dowden. "Who came in the cabs that Grist saw?"

This staggered Mr. Peck. He rubbed his mitten over his woolen cap as if scratching his head. "Why," he said, slowly—"who in Halifax did come in them cabs?"

"The Hunchbergs? Where—"

"Listen," said Dowden.

"First couple, face out!" shouted Beasley, facing out with an invisible lady on his akimboed arm, while old Bob saved madly at "A New Coon in Town."

"Second couple, fall in!" Beasley wheeled about and enacted the second couple.

"Third couple!" He fell in behind himself again.

"Fourth couple, if you please! Balance—ALL!—I beg your pardon, Miss stepping nobly and in time to the exhilarating measures. Hamilton Swift, Junior, towed by the beaming old mammy, followed in his wagon, his thin little arm uplifted and his fingers curled as if they held a trusted hand.

When they reached the door, old Bob rose, turned in after them, and, still fiddling, played the procession and himself down the hall.

And so they marched away, and we were left staring into the empty room.

"My soul!" said the Journal reporter, gasping. "And he did all that—just to please a little sick kid!"

"I can't figure it out," murmured Sim Peck, piteously.

"I can," said the Journal reporter. "This story will be all over town tomorrow." He glanced at me, and I nodded. "It'll be all over town," he continued, "though not in any of the papers—and I don't believe it's going to hurt Dave Beasley's chances any."

Mr. Peck and his companions turned toward the street and went silently.

The young man from the Journal overtook them. "Thank you for sending for me," he said, cordially. "You've given me a treat. I'm for Beasley!"

Dowden put his hand on my shoulder. He had not observed the third figure still remaining.

"Well, sir," he remarked, shaking the snow from his coat, "they were right about one thing: it certainly was mighty low down of Dave not to invite me—and you, too—to his Christmas party. Let him go to thunder with his old invitations. I'm going in, anyway! Come on. I'm plum froze."

There was a side door just beyond the bay window, and Dowden went to it and rang, loud and long. It was Beasley himself who opened it.

"What in the name—" he began, as the ruddy light fell upon Dowden's face and upon me, standing a little way behind. "What are you two—snow-banks? What on earth are you fellows doing out here?"

"We've come to your Christmas party, you old horse-thief!" Thus Mr. Dowden.

"How-ray!" said Beasley.

Dowden turned to me. "Aren't you coming?"

"What are you waiting for, old fellow?" said Beasley.

I waited a moment longer, and then it happened.

She came out of the shadow and went to the foot of the steps, her cloak falling from her shoulders as she passed me. I picked it up.

She lifted her arms pleadingly, though her head was bent with what seemed to me a beautiful sort of shame. She stood there with the snow driving against her and did not speak. Beasley drew his hand slowly across his eyes—to see if they were really there, I think.

"David," she said, at last. "You've got so many lovely people in your house tonight, isn't there room for—for just one fool? It's Christmas time!"

(THE END.)

Opposite the Tree, His Back Against the Wall, Sat Old Bob.

Molanna, I'm afraid I stepped on your train.—Sashay All!"

After the "sashay"—the noblest and most dashing bit of gymnastics displayed in the whole quadrille—he bowed profoundly to his invisible partner and came to a pause, wiping his streaming face. Old Bob dexterously swung a "A New Coon" into the stately measures of a triumphal march.

"And now," Beasley announced, in stentorian tones, "if the ladies will be so kind as to take the gentlemen's arms, we will proceed to the dining room and partake of a slight collation."

Thereupon came a slender piping of joy from that part of the room which had been screened from us by screened from us by the Tree.

"Oh, Cousin David Beasley, that was the beautifullest quadrille ever danced in the world! And now, please, won't you take Mrs. Hunchberg out to supper?"

Then into the vision of our paralyzed and dumfounded watchers came the little wagon, pulled by the old colored woman, Bob's wife, in her best, and there, propped upon pillows, lay Hamilton Swift, Junior, his soul shining rapture out of his great eyes, a bright spot of color on each of his thin cheeks.

He lifted himself on one elbow, and for an instant something seemed to be wrong with the brace which was under his chin.

Beasley sprang to him and adjusted it tenderly. Then he bowed elaborately toward the mantel-piece.

"Mrs. Hunchberg," he said, "may I have the honor?" And offered his arm.

"And I must have Mister Hunchberg," chirped Hamilton. "He must walk with me."

"He tells me," said Beasley, "he'll be mighty glad to. And there's a plate of bones for Simpledoria."

"You lead the way," cried the child; "you and Mrs. Hunchberg."

"Are we all in line?" Beasley glanced back over his shoulder. "How-ray! Now, let us on. Ho! Music there!"

"Br-r-ra-vo!" applauded Mister Swift.

CLAPP-BOWER

Braintree, Weymouth, and Quincy friends were in attendance Thursday evening, Jan. 4, at All Souls church, Braintree, for the wedding of two prominent young people of Braintree and Weymouth. The bride was Dorothy Wendall Bower, daughter of Mrs. Frank W. Bower of Braintree, and the groom Augustus Warren Clapp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Clapp of East Braintree, both families being known throughout the South Shore.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Arthur Bower, was attended by her sister, Miss Louise Bower, as maid of honor, Miss Ella McInerney and Miss Pauline Chellis bridesmaids, the latter a cousin of the bride.

The bride was gown in white satin with full court train, her veil of rose point lace and tulle, worn by her mother at her own wedding, made in cap formation, was caught with orange blossoms and the bouquet was of bride roses and white orchids. The maid of honor was in brocade of green, combined with heavy silver brocade, and the bridesmaids in peach with the silver side trains of the same tone following the lines of the gowns.

The ushers included Richard Bower, Edward Bower, Ellsworth Abercrombie, Parker Thompson of Braintree, and Aaron Hobart of Quincy.

The bride is a graduate of Miss McClintock's school on Arlington street, Boston, and the Boston School of Physical Education, while Mr. Clapp is of Massachusetts Agricultural College and was in the service.

SHUBERT THEATRE

The Messrs. Shubert announce the New York Winter Garden's tenth annual revue, "The Passing Show of 1922" for three weeks only, beginning next Monday, Jan. 15, at the Shubert theatre, Boston.

This newest revue from the home of extravaganza, the New York Winter Garden, is in two acts and 26 scenes.

"The Passing Show" has an individuality all its own. This show differs from the others inasmuch that travesties of the leading dramatic successes of the year are a feature of the entertainment. With the coming of each "Passing Show" it has seemed that the limit of bigness had been reached; that all the spectacular wonders had been mobilized and that there was nothing under the sun with which to provide the show for the following season. But the theatregoer does not take into account that the Winter Garden employs a specially organized staff, which is employed the year 'round, in devising and inventing new spectacular features. Besides there is a staff of producers, writers, composers, designers, and dancing experts. There are nearly 600 girls employed in the various shows and they are given employment the year 'round. These girls are all carefully trained singers and dancers. It is a little wonder, then, that each "Passing Show", with the flight of years should produce new and enthralling surprises.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE

"Just Married" coming to Plymouth theatre, Boston Jan. 15, after sensational runs in New York, Chicago, and Philadelphia.

"Just Married" is described as a rip-roaring comedy splash. The author are Adelaide Matthews and Anna Nichols, who gave the stage, "Scrambled Wives" and "Nightie Night".

Vivian Martin, who is featured with Mr. Overman, has been a screen star of the Famous Players during the past five years. Previous to her going into the film drama she was highly successful on the legitimate stage. Some of the plays in which she appeared in Boston with distinction were "Officer 666", "Stop Thief", and "The Only Son". Some of the more important film plays in which she appeared prior to starring in "Just Married" are "The Third Kiss", "The Official Fiancee", "The Innocent Adventure", and "Lousiana". Miss Martin is to continue her screen career along with her appearance in "Just Married". Some little while ago there was formed Vivian Martin Picture, Inc. The first picture made under this connection was "The Song of the Soul".

"Just Married" has a plot abounding with complications that are said to be screamingly amusing. There is a perpetual flow of clever lines.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Weber & Fields themselves, in "United With Shubert Vaudeville" at Majestic theatre, Boston, Jan. 15.

Of all the "teams" that have graced the stage, in vaudeville or musical comedy, drama or burlesque, none is so well known as Weber & Fields—Joc Weber and Lew Fields. There have been many famous names coupled, some dating back many years, including Robson & Crane, Montgomery & Stone, Sothern & Marlowe, Williams & Walker, Fulton & Rock, Booth & Barrett, and scores of others, but it is doubtful if any won the affection and lasting fame as has been accorded Weber & Fields, who will be seen in Shubert Advanced Vaudeville at the Majestic theatre, Boston, for the week of Jan. 15. They have joined forces again to appear in a revue, typical of their old Music Hall successes, and quite appropriately called "Reunited". They also will present a short vaudeville act, changed nightly, and adapted from some of their most famous bits in their old productions. Following their iron-clad rule, they have surrounded themselves with the best supporting company obtainable including Lynn Cantor, Charles T. Oldride, The Ladellas, and "Tulip Land".

APPALLING FIGURES

The estimated losses suffered by all the Allies in the World War, listed under "Killed in action—dead from all other causes", up to the Armistice was 5,124,204. The loss of the Central Powers under the same heading was 2,961,104.

Some of the different national losses are quoted: Russia's loss was greatest 1,700,000; Germany second 1,511,104; France 1,330,000; Italy and Austria-Hungary 800,000 each, British 706,726, United States 58,478, and Portugal 4000.

Figuring four years of war the daily average was 5533 men—in the flower of manhood.

The total loss of all belligerents in dead, wounded, captured, and missing was 31,660,938. Others who died from the effects of fighting add to the total—and the end is not yet. The figures are taken from a book published Jan. 10, 1919. Nick Quad

TWIN SONS

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Callahan of Main street, South Weymouth, are receiving congratulations on the birth of twin sons, born in the New England Hospital on Wednesday, Jan. 3.

WILLIAM H. COWING
Chairman William H. Cowing of the Board of Selectmen died at his home on Webb street Saturday morning. He had been in poor health for a long time, but had been able to attend to his duties up to a few weeks ago. The flag on the Town Office was placed at half staff.

He was born in Weymouth 52 years ago and was a son of Henry V. and Lucinda (Bosworth) Cowing. The Cowing family goes back to the earliest years of the town, and Mr. Cowing was born in the brick mansion on Commercial street, which is more than 100 years old. His birthplace, in which he lived till within a few months, is now the rectory of the Church of the Sacred Heart.

Mr. Cowing was educated here, was graduated at the Boston School of Pharmacy and for more than 25 years, ending with his retirement two years ago, he was a clerk in the store of C. D. Harlow & Co., druggists, Weymouth Landing.

He belonged to Orphans Hope lodge of Masons, and Delphi temple, K. of P.

He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Abbie W. Maynard, and by an infant daughter, Cynthia Elizabeth Cowing; also by two sisters, Mrs. Susan Glover of Brookline and Mrs. Louise Bond of Baltimore, Md.

Funeral services were held at the home Tuesday afternoon, and were conducted by Rev. James L. Dowson, pastor of the First Universalist church. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

The Board of Selectmen and other town officials and delegations from the Masons and Knights of Pythias attended. The burial was at Village cemetery.

Conflagration at Rockland Destroys Business Blocks

The business section of Rockland had a disastrous fire early yesterday morning which threatened all the main street. The Webster and Bigelow blocks were destroyed.

The fire started at 4.25 A. M. and burned until nearly sunset. The Weymouth fire department stood ready to render assistance, but apparatus from Brockton and Abington was summoned and did good service.

In the doomed block were the Knights of Columbus hall, the Farnsworth 5 and 10-cent store, the M. H. Ranney clothing store and the Peterson meat. The Rockland Standard and the Rockland Independent were threatened and will be handicapped in getting out their weekly editions.

Before the arrival of the first piece of apparatus the flames had spread rapidly and were roaring through the K. of C. rooms on the second floor of the Bigelow block.

The flames had gained such headway in a few minutes that the efforts of all fire apparatus was turned to saving the adjoining buildings.

From the second floor of the Bigelow block the flames leaped to the second floor of the Webster block and in seconds that building was a seething mass of flames. Efforts of every available man were turned toward protecting the Rockland Standard Publishing Co. block.

Offices on the second floor of the block were: J. B. Mahan, law offices; S. W. Baker, optician; Rockland and Joan of Arc courts, M. C. O. F.; J. A. Billings, dental offices; Miss Edith Poole, vocal teacher; Dr. Harry Ray, dental offices; D. Perry Rice, real estate and law offices; Christian Science reading room; C. E. Gifford, tailor shop.

There is a 15-foot alleyway between the burning buildings and the Standard block. Considerable water damage resulted in the real estate office of Everett S. Dannon and the shoe store of Damon & McGill, both on the first floor of the Standard block. The Rockland Standard Publishing Co. in the second floor of the building suffered considerable from water damage.

The Congregational church, next south from the burning blocks, was saved from any material damage. The block housing the Rockland Independent, situated to the rear of the fire gutted buildings, and slightly north of the Congregational church, saved by hard work of the three co-operating fire departments. Slight water damage resulted in the Independent building.

Plate glass windows in the Gladstone and Lincoln blocks, directly across the street from the Bigelow and Webster blocks were cracked by the intense heat. Within 100 yards of the blaze the heat was blistering hot. At a short distance further the temperature was hovering around the zero mark.

Apparatus and fire fighters were covered with icicles hanging from their clothing. Several narrowly escaped bad burns and several were singed by the terrific heat.

The loss is estimated at $150,000.

MOOSEHEART PICTURES

Weymouth lodge of Moose, assisted by the Women of the Mooseheart Legion, have planned the showing of moving pictures of Mooseheart, the wonderful vocational school for the orphan children of Moose-dom, to be given at Odd Fellows Opera House on Lincoln's Birthday, Feb. 12. In connection with the Mooseheart films will be shown Elsie Ferguson in "The Outcast". The proceeds are to go toward the Mooseheart Endowment Fund, which now stands at $121,700. The order is caring for nearly 1,200 children at this institution.—Advertisement.

GAZETTE FEBRUARY CALENDAR

Next week the Gazette Calendar page for February will be printed on page 13 of the Gazette. As this section goes to press on Wednesday afternoon, it is important that advertisements for this page should reach the Gazette office before Wednesday. The February calendar will be similar to the January calendar, and the number of spaces is limited. Any lodge whose date of meeting was omitted, may have the date included free of charge if sent to the Gazette office before Wednesday.

A TRIBUTE

The Department of Massachusetts Women's Relief Corps, has met with a great loss in the transition on Jan. 3, 1923, of its dearly beloved Past President and Counselor, Mrs. Mary F. Hubbard, who served officially six years in the Department.

She endeared herself to the members of our order by her splendid womanly character, friendliness, and amiable qualifications as a leader. She was deeply interested in everything for the benefit of humanity and especially in all patriotic work and love of country.

She was always a prominent factor in the deliberations of important questions arising in the annual Department convention, supporting all measures for the best interests and upbuilding of our order.

Although the "Book of Life" for her is closed, its record of fidelity and usefulness will always survive and serve as a fitting example to be emulated by generations to come.

CARRIE F. LORING,
Department President
Women's Relief Corps of Mass.

DOROTHEA L. DIX TENT

A regular meeting of Dorothea L. Dix Tent was held Thursday with President Nellie J. Loud presiding. She appointed committees for the ensuing year. Delegates and alternates were elected to the Department convention.

Sympathy is extended to Sister Abbie Maynard Cowing on the death of her husband.

TOWN AND VICINITY

—James Dee, the engineer of the steam road roller, died on Monday of cancer of the stomach. He was in his 65th year. Funeral services were held Thursday, the burial being at Fairmount cemetery. The funeral directors were W. J. Dunbar & Son.

—That portable schools are popular these days and it keeps a Weymouth concern busy building them, is evident by the board of the city of Quincy for one on Coddington street, one on Beale street, and a third at Rawson road, the first two to cost $3000 each, the last one $5000 each, to be built by Brooks-Skinner of North Weymouth.

SHIRT SALE

Remick of Quincy announces a markdown sale of shirts this week, "the best value shown for years." There are nine grades which sell from $1.15 to $6.95.

LARGE WEEKLIES

Reference was made recently to the fact that the Weymouth Gazette was one of the largest weekly newspapers in the United States—one of 400 to print twelve pages every week, and probably one of 25 to print sixteen pages or more every week. Since then the Publishers Auxiliary with a national circulation has continued its search and on Dec. 30 reported as follows:

The Auxiliary takes pleasure in presenting in this issue the total list to date of country weeklies which regularly publish twelve or more pages every seven days. We have gathered the list as carefully as possible, but do not believe that it is anywhere near complete. The list numbers 398. Various authorities estimate the number of country weeklies in the United States at somewhere around 13,000.

Our list shows that the percentage running to twelve pages is practically .036. The are, beyond question, quite a few more which we have not been able to uncover, so that it is a reasonable certainty that the grand total would give a ratio of somewhere around four papers in every hundred which are running to the larger size—in our opinion, a wonderful showing.

No other country in the world can begin to equal that showing. Community papers in Europe are small and flimsy excuses alongside of our weekly journals. In England they attain to a dignity that our own papers purposely avoid, the intention of our editors being to make their issues more breezy and "homey".

European papers are class papers; more for the "educated" classes, the so-called "intelligentsia", than are ours. Therefore the country weekly in Europe rarely reaches the size and importance of our own papers.

In the list of larger papers, as presented in this issue, it will be seen that Illinois leads with 47 nominees, Michigan being second with 32 and Iowa running a good third with 20. (Continued on page 3, New York 23, Ohio 20, Kansas 19, complete the list in Massachusetts there are only eight as follows:

Athol Chronicle
Athol Transcript
Greenfield Gazette and Courier
Haverhill Sunday Record
Orange Enterprise and Journal
Old Colony Memorial, Plymouth
Webster Times
Weymouth Gazette and Transcript

The Auxiliary adds:

"Whatever the reactions one may get out of a study of the list one fact remains uppermost—that close to five out of one hundred country editors are publishing a good profit a paper that is not only a credit to themselves, but the town whose date line they carry".

FIREMEN'S BALL

The Gem theatre was christened as a ball room last Friday night, when the Weymouth Veteran Firemen's Relief Association secured it for their 25th annual party. All were delighted with the new amusement place, the floor being excellent, and the seats convenient for dancers and the spectators. However, it was none too large.

Among the guests were chiefs and other firemen from Braintree, Quincy, Hingham, and other towns.

A concert preceded the dancing, and ice cream and cake were served during the evening.

The committee of arrangements included President Everett W. Gardner, Vice President George M. Keene, Secretary B. J. Elkington, Treasurer Walter J. Sladen, and Herman O. Collyer, Allen D. Lennox, J. S. Bacon, Louis Ellis, John W. French, and J. A. Carley.

President Gardner was also the floor director. Prof. Waltz was there in all his glory and there can be no dull moment when he is around. It was a 1 o'clock party.

BURTON HOLMES' LECTURE

The third Travelogue to be given by Mr. Burton Holmes in Boston is on "Unfamiliar Japan". This Travelogue is a delightful departure from well known lectures on that country. It is the story of an artistic and sentimental pilgrimage to the far-away and strange places where Lafcadio Hearn lived and loved and labored.

With Hearn's eldest son, Kazuo, as fellow pilgrim, Mr. Holmes followed step by step, the literary trail along which that perfect master of prose toiled onward towards world-wide recognition. Mr. Holmes will give "Unfamiliar Japan" at Symphony Hall this evening and tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon.

SNOW WELL HANDLED

Supt. of Streets Johnson is being complimented on all sides for his efforts to make the streets of Weymouth passable after the frequent snow storms, rains, and thaws this month. All the main streets have been in excellent condition so that automobiles could be easily and safely operated. Weymouth was a pioneer in plowing or leveling the snow, and even Quincy admits that Weymouth is ahead in this work. This Street department has been put to a severe test this winter, and there can be no adverse criticism of the manner in which the work has been done.

MONDAY CLUB

Again the program of the Monday Club last Monday was greatly enjoyed by all who attended and was another of the very fine series of entertainments arranged for the club season. After the customary opening exercises and reports the attention of the members was called to the need of feeding the birds this winter season if we are to save the lives of many of our little feathered friends.

President Mrs. Libby reported the appointment of Mrs. Alice Pierce Jewell to speak briefly at the Jan. 25 meeting of the Old Colony club on the means used by the Monday club to carry on successful work.

Mrs. Fred Alden, chairman of the executive committee, then took charge of the afternoon program, consisting of violin selections by Masters Torrey and Litchfield and a costume travel talk "Through Syrian Streets and Doorways" by Mrs. Mary Parker Dunning. The violin duet selections which were given before the talk and during an intermission were most attractively rendered and thoroughly enjoyed by the audience.

Mary Parker Dunning needs no introduction to a Weymouth audience not only having lived in East Weymouth at one time but having given several of her travel talks here on previous occasions. The wife of a professor whose research work has taken him to many parts of the world Mrs. Dunning has had an unusual opportunity to learn of the customs and lives of the people of many other lands in an intimate way not possible for the ordinary tourist.

Mrs. Dunning appeared in three costumes during the course of her lecture, that of a woman of Bethlehem, that of a woman of Romarra, and finally in that of a woman of a Turkish harem. Explaining the meaning and interesting points concerning each of these costumes, the speaker had the faculty during her talk of sinking her personality into that of the part she was portraying and bringing to her audience vivid picture, and the spirit of that interesting land.

And throughout she gave many amusing and humorous incidents, such as the decorating of a Ford with the blue glass beads used on the animals and worn by the natives themselves to keep away evil.

After telling of the difficult landing at Jaffa, the speaker gave one of her most vivid descriptions of the afternoon when she told of the trip to Jerusalem over the Plain of Sharon. Through her words the members could picture this wonderful green plain, carpeted with the scarlet lilies of the field, and with pastoral scenes not greatly changed since the days of Christ.

Again and again she brought home the realization of the very different status of the women in these countries, and the insignificance and even the tragedy of girl babies, while boy babies were the greatest gift and honor possible. Even Mrs. Dunning was made to feel the position of woman there, always being given a position secondary to that of her husband. The speaker touched on the strange contrasts between the old and new in this land, donkeys and camels, Fords and railroads. The military railroad from Cairo to Jerusalem is a big step forward and will make the Holy Land much more accessible than in the past.

Another realistic description was the trip to Damascus and the visitor's first impression of that ancient city from the heights—a pearl surrounded with emerald. But nearer approach proved that the city was not in the least like a pearl; in fact it is one of the dirtiest and at the same time one of the most interesting in the world.

Mrs. Dunning had the privilege of visiting the harem of a very wealthy man and told of her efforts to understand the viewpoint of the first of his four wives; at the same time trying to give her insight into the status of women in western lands, but all in vain, for neither could understand the viewpoint of the other in the slightest degree.

Concluding with a bit of description of the Garden of Gethsemane, Mrs. Dunning left her audience with the feeling that they had, through her powers of description gained a very realistic impression of the land of Syria.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Feb. 5 in East Weymouth Congregational church when a dramatic reading will be given.

Out of the Darkness

By Charles J. Dutton

A mystery story of breathless interest, in which evidence disappears in a most unaccountable manner and clue after clue leads astray or ends in a baffling enigma.

When one of the chief witnesses at an inquest is murdered in the presence of a hundred people and no one knows who did the deed, even the astute criminologist who is ferreting out the mystery is baffled. But only for a time. He solves the murder and brings the story to a climax that even the most clever and discerning reader is unlikely to foresee.

"Anything To Wear" Motto of Russian Boys Who Face Death from Lack of Clothes

"Anything to wear" will be the motto of these three Russian boys during the coming winter months. Their condition is typical of that of millions of little Russian children, most of whom have come through the summer without shoes and seldom with more than two garments. And they face the prospect, according to reports which field workers of the American Relief Administration have made to Herbert Hoover, head of the organization—of being unable to go out doors to the A. R. A. kitchens which have fed them warm meals for a year or more. As fuel is almost impossible to get, most of the homes will be heatless, adding to the peril the children face, say the reports, if they try to go out in this scanty clothing they will be exposed to illness and death from the elements.

The Russian winter is as severe as that of the northernmost United States and Canada, and this has made the problem doubly pressing, for the Russian markets have little clothing available, and the supply that is for sale is held at prices far above the reach of the average workman. Overcoats cost more than a year's salary. Some of the organizations allied with the American Relief Administration have sent clothing for distribution in Russia, but these contributions, big as they are, have been "only a drop in the bucket".

To overcome these conditions, the American Relief Administration has initiated a Clothing Remittance system operating in every way like the now famous Hoover Food Remittance. The Clothing Remittance costs $20, and each clothing package contains sufficient material for a suit or dress and four suits of underwear for man or woman or two children. The items include 4 2-3 yards of 56-inch 20-ounce dark blue wool cloth; 4 yards of 36-inch black cotton lining; 8 yards of 27-inch flannel; 16 yards of unbleached muslin; and buttons and thread to make up the garments. When the money is received at A. R. A. headquarters, 42 Broadway, New York, delivery of packages purchased without designated consignees, will be distributed among the most needy cases, many of which are beyond description.

Delivery of clothing package is undertaken to any given address in Russia. The sender receives a direct receipt from the Russian who gets the clothing.

J. W. Snow, 78 Chard street, East Weymouth, says: "I strained my back lifting some time ago and it affected my kidneys and caused backache. Morning my back was lame and sore and when I raised up quickly a stitch took me in my back. I had to get up that night to pass the kidney secretions and they were highly colored and burned. Report of the Superintendent
A summary of year's work at Weymouth Hospital for May 21, 1922, to Jan. 1, 1923:

"During the past seven months we have treated two hundred seven patients: during May, three cases;
June 31, July 26, August 20, September 25, October 25, November 40,
December 37

Among these there were 75 medical, 45 obstetrical, and 87 surgical cases. The surgical cases include 27 major and 41 minor operations.

Our total number of deaths is eight and still-born two.

We have also taken care of 15 accidents.

The free bed maintained by the Stetson Shoe Co. Foremen's Association has been used by eight patients covering a period of 21 weeks and four days

The hospital has been the recipient of a large number of donations, among which was a part of our office furnishings, scales and bassinette stand for our nursery, a gas stove for the kitchen, a cabbie crib, two wheel chairs, an American flag and three boudoir lamps. The magazines, flowers and fruit which are always being received add much comfort and pleasure to the patients.

We wish to take this opportunity to thank our Visiting Committee and other friends for their interest and co-operation in the welfare of Weymouth hospital.

Respectfully submitted,
M. M. SCHOFFIELD,
Superintendent

THE ADVENTURE OF LIVING
"A very little reflection will show the necessity of this publicity—will show, I mean, that publicity has a real and very important function in the state, and that without it the modern world could not live and progress."

"The newspaper is indispensable to progress and to progress in the right direction. Unless we know, day by day, what people are doing in our nation, in our town, in our village we should be like men wandering about in the dark, and we should find it far more difficult than we do now to obtain the co-operation of others for worthy objects."

"We should fall also to get that encouragement, moral, intellectual, and social, which is obtained by knowing that others are thinking the same thoughts and entertaining the same aspirations that we are. It is good to know of the righteous work that is being done by others."

"It is good to know, within certain limits, the evil that is being done under the sun, in order that we may lay our plans and bring up our forces to check the evils."

"Without the daily report of the world's doings, good and bad—which is the modern newspaper—we should be for the most part, be blind and deaf, and if not dumb, at any rate hardly able to speak above a whisper."

"The Adventure of Living" by J. S.
Strachey, editor of London Spectator.

JOHN L. BEAN
The funeral of John L. Bean, former president of the South Weymouth Improvement Association and the Pond Plain Improvement Association and a former director of the Boston Catholic Cemetery Association, took place last Friday at his home, 220 Pond street. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at the Church of St. Francis Xavier by Rev.
Dennis P. Crimmins. The musical part of the mass was sung by the choir under the direction of Miss Mary Cullinane.

There were many handsome floral remembrances, including a standing wreath from the Women's Guild of the Church of the Holy Nativity South Weymouth; a mound from the Boston Catholic Cemetery Association, a spray from the Pond Plain Improvement Association and a spray from the Ladies Auxiliary of the Pond Plain Improvement Association.
Burial was in old St. Mary's cemetery
Dorchester.

The bearers were the following members of the Pond Plain Improvement Association: Leland A. Winchenbach, president, William H.
Taylor, Emery E. Welch, Guy W. C.
Hart, Arthur L. Negus, and D. Frank Daly.

Mr. Bean had been a resident of South Weymouth for 13 years and was in the real estate business. He was a son of the late Nicholas Bean of Boston, who served in the Boston
City Council and Massachusetts Legislature in the sixties. Mr. Bean is survived by his wife, Mrs. Minnie Bean, and a brother, Edward L. Bean of South Quincy.

quets were also presented to the installing officer and to the new president, Mrs. Warren.

nizations of Weymouth and of the Quincy auxiliary were guests.

WIRELESS TRANSMITTER
"Newspaper advertising is the realtor's wireless transmitter. Newspaper advertising is the realtor's ground floor show window. Newspaper advertising is to the realtor what fertilizer is to the agriculturist."

"Newspaper advertising is to the realtor what the little building in back of the big factory is—namely, the power house."

"Newspaper advertising multiplies your voice a million times, which is some increase in your sales staff, without much increase in overhead."

"Advertising will make the small realtor bigger. It will make the big realtor bigger still."

"Advertising will make known and popular, the unknown or little known realtor."

"Advertising will glorify the property and magnify the firm name.
Advertising is the strongest spotlight in the world."

ADVERTISING
The Rockland Standard says that
John D. Bogart of the Brockton Times is a good dinner speaker and he told the Rockland Retail Merchants many facts about the matter of advertising at their meeting last Monday night. There are too many people today who look upon advertising as an expense. It is nothing of the kind. It is a business investment pure and simple and any man who believes he can do a successful business without it is fooling himself.

Mystery Calling to Mystery

Out of the Darkness

By Charles J. Dutton

John Bartley, the great detective, is again called upon to exercise his powers in solving strange crimes which began with a burglary and led to two murders. All other means failing, he is driven to working upon the superstitions of suspected parties. He employs an ouija board, stages a thrilling scene and brings to his aid the seemingly mystic powers of a so-called medium, with slate writings and materializations. All very terrifying to the criminals and entertaining to readers, who quickly realize that the occult manifestations are merely clever tricks. But they have their effect and wring a confession from a most unexpected source. You will be both charmed and puzzled by this out-of-the-ordinary detective story.

DIRECTIONS FOR COOKING OLD HAMS

A Ham Should Be Thoroughly Cooked Before It Is Eaten.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The United States Department of Agriculture gives the following directions for cooking an old ham, as for example, one that has been home-cured and perhaps hung for a year or two before using.

Soak the ham several hours, thoroughly remove all mold and loose pieces, and rinse well. Cover with cold water, add two tablespoonsful of vinegar, one-half cupful brown sugar, four cloves and one bay leaf, and heat to boiling. The amount of cloves and bay leaf may be increased if desired for larger hams. Reduce the heat to a constant simmer and allow the ham to cook at this temperature at the rate of from 20 to 30 minutes for each pound in weight. Remove from the fire, but keep the ham in the liquor in which it was cooked until cold, then remove from the container and allow to drain.

Take off the skin, score the fat in inch blocks, and cover with a coating of brown sugar and crumbs. Stick with cloves one inch apart.

Bake in a slow oven until nicely browned, basting at intervals with one-half cupful of water and one tablespoonful of vinegar. A ham should always be thoroughly cooked before it is eaten.

MANY HOUSEKEEPERS SAVE IN USING SOAP

Naphtha Helps to Loosen Dirt in Various Garments.

Solutions Will Keep Indefinitely if Covered to Prevent Evaporation—Chipped or Flaked Pieces Are Convenient.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

If the supply of hot water is limited, naphtha soap may be used to good advantage with cold or lukewarm water, for the naphtha helps loosen the dirt in the clothes.

It is not economy to use a poorly made soap, which may contain free grease or an excess of lye, or both. This is sometimes the case with home-made soaps, but need not be so if good directions (for example, those that come with the commercial lye in tin cans) are carefully followed. Making a soap at home may not be good economy where the fat can be sold for use in a soap factory, the United States Department of Agriculture believes, but it may be a thrifty practice where the fat would otherwise be thrown away.

Dirt is removed more quickly and with less danger to silk, wool and all colored and delicate fabrics if the soap is well dissolved in the water, rather than rubbed on. Many housekeepers use a solution or jelly made by heating one pound of soap in five gallons of water, and add enough of this to the water to make suds. A more economical solution, to be used only for white cottons and linens, is made with one-half pound of soap and one-quarter pound of soda to five gallons of water. Soap solutions keep indefinitely, if covered to prevent evaporation. Chipped or flaked soaps dissolve easily in hot water without special heating and are convenient for use in the boiler, the washing machine or for occasional fine laundering. They can be bought economically in barrel lots from laundry-supply houses or manufacturers, and some are retailed in small packages. Cake soap can be rubbed into chips on a household grater; or, if dry, put through a food chopper.

Dye soaps are supposed to clean and dye at the same time. It is safer, however, before using the dye soap, to wash the garment clean with white soap and water. The best results come from dipping a garment in a generous quantity of water to which the dye has been added. The color is always fainter after drying than while the garment is wet. The tinting is usually not permanent and the process should be repeated with each laundering.

PEANUT MEAL QUITE USEFUL

Mixed With Starchy Flours It Makes Very Palatable Cakes, Gems and Hot Breads.

When the blanched kernels of peanuts from which the shells have been removed are used in making oil, the press cake can be ground into meal and used with wheat, corn and similar starchy flours to make very palatable and nutritious cakes, gems and hot breads, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

Profit in Easter Lilies.

A Mississippi farm woman told at a recent short course at the Agricultural and Mechanical college of Mississippi how she had made $150 this year from a single Easter lily given to her nine years ago. With the help and advice of the county extension agent that lily was planted and grown out of doors until, according to reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture, a regular business has been built up, with a steady demand for the lilies.

KEEP WATER VESSELS CLEAN

Coolers Should Be of Such Material as Porcelain or Enamelled Ware—Scald Often.

The greatest care is required to keep household water vessels clean and in good condition. Water coolers should be of some material, such as porcelain or enameled ware, which is easily kept clean. They should be scalded at frequent intervals. The ice, if it comes in contact with the water, should be of known quality. Doubtful ice should be kept from contact with the water. Many families cool drinking water by putting it in the ice box in glass fruit jars or bottles.

Where it is believed or known that the water supply is not pure, a filter should be used. If a filter is used, every precaution should be taken to keep it clean and in good condition. United States Department of Agriculture specialists suggest. An earthenware filter may be cleaned by thorough scrubbing with a brush. Then it should be placed in a pan or kettle of water and boiled. A small piece of wood should be placed under the jar to prevent direct contact with the heated bottom of pan.

Save liquor from sweet pickle, and use in mince meat.

Red gooseberry jelly makes a good substitute for guava jelly.

Potatoes will be dry and floury if the salt is not added until they are nearly cooked.

To remove stains from marble apply a mixture of saleratus and whitening with a damp cloth.

To remove paint from any fabric, no matter how long it has stood, take equal parts of turpentine and ammonia.

If the bottom crust of the fruit tart is rubbed with the white of an egg it will prevent the juice from soaking into it.

When you find a small hole in your aluminum pan, hammer the outside of the pan directly over the hole. It will immediately close and make the pan ready for use again.

M. E. MEN'S CLUB

The regular monthly meeting and supper of the Men's Club of the Methodist Episcopal church of East Weymouth took place on Wednesday night. These members of the club saw to it that the other fellows (and there was a good attendance) had a good supper: Charles H. Chubbuck, William A. Hodges, F. W. Preston Jr., John Ries, and Alvin K. King.

Prof. M. A. Dawber of Boston University was both speaker and entertainer for the evening. On the serious side of the question he told what he thought was the great cause of unrest in the world, immorality, and that education upon proper lines would go a long way towards correcting this evil. He told several interesting stories and then proceeded to illustrate a short talk by means of colored slides on a healthy life. While he was scheduled to speak on "Social Hygiene," because of the great demand he was unable to get the lantern slides. This lecture will be given later. It is hoped to make the March meeting a "father and son" affair, and the annual ladies night comes on Feb. 7.

KNOCKS AND BOOSTS

By Nick Quad

It is reported around in society circles that a number of gallant swains gave white diamonds to an equal number of the fair daughters of Weymouth on Christmas. A good many of the prospective fathers-in-law feel that they should furnish a share of the "black diamonds" during the coal shortage, probably.

Every day in every way Weymouth is growing bigger and better. We might enjoy the New England Winter more if we could get two or three days alike in succession.

Basketball followers await a series between Weymouth A. A. and the now popular Quincy Pros. With Curtin, who is captain of Weymouth and Gannon, captain of Quincy, playing on the teams they captain, such contests would surpass any local exhibitions yet presented. Quincy is undefeated to date and drawing large houses. Their regular lineup, except Curtin, against Weymouth without Gannon, would be a pleasing novelty and extremely popular.

When is the "Rat Man" coming to Weymouth to clean out the rats? People are altogether too indifferent to this most destructive and disease-bearing animal. If everyone in Weymouth would keep a large trap and a small trap set all the time, it would help some.

Since the above item was written we hear that the Boy Scouts have declared war on the rats. Up and at 'em!

ST. JAMES THEATRE

"The Bad Man", in which the Boston Stock Co. will be seen at the St. James next week was a New York success. Holbrook Blinn, who was featured in the play also made a successful tour on the road running in Chicago, Boston, and Philadelphia for several months. Porter Emerson Browne, the author, employs as the hero the former Mexican bandit, Francisco Villa, disguised under the name of Pancho Lopez. The scene is a cattle ranch near the Mexican border in Arizona. Gilbert Jones, an American, is the owner of the ranch and upon his return from foreign service finds that bandits had stolen most of his cattle and that his property is practically ruined.

A NEW story, bringing in John Bartley, investigator of crimes. The talented detective, returned from secret service work in the war, was immediately engaged by the governor of the state to ferret out some facts in connection with an application for a pardon.

It seemed a small case, hardly justifying the employment of such a prominent sleuth, yet it led to something big; to a mystery which, for a time, baffled all of his keen abilities. Those who read a detective story in order to match their wits against the author's, will find a rare treat in this new serial.

Three Days Anniversary North Weymouth Church

Several of the former pastors, and several of the present pastors of Weymouth churches, assisted in the three days celebration of the 50th anniversary of the dedication of the Third Universalist church at North Weymouth this week, Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday. These included a religious service, and banquet, and an anniversary service.

The program for the Sunday morning service was:
The society was fortunate in securing one of the early pastors, Rev. Anson Titus, for the historical address and no one is better acquainted with the early history of Universalism and the North Weymouth church.

Mr. Titus became minister of the Third Universalist church in October, 1878, and remained two years, resigning however in Weymouth and ministering six years in all to the Universalist churches at Weymouth, South Weymouth, and North Weymouth. Afterwards he went to Amesbury, but retired some years ago and resides at 10 Raymond avenue, West Somerville, where he and his wife passed their golden wedding anniversary Dec. 11, 1922. Both are in good health.

An extended abstract of Mr. Titus' excellent address is given below. The musical numbers under the direction of Mrs. Edith Barry, the leader and organist, added greatly to the program; violins, John Henry Towers and Percival Ames; flute, John Leighton; surplice choir, Mrs. Helen R. Stanton, Miss Margaret Dingwall, Miss Mary Hesse, Miss Greta Garfield, Miss Mary Ford, Miss Evelyn Bailey, Mrs. Elizabeth Holbrook, Ralph Wilder, Addison Dingwall, and Russell H. Whiting.

The Christmas decorations of the church were brightened with flowers.

The Historical Address
The subject of Rev. Anson Titus' address was "The Former and the Newer Dedication," and he took his text from Leviticus XXV:11—"A jubilee shall that 50th year be unto you."

He said in part: "It is a golden day for the community; for all the families. There are meanings vivid, illuminating and clarifying. The anniversary is an observance of the events which brought the people together, who had assembled the lumber, the stones, the laborers who had dug the ground and the builders of the house. The building of the building was only a forerunner of the dedication."

The builders had used their hands; but the dedication was the dedication of their labors, plus their minds and hearts; this house, this altar, and these builders themselves were thus dedicated to an honorable service in life. This house better enabled the builders to serve and worship God. Here on the Lord's Day they came—were nourished and nurtured; and their homes were better homes; this community a better community, and North Weymouth became a branch an outpost of the Kingdom of God.

After reference to John Murray, the father of American Universalism; to Hosea Ballou, Thomas Whittemore, he said, before 1830 the Universalist believers in Weymouth divided between Hingham and Quincy. Then Asa B. Wales often secured the minister at Quincy to preach at his house at Weymouth Landing, and soon gathered a company of believers who organized in 1836.

An ardent Universalist in North Weymouth was Henry Cleverly, who died about 1882. About 1853 a parish was organized here, supplied by neighboring ministers. April 1, 1854, a Sunday School was organized with Wilmot Cleverly as superintendent. The church, the Sunday School and conference meetings in "Old Spain" were the movement of young people. These young people increased in years, but their spirits remained young, and today these same people are among the joys and delights of my memories.

This church building having been desired, demanded, hoped for, prayed and labored for—through a series of years, by united sacrifice, by diligent and intelligent labor, was ready for dedication Jan. 23, 1873.

At this time there were 35 families, and an attendance of 80 in the Sunday School. The ministers have been Rev. George W. Whitney, Rev. Anson Titus, Rev. E. A. Perry, Rev. R. T. Sawyer, Rev. B. F. Eaton, Rev. Melvin S. Nash, Rev. H. H. Dix and others.

The early meeting places were in Webster hall now a dwelling at the corner of Bridge and Athens streets, and Harmonial hall in the building now occupied by the North Weymouth Co-operative Bank.

The passing away of your recent minister, Rev. Roger L. Marble in November, 1922, at the age of 28 years, was a sorrowful event in many ways. He was of excellent mind and spirit, and was getting himself ready for a most useful and blessed ministry.

Tributes were paid to several of the founders, Wilmot Cleverly, for many years superintendent of the Sunday School; Elias Beals, the Fisher family, the Pratts, Mrs. Harding, the several Cleverly families, Augustus Beals, Deacon Cram, Messrs Bartlett, Whiting, Sampson, Thomas and others.

Reference was then made to present day problems, which will demand a new order of men. The failure of Paganism, and not the failure of Christianity, was the bottom cause of the great war.

The demands of today among common affairs, are for a nobler and finer order of men and women. A deeper consecration, and devoted dedication of our own selves—right where we are—among the concerns of which we are a portion. The fulfilling of ourselves in God is along this line, and in harmony with the exalted purpose of our life and character.

The Banquet

The attendance at the banquet on Monday evening was limited, every seat at the tables in the vestry being taken. The following menu was served: grapefruit, roast beef and gravy, mashed potato, squash, rolls, coffee, ice cream, and cake. The caterers were Cann and Nightingale, and good service was given by these waiters: Arthur Bicknell, Wilfred Brown, Edward Lincoln, Earl Cann, Carlin Nightingale, Kenneth French.

E. R. Sampson was toastmaster and the speakers were clergymen of Weymouth, Quincy, Hingham, and Rev. E. W. Whipple of Somerville, a recent pastor.

Mr. Whipple congratulated the members of the church on the exceptionally fine spirit manifested, and thought the great promise of the future was for more unity in church life and community life.

Rev. John B. Raddon of Universalist church at Quincy first paid a tribute to Rev. Mr. Marble, the recent pastor. He said there had been a vast change in fifty years and the church looked prosperous. When we best serve man, we best serve God. Victories must be won outside the church.

Rev. William Hyde of Trinity Universalist church was introduced as he dean of Weymouth clergymen, having been the rector for 34 years. He said he was at the 50th anniversary of the First Universalist church of Weymouth was well taken care of by Mary A. Livermore and her husband. He discussed miracles, creeds and symbols, universal salvation and evolution.

Rev. J. L. Dowson of the First Universalist church congratulated the church. The observance of the anniversary was evidence that it was alive. He also referred to miracles, having recently read a paper before the ministers in which he contended that miracles did not exist. He added a tribute to Rev. Mr. Marble.

All united in singing "Auld Lang Syne" and "My Old Kentucky Home."

Rev. E. A. Hoyt brought the greetings of the Universalist church at Hingham and invited all to the centennial (Continued on page 12)

NEAR 'POSSUM ROAST

ONE cold night Grandpa Possum sat beside the stove warming his feet, when little Possy, his grandson, opened the oven door. "Put your feet in, grandpa; they will get a toasty feeling in a jiffy," he said.

Grandpa Possum jumped up. "Close that door!... he cried, in such a cross voice that his grandson looked in wonderment, for Grandpa was never cross to him. "An open oven always reminds me of something that happened to me when I was a young fellow, and I never think about it without shuddering," Grandpa explained when Possy closed the door.

"Oh, tell me about it grandpa! Was it an adventure?" asked Possy.

"Yes, I guess you would call it that, but I call it a very narrow escape."

"Oh, Tell Me About It, Grandpa."

said Grandpa Possum. "I don't like to talk about it, but I will tell you, my son, if you will promise never to open an oven door again when I am around."

Little Possy promised to be very careful about oven doors and Grandpa began his story.

"It was a bright, moonlight night," he said, "and I had run up to the farm to find something for my supper, when all at once I heard noises that made me forget I was hungry, and I ran for the woods. I had hardly reached the foot of a big tree when behind me came men and dogs and the dogs were barking so they sent shivers along my spine, but I managed to get up in the tree and lay flat on a big branch.

"I was all nicely fixed when, what did one of those men do, but reach up with a long pole and knock me off, and somehow I fell into a bag which one man held instead of landing on the ground among the dogs, as I thought I should.

"They carried me off with men shouting and the dogs barking in the most nerve-racking manner and the next thing I knew I was in a kitchen for there was a small hole in the bag through which I could see a little light, what was going on around me.

"Pretty soon I heard one of the men say: 'Put him in the oven; he will be safe there, and, anyway, he may as well get used to it because he will have to stay there quite a long time tomorrow.' And then they all laughed in a way that made me feel very unhappy.

"Then they opened the bag. I was playing dead of course, all the time after they had me in the bag, so they took me by the tail and very roughly tossed me into the oven and banged the door.

"After a while all was still and I began to move about, and the first thing I knew out I rolled on the floor of the kitchen. I had managed to push open the oven door.

"Luckily for me the window was open and out I went and ran for home, but I did not sleep a wink that night for thinking of how near I came to being roasted.

"And that is the reason I can never see an oven door open without a shudder, and would rather warm my feet some other way than by putting them in the oven."

Little Possy was wide-eyed when his Grandpa finished the story. "I'll never open an oven door again," he said. And Grandpa nodded and smiled as he lighted his pipe for a smoke to make him forget the terrible adventure of his younger days.

TELEGRAM ETIQUET

Let no act be done at haphazard.—Marcus Aurelius.

A TELEGRAPHED message is always more formal and more courteous than a telephoned one. For instance, on the occasion of any joyous occasion—a birth in a friend's family, the announcement of an engagement, a wedding, or a birthday anniversary—it is always courteous to telegraph your congratulations, whereas you would telephone your message only where you were extremely well acquainted. The telegram is regarded as a perfectly proper means of conveying condolence following the death in the family of a friend or acquaintance. And, of course, such a message of sympathy should never be conveyed by a telephone message. When sending such telegrams it is best to indicate that you wish to have them delivered by messenger rather than by telephone.

So usual is it for us in sending business telegrams to bear in mind that we have a ten-word limit for the minimum fee that we are prone to attempt to force social telegrams into this ten-word limit, or else we pad them out so that we will make use of all the words to which we are entitled. Often your message is best expressed in only two or three words. Sometimes the single word "Congratulations" is all that is required. Then it would be decidedly in bad judgment to use more.

Needless to say, we dispense with formal introductions and conclusions even in the social telegram. Thus we do not begin with "My dear," or "Dear," nor do we use such expressions as "sincerely" or "truly yours," even when sending a formal message. Always remember that there is nothing private about a telegram and that no message should be sent over the wire that you are not willing to have received by others than the one for whom it is intended. Usually a telegram is urgent in its nature and members of a family would open one when addressed to an absent member. Similarly a telegram sent to a person's business address and received during his absence would be opened by the one who received it.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel

CLARA

CLARA, it may be readily surmised by anyone familiar with Latin, is derived from the adjective meaning bright, clear, or famous. As a musical and ever-charming feminine name it has kept its significance, though the steps of its history are many and devious.

The Romans used the name Clarus as a masculine name and its vogue spread in Europe. St. Clarus is revered as the first Bishop of Nantes in Brittany in A. D., 280. Another Clarus, a native of Rochester, was a hermit near Rouen who was murdered at the instigation of a wicked woman who had vainly paid her addresses to him. The name was then changed to Clair and, combined with a "Saint," named two of the most noted families in the history of Great Britain, besides the various "de St. Clairs" of France. In Britain, it was speedily contracted to Sinclair, and subsequently to Clare, named the County Clare of Ireland, a tract of land presented by Edward I as a wedding present to the son of the famous Red de Clare.

Spanish lore has it that the first Clara known to history was the daughter of Charlemagne, but the real origin seems to have been in Italy where the first Chiara, as the Italians call her, was a devoted disciple of St. Francis and under his direction established an order of women following his rule and called "poor Clares" or sisters of St. Clara. The French call the name Claire. The Breton form is Skleara and Finns have contracted it to Lara.

Clara and its derivatives has been a favorite with the poets whose verse to the lovely maids who have borne the name are almost too numerous and exquisite to permit the selection of one. Tennyson has perhaps written the most charming lyric around the name; everyone is familiar with his "Lady Clara."

If Clara would have the fullest benefits from the name she bears, she must wear her talismanic jewel, the carnelian. This warm-colored stone supplies the contrast to the rather chill, haughty beauty associated with the name. A carnelian gives courage to its wearer and is especially to be desired by one who uses her voice as singer or public speaker, as it insures strength of the vocal organs. Furthermore it protects its wearer from injury, though to dream of it signifies impending misfortune. Tuesday is Clara's lucky day, and five her fortunate number.

Texas has 313 natural gas wells, according to a late report, with an aggregate production of 1,300,000,000 cubic feet each day of 24 hours.

THE ORIGINAL

"It's a very small crib pillow, but it reposes in the place of honor, in a case in one of the great historical museums."

"I can't see anything remarkable about that pillow," remarked one of a group of visitors.

"My dear madam," explained the guide, "it is very valuable. It is Washington's original headquarters."

Interested.

"Would you mind seeing me across the street?" asked the jumpy old gentleman.

"Not at all, brother," replied the corner loafer, as he retained his point of contact with a fireplug. "With that there gait o' yours, I wouldn't mind watchin' you walk a couple o' blocks."

Her Oversight.

The Visitor—Is your oldest sister married—the one who was so proficient in all branches of domestic science?

Philippa—No, nor likely to be. She was so busy fitting herself to be the wife of a good man that she neglected to go after the man.

"How so?"

"A thug with a revolver ordered him to hand out the bank's cash, but he said he couldn't do it unless the thug was identified. This took the fellow so aback he hesitated a moment and was nabbed."

Rough Talk.

"Making any headway with that lousy gal over in Kicker county, Gabe?"

"Naw, might as well stop courtin' her, I reckon. Told me if I didn't stay away she'd shoot me."

"Shoot ye?"

"With an insect gun."

A Better Chance.

"Why did you change doctors, Mr. Betfast? I thought that Doctor Blim was one of the best in the city."

"He said I had six chances in ten to recover," said the race track addict, "and I went to a doctor that offered better odds."

By CHARLES J. DUTTON

NEW GAZETTE SERIAL

Starts This Week

We knew that whiskey running from over the Canadian border would in time lead to other crimes which, like the secret traffic which produces them, would be cloaked with much mystery; and we have been expecting one of the clever writers of detective fiction to seize some of these incidents and make them the basis of a stirring novel. Here it is, true to expectations, on time and brimming over with exciting episodes.

We doubt not that the main facts of this stirring tale were taken from life, for they fit very closely into accounts that have appeared in the news of the day. They fit almost identically into the case of one particularly big conspiracy, with attendant robberies and murders, which was uncovered in the northern part of the state of New York. If the authorities have not yet unravelled all the details of that case and apprehended all the guilty parties, it is because they have not had the assistance of such an astute criminologist as the hero of Mr. Dutton's story, "Out of the Darkness". The foundation of facts makes this a better story than if it had come entirely from the author's imagination; and we recommend all secret service men and police authorities to study the unique methods of this detective.

Gazette Readers Will Find

This a Different Kind of a Story

This story contains a suggestion for obtaining confessions that you will feel is a decided improvement on the old "third degree" methods. We are not going to spoil the pleasure you will get from the reading by revealing it in advance, but we will volunteer a few of its interesting phases.

The detective was called in to solve what appeared to be a simple case of burglary. He quickly found that it involved something more important. In the midst of his investigations a mysterious murder occurred.

At the inquest called on the scene of the killing, one of the chief witnesses also was murdered, in the presence of a hundred people, and no one knew who committed the deed.

Evidence disappeared and clues led astray in a manner almost as mysterious as the crimes. The detective was baffled, but only for a time. Instead of the old-fashioned grillings, quizzings, and possibly more brutal methods which every criminal expects and prepares himself to meet, the clever criminologist staged a scene in which he worked upon the superstitions and fears of the guilty party.

The result was surprising and brought a confession from a most unexpected source. Even if you are a practical follower of detective stories and one who reads them in order to match your wits against the author's, we doubt if you will be able to guess the solution of this mystery.

Charles J. Dutton is a young writer who is able to produce that rare thing, a new ending in detective fiction. He is original in other respects, and his super-detective is likely to become as famous as Sherlock Holmes, Craig Kennedy, or any of the other well known scientific investigators, for the simple reason that he is so different.

SMART COSTUME JEWELRY AND OTHER ACCESSORIES

NOTHING has added more pleasure to the winter season, at very little expenditure of money, than the pretty costume jewelry now having a great vogue. The ingenious, beautiful, sparkling and becoming neck chains, earrings, bracelets, pendants, brooches and the like, all add color, brilliance and "finish" to the costume. The best thing about these pretty trinkets is that they are, in the main, inexpensive and everyone may indulge in a few of them.

Since the return of earrings we wonder that they ever went out of style, they are found to be so becoming. They add something of stateliness to the simplest costume and are shown in endless variety of designs and colorings. They have grown longer, taking on more importance as their vogue increased. A representative pair, of jet and silver, is shown in the picture, together with a three-in-one bracelet of silver having a pendant tassel of silver and pearls.

Ornamental combs, in all sizes, are compelling attention everywhere, but those in the medium size are the most popular. They are shown in many colors of shell set with rhinestones, or with colored stones, and are graceful and handsome.

The bertha, the bandanna kerchief, and the cape collar are items in neckwear that hold the center of fashion's stage. The bertha, as pictured, is often split at the sides, much like the "bib" collar of lace that is said to slenderize the figure. The handsome shopping bags among an exhaustless variety, are shown here, in designs that a pick-pocket would hardly attempt to open. They are wonderfully complete and convenient, with compartments for all the necessities of the shopper.

KNITTED HAT AND SCARF SETS IN VIVID COMPLEMENT TO COSTUME

WE ARE becoming a nation of outdoor enthusiasts. This trend is having a marked influence on our fashions, especially in regard to smart effect in sports apparel. Arbiters of fashion, sensing the need of clothing welcome for style as well as warmth, have solved these outdoor dress problems largely through the medium of knitted outerwear. Due to the splendid achievement of stylists abroad as well as at home, we have come to accept things knitted as an esthetic as well as a practical part of every up-to-date wardrobe.

Particular attention is being directed to the creation of knitted accessories to serve in vivid complement to costume. Especially attractive suggestions are offered in the way of knitted hat sets, these same occupying a very conspicuous place not only in regulation knitgoods departments, but notably among fashionable milliners who this season are carrying charming versions of brilliant scarfs with headwear to match.

For immediate wear the brush wool sets are eminently desirable, for shaggy fur-like woolen effects are the smart note in things knitted this season. Such a set is illustrated here, with, consisting of tam and scarf of brushed wool knitted in plaids of green and red with brown border.

For the advancing spring months perfectly exquisite types knitted of pure silk in solid colors are shown, in which the semi-tam hat presents the trim appearance of a superbly tailored chapeau. The set shown in this picture is navy blue in the original, and artistry of fancy stitch assures its patrician style.

Along with knitted goods some interest is manifest in hand-crochet. The dashing tam shown in this group, with white balls dropping to one side, matched to the white headband and crown insertion, is of appealing style for young girls.

AS IT SEEMS

The Pessimist—It's a cruel world. The more houses built, the greater is the demand for building material, and the higher price which in turn makes for higher rents.

His Friend—Yes, but—
"On the other hand, the fewer houses built, the greater is the demand for houses, and the higher the rents."—Answers.

In Spite of the Critics.
"Absolutely lacking in esthetic principles!" said the artist.
"Vulgar and rapid!" said the parson.

"Lacking in idealism and fundamental ethics!" said the philosopher.
"Rotten!" said the critic.
"Quite so," said the producer.
And the show was the hit of the season.

No Pretense.
"There are no frills about the Gadspurs."
"No?"
"They are just as plain as an old shoe."
"Yes."
"They bought a flivver the other day and, by jinks, they call it a flivver."

DEAD EASY

Bug—What's so hard about making "a trip around the horn?" I could do it all day.

Defiance.
The criminal once shrunk from sight, avoiding noises loud.
He now selects a moonlight night
And brings along a crowd.

A Heavy Stockholder.
"Do you remember the old-fashioned revival where we used to sing, 'Life Is Like a Mountain Railroad?'"
"Quite well," replied Mr. Dubwaite, with a reminiscent smile. "And I used to gather from what the preacher said that Satan was drawing most of the dividends."

In the Air.
Townsend—In the city it's getting worse than the pirates who hold up the rum ships on the high seas.
Streator—Now what's happened?
Townsend—It says here, a gang of small boys, armed to the teeth with sticks, bricks and toy pistols, held up an ice cream truck.

An Old Song.
"I was reminded today," remarked Hank Ippank, "of a song we used to warble in childhood days."
"How was that?" inquired Herb Blurb.

"We moved yesterday and this morning I had to wash my face in a frying pan."

Tested Them.
"Mushrooms, eh! Aren't you afraid to eat those things? How do you know they aren't toadstools?"
"Oh, I know all right. I sent part of the lot to some of my friends yesterday, and this morning none of their names appeared in the obituaries."

The Last Resort.
"Is that all you've got for me and you so much in arrears?" growled the landlord.
"G'wan now an' be satisfied!" snapped the woman with the mop. "Yez wouldn't have got that only me ould man has been an' sold the back doo."

An Error in Calculation.
Host (to guest, a retired doctor). And did you ever make a serious mistake in your diagnosis?
Guest—Yes, one serious one. I once treated a patient for indigestion and she could easily have afforded appendicitis!—London Passing Show.

GOING SLOW
"What has become of Dodge, the speed king?"
"He married several years ago."
"Is he a speed king now?"
"Nope. You can't speed a baby carriage."

Modesty.
"What makes the leaves so red?"
She asked him with a stare.
"They only blush," he softly said.
"To see the limbs so bare."

Mind Reader.
Flapper—What are you thinking about, Sid?
Sid—Well! Something nice, I guess.
"Oh, Sidney, dear, you make me so happy!"—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Not to Her Taste.
"Sorry for poor Helen, but I know she's not the girl to eat her heart out."
"No, thank goodness! She's a vegetarian."

Hymn

Address to society Rev. B. H. Davis

Doxology

Benediction

The words of the original hymn were:

Lift high your songs of joy today.

And swell the anthem loud and long:

Let all the people praise the Lord

And sing a new rapturous song.

And glory to the name of Him

Who out of darkness gathers light

Who made our earnest effort strong.

And turned our weakness into might.

All souls a shelter here may find.

From stormy doubts, and chilling fears,And all in each a love, designed To far outstretch the falling years.

All gathering ills and cares of life

The Faith here taught look upward thru

And high above all earthly strife

Bring universal peace to view.

Then in his Temple praise the Lord,

With anthem loud, in earnest souls,

And send the invitation broad

Where forest waves, and ocean rolls.The society held religious meetings regularly on Sabbath evenings for 20 years or more before the dedication of the chapel, dating back to about 1850.About 1856 the society bought of
E. S. Beals the lot at the corner of Sea and Bridge streets. Ladies were active in the building of the church, raising funds from annual fairs, entertainments, etc.The building committee contracted with Brown & Chubbuck to erect the chapel according to plans proposed and accepted by the society.Among the gifts at dedication were: a new organ costing $500; a clock presented by Mrs. T. F. Cleverly, and a cooking stove by G. W.
Whitten.Settees first used for seats, capacity about 250. Seats were first let at auction for one year and bidding was lively; some went as high as $20, and $300 was realized.A good choir was under the leadership of J. W. Bartlett; Prof. T. F.
Cleverly was organist.Sabbath School was held in the afternoon and preaching services in the evening.

CITIZENS NON-PARTISAN CAUCUS

Editor Gazette-Transcript:

A few issues back there was printed in the Gazette-Transcript a very interesting letter signed "Citizen"
The "cut and dried" action pertaining to the present caucus plan for nominating candidates for town offices, he deplored and wisely asked is it strange citizens refrain from voting when the ballot sheet offers no choice?The result is that more than EIGHTY PERCENT of our voters manifest no interest. This laxity has become so habitual that the annual election appears a farce. Worse, however, this laxity has begotten an apathy which shows itself in all town affairs and is truly lamentable.The time for again nominating candidates is very near. The one-sided caucus will meet and nominate and the same farce be staged.IS IT NOT TIME FOR THIS EIGHTY PERCENT OF OUR ELEC-TORATE SHOULD SPEAK?To open a way for effective action and to put other candidates in the field, for the choice of all voters it is proposed to hold a Citizens Non-Partisan Voters Caucus.If you favor and will help send in your name and street address. No publicity will be given these names but a notice will be sent to each, calling a conference. At this conference, plans, time and place will be fixed for the proposed caucus.
Act now; let your response be in by Monday next. Address and thirty-five of the acts of nineteen hundred and twelve and chapter one

POSTAL SERVICE

Postmaster Roland Baker writes: Service has been defined as a duty required or performed. The post office aims to be of service to all the people. The original function was the carrying of letters from one place to another. To quote Postmaster General Hubert Work, postal service is the transmission of intelligence, the carrying of your written word from your own hand directly and expeditiously into the hands of someone miles away. As years have passed the post office has increased its usefulness and now serves the people in a multitude of ways.

It is now over a year since we asked for your co-operation along the line of early mailing. We thank you for your generous response to our appeal, and we believe that you are convinced that results have been satisfactory and that you will continue in the habit of early mailing. Not only in this movement have we the evidence of your cooperation, but also in other lines. We feel that business men and post office have come closer together than ever before. The business man has clearer conception of what he may expect from the post office and the post office officials understand more perfectly their duties as servants of the public. Moreover, the Boston post office desires to hold what has already been gained during the past year, and our earnest purpose is to make the postal service so efficient that we shall continue to merit the good will of all. Desiring to maintain our present friendly relationship we are mailing to some of our patrons from time to time letters explaining postal matters which we think will be of special interest to you. We sincerely hope that you will give these letters your careful consideration, and that you will find them helpful in your business. We believe that this is one important way in which we may serve you at the present time. We welcome any suggestions which you may desire to make.

PRESS APPRECIATED

Editor Gazette-Transcript: Your desire to co-operate with the Post Office Department through the columns of your newspaper is very much appreciated as the greatest medium for educating the public on postal matter is through the press. Should you desire any detailed information on any specific regulation of the postal service I shall be only too glad to furnish this information upon request.

Thanking you again for your co-operation, I am Very truly yours,
C. L. HAMMOND,
Acting Asst. Postmaster

The Gazette-Transcript is indebted to Postmaster Hammond and to the superintendents of the Weymouth post offices for data for this page.

MAKE GOOD RABBIT SAUSAGE CAKES

Jack Rabbits Supply Basis for Many Excellent Dishes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Jack rabbits are troublesome pests, but they provide the basis for several excellent dishes. The United States Department of Agriculture recommends the following recipe for cooking them in the form of sausage cakes.

Clean the rabbits and wash in salt water (1 tablespoonful salt to 1 quart water) to draw out the blood. Cut the meat from bones and remove the thick membranes covering back and thighs. Pass the meat through a meat grinder twice and weigh it. To 5 pounds of meat take 2 onions, finely minced (if desired onions may be left out of cakes, and sliced, browned and served with the sausage cakes), 2 tablespoonfuls salt, 2 teaspoonfuls pepper, 3 teaspoonfuls powdered sage, 1 to 2 bay leaves, powdered or broken in small pieces, pinch each of thyme and allspice, 8 to 12 tablespoonfuls of finely crumbed dry bread or cracker crumbs, 2 eggs beaten together and ½ to 1 cupful of rich sweet milk. (If pork flavor is desired, for each 4 pounds of rabbit meat allow 2 pounds of fat pork.) Knead well, make into little cakes, fry in deep grease until nicely browned. If desired, omit the spices and onion and form the finely-ground rabbit meat into small flat cakes; sprinkle with salt and pepper and fry. Pour off excess of pan grease, add boiling water and make stock for gravy.

CANDIED GRAPEFRUIT PEEL MAKES CENTER

Also Serves as Substitute for Citron in Baking.

Two Methods of Cooking Are Outlined, One With Water Alone, the Other With Lime Water—Place in Air-Tight Jars.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Candied grapefruit peel makes an excellent center for chocolates and also serves as a substitute for citron in baking, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. Many firms now use candied citrus products instead of citron in making mincemeat. Wash the fruit and remove the peel, leaving as little of the white material attached to the fruit as possible. The peel can be more readily detached if the fruit is dipped in boiling water for a few minutes. If peel from fruit from which the juice has been pressed is to be used, the segment walls can be cleaned away with a knife. Not all of the peel from this class of material can be saved, but usually enough is recovered to make it pay. Cut the peel into strips 2 inches long by ¼ inch wide, into disks ½ inch wide, or into squares of the same size.

There are two methods of cooking the peel. In one method water alone is used; in the other a preliminary treatment with lime water is given. Under certain conditions the finished product has a slightly tough layer at the surface, the remnant of the outer surface of the original peel. This toughness can be overcome by using lime water, although as a rule results almost as good are obtained by using water alone. Only the clear lime water should be used for this purpose. never milk of lime. Lime water contains only a few tenths of 1 per cent of lime in solution and will not injure the peel. Place the prepared peel in a kettle and cover it either with a mixture consisting of two parts of water and one part of clear lime water or with water alone. Cover and boil for half an hour. Pour off the liquid, again cover with water and boil for half an hour. Do not use lime water after the first cooking. Repeat the boiling with fresh water each time until a piece of the peel when removed and cooled has about the bitter taste that is desired in the finished product. The final product will be a little less bitter than the peel at this stage as some of the bitterness disappears on further cooking. Usually three treatments are sufficient when a rather bitter flavor is desired. Five or six treatments produce a mild-flavored peel; more than that number give a product without much grapefruit flavor. When the desired flavor is reached, pour off the water and drain the peel; the excess of water can be removed by gentle pressure.

To candy the peel prepare a sirup using equal parts of granulated sugar and water, and cover the peel with it. Boil very slowly for an hour or so, and allow the peel to remain in the sirup overnight, or longer if convenient. Finally, boil again until the sirup becomes thick, stopping the cooking at the usual end point for jelly making; that is, when the substance flakes or sheets from the spoon or the temperature on a candy thermometer is about 219 degrees F. The peel is satisfactory even if cooking is stopped before it reaches this point; overcooking tends to make the peel hard. While hot, drain the sirup from the peel as completely as possible, shaking repeatedly to remove the last drops. Now roll the peel in powdered sugar, separating any pieces that stick together. Cool and allow to remain in the air for several days to dry out.

Place the dry peel in air-tight jars or cans, where it will keep for months.

Marble Slab Is Useful.

A small marble slab is useful in the kitchen for cutting onions, garlic and other things as it is easily cleaned and does not retain the odors.

PLAN FOR MAKING SCRAPPLE

Where It Cannot Be Used While Fresh It Should Be Canned by Means of Steam Cooker.

If scrapple is made in a larger quantity at hog-killing time than can be used fresh, it should be canned by means of the steam pressure cooker. When wanted the scrapple can be removed from the can, sliced and browned in the frying pan. Small quantities of scrapple may be made from pork bones and left-overs or parts not otherwise utilized when cutting up a hog. The cleaned head, feet, all bones cut out of fresh or cooked meat with what meat clings to them, the liver and heart, may be utilized for making scrapple. Put over the fire in cold water enough to cover, bring to a boil, and cook until meat falls from the bones. Strain the resulting liquid or soup from the bones. If too greasy, part of the fat may be skimmed off. Carefully pick out all bones from the meat. Then chop the meat fine and return to the soup. Put over the fire again and bring to a boil. Season to taste with salt and pepper. To this boiling soup and meat add slowly under constant stirring, to prevent lumpiness, a mixture of cornmeal, buckwheat flour, and wheat middlings or farina until it is as thick as mush. The mixture is in the proportion of two parts of fresh cornmeal, one part of buckwheat flour and one part of clean wheat middlings or farina. Stir vigorously while the scrapple is allowed to cook for from ten to fifteen minutes. Remove from fire and pour hot into pans to set.

All Around the House

Kerosene oil will remove rust from irons.

Do not boil acid fruit in aluminum pots or the pot will turn black.

To clean stains from steel knives rub them with powdered bath brick.

A pinch of baking powder added to vegetables while cooking will keep them green.

The water in which meat has been cooked is an excellent foundation for a good soup.

A cut potato or apple kept in the cake box will keep cut cake fresh for several days.

Cinnamon gives a variety to the flavor of apple sauce when it becomes monotonous in the menu.

Add a little gasoline to the water before scrubbing white paint and it will make the work easier.

Left-over fruit may be placed on slices of cake and garnished with whipped cream for a delicious dessert.

Salt meat should be put into warm water and brought to the boiling point; afterwards simmering, as in the case of fresh meat.

Remove the rust from the inside of the oven before it begins to eat into the metal. This may be done with a coarse sandpaper.

Beaded bags may be brightened by sponging them with a little gasoline. Avoid too much moisture, as the threads are liable to shrink.

The hot school lunch is a practical, common sense way of making it easier for boys and girls to learn; more important, it builds up stronger bodies.—New York State College of Agriculture.

Scalded milk is best prepared by heating in a double boiler until the milk ruffles up around the edges. If placed directly on the stove the milk will boil and not scald.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

VISIT TO ZOO

"I must tell you about my visit to the zoo," said Billie Brownie to Witty Witch.

He had gone to call on Witty Witch in her cave and Witty wanted to know all about his latest trip.

You know Witty Witch was so named because in the first place she was a witch and in the second place she was very funny and witty.

Then, too, she liked that name because she said it was the kind of a name which wouldn't perhaps tell people that she wasn't an awful creature at all, but some one who loved fun and jokes.

And she wanted people to know that she liked children and animals, too, and wouldn't hurt anyone—ever!

"Yes, Billie Brownie," said Witty Witch, "I want to hear about your trip."

"I saw so many creatures," said Billie Brownie, "that it is hard to know where to begin telling you about them all."

"Let me see, let me see," and Billie Brownie leaned back and thought about all he had seen.

"There were some lovely birds," he began. "Yes, there were beautiful birds."

"You should have seen the gorgeous Birds of Paradise, but what funny sounds they did make!"

"There were magnificent parrots and parakeets and some with shoulders and necks which looked as though they were gold and precious jewels, so lovely was the coloring.

"Nice New Dingo Dog."

"Some of the birds and animals had been brought many, many miles and how they had traveled, by camel, by horseback, by motor cars, trains and boats!"

"Oh yes, some of those birds and animals have traveled. They have come from far-off places, and what stories they could tell of other lands and other scenes and other customs and ways!"

"I saw my old friend the Cassowary. He told that story you know so well of his grandfather, or his father, I've forgotten which, and I didn't stop to ask him, who swallowed a door knob and a baseball and felt just as well as ever!"

"I had so much to do and see that I let him tell the story as quickly as he could, for I wanted to hurry on."

"Sometimes, Witty Witch, I like to take hours and hours just looking at some animal or a few animals. Then I like to take a hurried look at a good many of them—just to say a polite good-day to them all."

"The way I like to do best, of course, is to stop for a chat with one or two of them for a long time, but now and again I want to have a glimpse of as many as I can."

"I saw the Kangaroo from Australia and was told that the Opossum is about our only animal that is like so many of these Australian animals, who carry their babies in their pouches."

"As I was there a great many new animals came; there were fifty-four kangaroos and wallabies, two leopards and three wombats, and a nice new Dingo dog."

"That old Dingo dog is a fine, friendly animal. But the keeper said to some one that Dingo would be quite wild if he were let loose in a forest now, but that he was tame so long as he was kept among people."

"He had been caught as a puppy, and so he was tame and had never had a chance to learn the wild ways of the Dingo dogs, for the Dingo dogs are wild dogs from Australia."

"The new Dingo dog was a dear, too. I think, Witty Witch, that I am quite fond of Dingo dogs."

"You seem to be," said Witty Witch.

"He is such a handsome fellow and he has that lovely dog look which is always attractive to me."

"Oh, the keeper said all the new animals had eaten so much on the trip to the zoo. They had not been ill, oh no, but they had eaten and eaten."

"And there was a list of some of the things the many new animals had eaten."

"Apples and hay and bananas and raisins and crackers and quantities of other goodies had been eaten by them—and oh, in such quantity."

"Well, all the new animals and all the old animals looked very well, and I can tell you, Witty Witch, the more I see of animals the more wonderful I think they are!"

"I agree with you," said Witty Witch.

MYSTERY ON MYSTERY

"The district attorney rose to his feet, saying slowly, 'I am going to call Briffeur, who was chauffeur for Mr. Slyke. He will—'"

"Someone pushed back a chair, and then suddenly, rising above all else and ringing through the room with a horror that seemed to glaze me to my seat, came a shriek of terror. It was sustained for a second, then died away in a long, sobbing moan."

"Bartley dropped to his knees beside Roche and gave one searching look at the man, then straightened up with a queer expression on his face. He pointed silently to the chauffeur. On his brown coat, slowly darkening and widening, was a splotch of blood, and from his breast protruded the hilt of a knife."

Here's an enthralling mystery story that piles mystery on mystery. Bartley, the famous criminologist, undertakes to establish the guilt or innocence of two convicts in prison for the attempted burglary of the house of Robert Slyke. Almost immediately thereafter Slyke is mysteriously murdered, and then, at the inquest, Briffeur, his suspected chauffeur, is stabbed to death in the midst of a roomful of people.

The author is Charles J. Dutton, a new writer, who made a name with "The Underwood Mystery."

CHAPTER I

—1—

In Which an Old Crime Again Comes to Light.

That Friday afternoon, as I came up the steps of John Bartley's house in Gramercy square, the sun was shining for the first time in seven days. Unlocking the door, I entered the hall and went up the stairs to my room.

This week of rain in the middle of June had spoiled Bartley's long-planned fishing trip, and had kept us in the city. It was a trip he had been looking forward to for a long time, since in the past few years there had been few opportunities for such things. In fact, since 1917 Bartley had passed very few nights in his own house. About a year before we went into the war, those who followed criminal mysteries noticed that Bartley's name was no longer connected with the solution of crime. Perhaps they wondered a little at this. When the full story of the work of the Secret Service in the war is told, recognition will be given to the part he played in bringing it to a victorious conclusion. Until then, all I can say is that when he returned to New York, in the spring of 1920, his work for the government had ended.

The first thing that he did upon his arrival was to clear up a pile of mail that ran back for several weeks; his next was to plan several weeks' fishing in the lakes of northern Maine. On the very day that we were to start it had commenced to rain, and never ceased for seven days. Telegrams told us that in Maine it was raining, too. In sheer disgust Bartley buried himself in his library and went to work on his long-neglected book, "The Galante Literature of the Eighteenth Century."

As I glanced out of the window of my room that Friday afternoon, I saw that the rain was at last over. I was wondering whether Bartley would go to Maine, after all, when there came a rap at my door. Opening it, I found Rance, Bartley's old colored man, who said with a grin, "Mr. John says, Mr. Pelt, that you are to come down to the library, for that man Rogers is coming."

As I followed him down the stairs, I wondered what it was that was bringing Rogers, chief of the Central office, to the house at this time of the afternoon. Although Rogers and Bartley were the best of friends, and the chief had been forced more than once to ask the aid of Bartley in his cases, he usually made his visits in the evening, after the day's work was over. A call at four in the afternoon seemed to promise that something unusual had happened, something of such importance that it could not wait. Could he secure Bartley's aid? I knew that Bartley had not intended to take up any more cases until he had had a long rest. Still, if Rogers had the problem of some unusual crime to lay before us, he might change his plans.

Bartley was at his great desk when I entered the library. He gave me a smile, then went on examining the books which covered its top. That morning he had received a great box from his French dealer, and he was busy with its contents. As he did not speak, I dropped into the great armchair by his side.

As I looked at him I wondered, as I had done so many times before, that he should be the great criminal investigator that he was. It was the last thing anyone would expect him to be. His breeding, his family, and above all his literary tastes, were not such as one would expect to find in a man who makes the running down of criminals his life work. His fine face with its clear-cut features, telling of a long line of New England ancestors, might have been a bishop's, one that loved dogs and children, and who had a heart bigger than his creed. I picked up one of the six thin, narrow books in heavy gray paper covers that lay before him, and glanced at the title, "The Ragionamenti of the Divine Aretino." I was about to open it when the doorbell rang.

Bartley glanced up at the sound and said, "That must be Rogers."

The next moment Rance, bowing as he always did in announcing anyone, ushered Rogers into the room. Rogers had been at the head of the Central office for about five years. In that time he had built up for himself the finest reputation that any city detective had ever had. He was not a brilliant man, nor, for that matter, an educated one, but his rare common sense and his absolute honesty had won for him the respect of the people of the city.

He took a chair, and after saying, "Hello, John," to Bartley and a word to me, he took a cigar from the box that Bartley pushed over to him.

Then, leaning across the table, he picked up one of the volumes. The book fell open at a picture; he started as he looked at it, then handed it to me with a sly wink.

"That's a fine sort of a book to show an honest and moral police officer. If I found a bookseller on the Avenue with one, I would have him pinched."

Bartley swung around in his chair, saw which book it was, and laughed.

"Well, Rogers," he said, "the man that wrote that book died a good many hundred years ago. He was the greatest adventurer of his day, the first real blackmailer, a man that made his living by his wits. Also, he happened to be a poet and dramatist, as well as a rogue."

As He Did Not Speak, I Dropped Into the Great Armchair by His Side.

Rogers took his cigar from his mouth and responded with a grin, "What we call today a crook."

I could see that there was something on the chief's mind, but just what it was we were not to learn for some time. He talked, first about the rain, then about the baseball team, in fact of everything but the purpose that had brought him. That was his way, as we both knew. It was not until he had lighted a second cigar and had been silent several moments that he turned to Bartley and said:

"John, I have a case for you."

Bartley threw me a quick glance, then answered, "But you know, Rogers, I don't care to take up any more cases until I have been away fishing and had a good rest."

The chief nodded, but added, "Well, this won't be much of a case. It's not my affair, anyway. I happened to see the governor the other day, and he asked me to get you to look into the matter and make him a report."

I glanced at Bartley. The governor of the state did not, as a rule, interest himself in criminal matters. If this was a case that he wished Bartley to investigate, then it must be something very unusual, indeed. By the little gleam of interest in his eyes, I could see that he agreed with me.

"What is the case?" he asked.

"Well," answered Rogers after a short pause, "I don't suppose you know anything about it; though you may have seen it mentioned in the papers since you returned. It all started a year ago. It was a robbery."

Bartley gave a little exclamation of disgust. "You know that robbery cases are out of my line. There is never anything of interest in them. Besides, a robbery that took place a year ago must be all settled by this time."

Rogers took his cigar from his lips, tried to blow a smoke-ring, failed, and simply said, "Well, the two chaps that they say committed this robbery are now in jail with a seven years' stretch over them."

"You know, John, after all, I don't know such a devil of a lot about this thing myself. I got mixed up in it by accident. I happened to see the governor on another matter; and when I had finished my business, he told me he had received a good many letters asking him to pardon the men that were in jail for the Circle Lake robbery. Many of these letters were from lawyers, in which they said that, after they had read the evidence, they doubted if the men were guilty. Also, one of these reform societies has got mixed up in the thing. The governor had read the evidence brought out at the trial, and he believed himself that the men might not be guilty of the robbery. Then he asked me if you were in the city; and, when I said 'Yes,' he suggested that I ask you to look into the affair. If you, after having investigated the matter, think the men are innocent, then he will pardon them. He said, also, that there was some sort of a fund from which he could pay your fee."

Bartley gave me a curious look, then turned to Rogers. "That part's all right, Rogers. Only I haven't the faintest idea what you are talking about. Of course, I know where Circle Lake is. It's near Saratoga. A friend of mine has a summer place there. But beyond that, I have no idea what you are driving at. Why not start at the beginning and tell me what this crime was?"

With a grin the chief started at the beginning of the story.

"Of course, you know who Robert Slyke is?"

Bartley nodded; but, seeing that I did not recognize the name, he turned to me.

"Pelt, don't you remember the Wall Street broker who announced at a Billy Sunday meeting that he had been converted, and that he was going to give back to his clients the money they had lost in his office?"

Both Bartley and Rogers laughed, and the latter commented, "He never gave it back."

"No," said Bartley, "he never did. That conversion did not stick. Slyke is a strange sort of a chap. His friends are few and there have been wild rumors as to where he got his money. He has dabbled a bit in spiritualism, and has been fooled by several mediums."

Rogers nodded in agreement. "That's the chap. He has a place at Circle Lake. He has lived there for the last two years all the year round. No one knows exactly why he left the city, but it is said that he has lost a lot of money in stocks."

He paused, then continued, "It was Slyke who had the robbery. Early one morning, about a year ago, his step-daughter came to his room and said there were burglars downstairs. He jumped from his bed, and, without any weapon, rushed down the stairs, while the girl stayed on the top step. From then on, it becomes mixed up."

"Mixed up?" asked Bartley.

"Yes. Just what took place and how many men were in the room at the time, was a point of dispute at the trial. The girl says she is sure—that is, almost sure—there were two men in the room. On the other hand, Slyke says there was only one; though, he added, there might have been a second man whom he did not see. There was a bit of a struggle, and the men jumped out of an open window and got away."

Bartley, who had listened carefully, asked, "They did not get anything?"

"No, not a thing. The safe in the room was unopened."

"Are these men," asked Bartley, "the ones that are serving the seven years' sentence?"

Rogers paused long enough to light another cigar, and throw back his head to watch the smoke curl to the ceiling before he replied, "That's the big question."

He was silent for a moment, then continued:

"After the burglars got out of the window, Slyke called up the city police and also the state police. When the city police arrived at the house they made no arrests. But early that same morning the state police picked up two men about six miles away on the other side of Saratoga. They were both well-known characters who had been in trouble before. One of the men had a slight bruise on his head. Slyke claimed that in the struggle he hit one of the robbers with a cane. Both men refused to say where they had been during the night. The strange thing about it was that they were taken to their own homes before being locked up. When they were searched, the police found nothing on them whatever."

"To a student of criminal literature the finding of an old crime restaged is rather interesting. That's why I said I would like to look into it."

LEGION INSTALLATION

The installation exercises of Weymouth Post, No. 79, American Legion will pass down in history as one of the gala events of that organization. The officers of the post in uniform, the colors of the post, the music, the snap with which the exercises were carried out—all showed that the boys had not forgotten their training, and served to make the ceremony most inspiring.

At 6.30 those present sat down to a delicious banquet served by a Boston caterer. Food was bountifully served and the menu consisted of English beef broth, dinner biscuit, clives, hot roast chicken, giblet sauce, celery, cranberry jelly, delmonico potatoes, green peas, ice cream, fancy harlequin, frozen pudding, sultana roll, fruit sauce, orange parfait, assorted cakes, coffee. That the boys had not lost their love for chicken was plainly evident by the inroads on the happy platters, and for the ice cream. Say, boys, there sure was "beaucoup".

The banquet hall was attractively decorated with red, white, and blue streamers. Each table had big bouquets of carnations. And Charlie Burkett with his little orchestra certainly gave some lively music.

The installation exercises were held in the upper hall and the installing officer of the evening was Frank H. Foy of Quincy Post, 95, and his suite, who consisted of Harry Nelson, sergeant-at-arms; George Coughlan, Ralph Colby, James Flarvery, and Harry Cogill. The drill team was excellent and did mighty fine considering the small area allowed for its work.

The exercises were made particularly inspiring by the presence of a large number of invited guests, among whom were the following: Gold Star Mothers, who occupied a position of honor both at the banquet and during the exercises, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Donovan, Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson, Mrs. Ella M. Willbrock, Mrs. Mary Talbot. The Town of Weymouth was represented by three of its Selectmen, Dasha, Humphrey, and Tirrell.

The State department, American Legion, was represented by its treasurer, George P. Capen. Also present were Major Bicknell of Reynolds Post; Mrs. Carrie F. Loring, Department president W. R. C.; Mrs. Nellie G. Loud, Department secretary D. of V.; Mrs. Elizabeth Abrams, president W. R. C.; Miss Amelia Severance, S. V. P. of D. of V.; Irwin Hawes, president S. of V.; Mrs. Annie Batchelder, president S. of V. Auxiliary; Mrs. Mary E. Mahoney, state chairman World War Veterans Aid, and Mrs. I. Herbert Libby, retiring president of Legion Auxiliary, and Mrs. Egbert Warren, incoming president of Legion Auxiliary.

In a semi-circle at one end of the hall, in the center of which was Bryan Leonard, retiring commander of the Post; Comrade Capen, and Adjutant Santacroce. All stood at attention as the colors of Weymouth Post were brought in by Sergeant-at-Arms Henry A. Cote, and color bearers Herbert W. Rockwood and Edmund Cote. Those present then sang one stanza of "The Star Spangled Banner" and the flags were then placed in their honored position.

The installing officer was next escorted into the hall, seated at the right of the commander and proceeded with the exercises of installation. The new commander, Raymond E. Stein, was then sworn to the faithful discharge of his duties for the best interest of Weymouth Post, and the American Legion. The other incoming officers, Vice-Commander Leo F. Cote, Adjutant Pasquale Santacroce, Finance Officer Walter I. Peers, Historian D. Francis Condrick, Sergeant-at-Arms Henry A. Cote were inducted and escorted to their respective positions with a few words of greeting and best wishes from the installing Sergeant-at-Arms Nelson.

The new commander was greeted by the retiring commander, who with a few words thanked the members for their presence and took the opportunity of thanking all the officers for their support during the past year. He spoke of the good spirit existing in Weymouth Post, which meant success for the American Legion. The splendid principle is established by the Legion that there is no rank but the members should not forget there is no distinction in the amount of work each can do. The years may not be long enough for us all to become commanders, and while it is an honor to be a commander and a certain honor goes with the office, it is just as honorable to work hard and conscientiously for the post, and there are many in Weymouth Post who are doing this. He has been mighty pleased with the co-operation received from the G. A. R. noticeable by their attendance, and felt that all honor and attention should be paid these older veterans.

Comrade Leonard thought co-operation was a great thing and hoped there would be more of it. He hoped that all the people of the town and town officers would assist the Post in informing them of and helping them care for disabled veterans.

Comrade Leonard thanked Comrade Foy for coming over and extended to Comrade Stein all wishes for success.

Comrade Stein wishing to renew a pledge of further service from the retiring commander, presenting him with a Past Commander's badge. This caused a burst of applause from the audience, who arose and clapped vigorously.

Comrade Leonard returned the compliment by pinning the "duties" on the new commander.

Commander Stein hoped the members would live up to the preamble and try to instill 100% Americanism into the school children, for they are the citizens of tomorrow.

Major Bicknell brought greetings from Post 58, G. A. R., saying he had brought a representation of one-tenth of the living members. He congratulated the American Legion and paid a nice tribute to Comrade Leonard, for he had worked hard and done his level best for the Post. He congratulated Comrade Stein, urging all the members to attend all the meetings and get some new members. He saw no reason why Weymouth Post should not be the best in the state.

Mrs. Carrie Loring, brought the greetings from 40,000 members of W. R. C. and commented on the marked advance as shown in the fine manner that work was presented on this occasion. The hard work of Comrade Leonard had not escaped attention. To Comrade Stein she extended congratulations and the assistance of the W. R. C. any time.

Mrs. Egbert Warren brought greetings from the Auxiliary, saying that while her boy was in the service she did all she could for him, and that is what she wants to do for all the boys of Weymouth Post.

Selectman Tirrell was impressed by the installation and Selectman Humphrey said it was a pleasure to be present, as it was a year ago. He felt the post could be of great service to the town and country. He spoke of the many opportunities in this free country and its institutions. The splendid address of State Treasurer Capen, who brought the greetings of the State Commander, was both interesting and humorous. He pleaded for co-operation with state officials, speaking of the large number of active members that were necessary to carry on the expenses of the state department. When he assumed office there was a deficit, which he was now glad to state had been wiped out. He urged on the comrades present these three points: brotherly love to all other organizations, for the other camps are just as good as our and were entitled to exist—(2) build up the membership of American Legion in every way possible—(3) help all the disabled men possible.

Comrade Stein reminded the comrades of the fine work of Treasurer Stein and the splendid report at New Bedford. Too much credit cannot be given to Adjutant Pasquale Santacroce for the completeness of the arrangements for the installation for hard work was evident to make possible the smoothness with which the ceremonies proceeded during the evening. The Adjutant read the following letter of regret from General Edwards:

Doneroving,
Westwood, Mass.,
Jan. 9, 1923

My dear Adjutant Santacroce:
I hate to tell you that I am going away day after tomorrow and won't be back until the end of January. I have to go on business to Cleveland and then this Committee of One Hundred Conference in Washington. It gives men a good deal of pleasure to think that you lads really do want to have me come down there and see you, and I hope to get to East Weymouth to pay a visit in the near future. What did I do? Did I decline an invitation before? If I did, it was because the Lord prevented.

Every good luck to you and the members of your Legion for a Happy New Year.

Sincerely yours,
C. R. EDWARDS

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY
The annual installation of the officers of the local American Legion Auxiliary was held in G. A. R. hall on Friday evening last, with Mrs. Sarah Gammons of Cohasset as installing officer.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. Annie J. Libby, president, and the following guests were present: Commander Stein of Post 79, A. L., vice-commander William Litchfield of Reynolds Post, 58, G. A. R.; Pasquale Santacroce, adjutant Post 79; and Mrs. Annie Batchelder, president of S. of V. Auxiliary.

Mrs. Gammons relieved Mrs. Libby of the gavel and the following officers were presented at the altar by Sergeant-at-Arms Draper for the installation:

President, Mrs. Edna M. S. Warren
Vice-president, Mrs. Mary K. Haviland
Secretary, Mrs. Isabelle Easton
Treasurer, Miss Helen Kennerson
Chaplain, Mrs. Mary Talbot
Historian, Mrs. Christine Flynn
Sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. Elizabeth Draper

After the new officers were seated the usual presentations were made: flowers to Mrs. Gammons, also to Mrs. Warren from the officers. Both ladies responding with pleasant remarks.

It was then our retiring president's turn for a little ceremony and much to her surprise received from Mrs. Warren a gift of a piece of silver, suitably engraved, accompanied with a message of love and appreciation of her two years and three months of intense effort and increasing devoted soldier—the first duty of the Auxiliary to the American Legion.

Mrs. Libby managed to find her breath and expressed her thanks. She is as proud of her Auxiliary as the Auxiliary has been to have had her for a president. She has placed the Auxiliary on a firm foundation who will have many presidents, but only one "first one". She retires from the chair with a host of friends and the love and esteem of each and every one of the members.

Remarks followed by guests, and later came refreshments.

On Monday evening an informal party assembled in the ladies room of Masonic hall and held a little ceremony of pinning on to Mrs. Libby a past president's gold badge. It had not arrived on Friday and members were anxious to have her properly decorated for the Legion installation. It's quite becoming.

On Tuesday Mrs. Libby, Mrs. Warren, Mrs. Haviland, Mrs. Riley, Mrs. Draper, and Mrs. Christine Flynn attended the monthly meeting of the Norfolk County Council at the Army and Navy club.

SUNDAY SCHOOL BOARD

On Wednesday evening, Jan. 10, the annual meeting of the Sunday School Board was held at the First M. E. church. The committee in charge of the banquet was Harry Mattson, chairman, Charles R. Denbroeder, Mrs. W. E. Ames, Mrs.

Charles Chubbuck, Mrs. S. C. Burgoyne, and Miss Helen Preston. After a very fine banquet the company adjourned to the ladies parlor to conduct the business of the evening. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Superintendent, Charles R. Denbroeder

Assistant superintendent, Harry Mattson

Secretary, Harold G. Burgoyne

Treasurer, Mrs. Harry Mattson

Supt. Cradle Roll, Mrs. Stephen Joy

Supt. Beginner's, Mrs. Earl E. Story

Supt. Primary, Isabel McIsaac

Supt. Grading, Mrs. Charles Chubbuck

Supt. Centenary, Olive D. Sylvester

Librarian, Raymond Blackwell

Upon the resignation of Mr. Denbroeder as superintendent and Mr. Mattson as assistant, the nominating committee adjourned and later elected Mr. Denbroeder assistant, and left the office of superintendent open for a short time. Reports of all the officers were read and everyone felt that the past year had been a successful one.

FIFTY-SEVENTH YEAR

VOL. LVII. NO. 4

WEYMOUTH, MASSACHUSETTS, FRIDAY, JANUARY 26, '923

PRICE SIX CENTS

Many Balances from Town Appropriations

Emerson R. Dizer, the efficient Town Accountant, has furnished the readers of the Gazette-Transcript with an advance copy of his statements of the town appropriations and expenditures for 1922.

The total appropriations were in excess of a million dollars, the exact figures being $1,007,555.75.

To Dec. 31, 1922, the expenditures amounted to $905,081.87, leaving $11,509.88 to remain in the treasury and $90,964.70 available to complete the work for which it was appropriated.

The biggest saving was on interest, but the highway department had a balance of $1,123.34 and Soldiers Relief $1,235.02. Thirty-one different appropriations returned a balance to the treasury.

The largest unexpended balance is $50,000 for bond retirement, and $28,238.38 for abatement of taxes. For Union street $1,816.59 is still in the treasury. The High school enlargement committee has expended only $121.18 of its appropriation of $1,000 and the 39th Anniversary Committee has expended only $22 of its $1000. A study of the figures on page 10 will be of interest.

Next week will be printed the debt statement of Jan. 1, 1923.

COMMUNITY SERVICE

Fred T. Bearce, organist and musical director of the First Congregational church at Waltham, will be the "star attraction" at the community service (one of the January series of musicals) in the East Weymouth Congregational church on Sunday night.

Mr. Bearce was born, bred, and got his musical start in East Weymouth, over forty years ago. His first teacher was Miss Abby Rogers who later on was organist at the East Weymouth Methodist church.

For several years Mr. Bearce was a well known organist, concert pianist, and accompanist in this section, and was the first to accompany Rev. E. S. Ufford, the composer and author of the world wide known hymn "Throw Out the Life Line" Mr. Ufford being at that time pastor of the Baptist church in Hingham.

Mr. Bearce went to Waltham some 35 years ago and is now firmly established in the religious, musical, business, and fraternal circles of that city.

Mr. Bearce's appearance at the E Weymouth Congregational church on Sunday night will be his first public professional entrance in this town since he went to locate in Waltham. His solo numbers on the organ will be Sibelius' "Finlander", a descriptive of the stormy coast of Finland; "The Brook", by Boisdreffe and "Liebestyaume" by Listz.

Mr. Bearce will be assisted by Prof. Frank B. Cornwell of Boston and Waltham, tenor soloist and violinist, who will sing "Son of My Soul" by Huhn, and "My Task" by Ashford, and he will play "The Deluge", a violin solo by Saint Saens. Added musical attractions will be violin duets, a praise service and a young people's chorus. First number at 7 o'clock sharp.

AMERICAN LEGION

Post 79, American Legion, held a special meeting Monday evening in 3. A. R. hall. Business of importance was transacted.

The most important discussion was of helping the sick and needy of all ex-Service men, regardless of whether he is a Legion member or not. As the old saying goes, it is better to give than receive, and as the American Legion stands for 100 percent Americanism, we would thank any member or any citizen who will notify the commander of any ex-Service man, or in fact any person who is in need, and we will extend a helping hand as far as in our power.

A great lot of interest was shown at this meeting on the subject of the Post's annual show. Many good suggestions were offered, but nothing definitely decided upon. This subject will be brought up again next Monday night - at the first regular meeting and every member of the post should be present to express his ideas. Commander Stein and several members of the Post are going to attend the annual State convention at Ford Hall, Boston, Tuesday, Jan. 30, at which National Commander Owsley will be the principal speaker.

Card of Thanks

The Troop Committee of the Boy Scout Troops of East Weymouth wish to express their appreciation of the generous contributions received last week for the support of the Old Colony Council of Boy Scouts of America of which the Weymouth Troops are members. This is the first time East Weymouth has met its quota of expenses. We thank you.

WEYMOUTH MAN PRESIDENT

The election of a Weymouth man as president, the presence of the ladies, and a good banquet were the features of the 31st annual meeting of the Old Colony Grocers and Provision Dealers Association at Braintree Town Hall on Wednesday evening. The new president is E. A. Hunt of the firm of E. W. Hunt & Son.

Among the invited guests were noted Senator Walter Shubruk of Cohasset, Representatives Sandberg of Quincy, Tirrell of Weymouth, Lawson of Braintree and Edwin B. Pillsbury of South Braintree, editor of the Grocers Magazine.

The proceedings began with the business session at 5 o'clock when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—E. A. Hunt of Weymouth

First Vice President—Edward J. Sullivan of South Braintree

Second Vice President—Frank M. Bryant of Weymouth

Clerk—Henry W. Mansfield of South Braintree

Treasurer—Oakes A. Bridgman of South Braintree

Executive committee—Willi F. Alden of Whitman, Charles F. Brown of South Weymouth, Nahum Reed of Whitman, Frank Sylvester of East Weymouth, Richie T. Howe of South Weymouth.

An informal reception followed the business meeting after which came the banquet served by Seiler of Boston. Fancy caps and other favors added to the pleasure of the evening.

A delightful entertainment was given in the main hall from 8 until 10 o'clock by Miss Ruth Brower, Miss Rose Loman and Jack Sydney of Boston. Miss Brower is a versatile young lady and was heard to advantage as a reader and vocalist, besides rendering artistic selections on the saxophone, slide trombone and the banjo. Her accompanist was Miss Rose Loman who also delighted the audience with piano solos. Jack Sydney in songs and stories kept everybody in roars of laughter.

Braintree's popular boy soprano, Master John McDermand of the vested choir of Emmanuel church rendered several solos most beautifully being accorded hearty applause. He was accompanied at the piano by William H. Sprague. All the artists were generous with encores.

Henry W. Mansfield was master of ceremonies. The affair was an unqualified success due to the efforts of the committee of arrangements, L. H. Cutcliffe and H. W. Mansfield of Braintree, Walter Pratt of East Weymouth, R. T. Howe, and Fred Thayer of South Weymouth, Nahum Reed and W. F. Alden of Whitman.

LEAVES WITH GOOD WISHES

Miss Marion F. Dowd, who has been the Gazette bookkeeper for the past year and a half, resigns tomorrow to accept a position in another town.

Miss Dowd is a popular young lady of Weymouth, and her courteous manner and agreeable disposition are among the sterling qualities she possesses. Our veteran composer, pianist and philosopher, whom we shall call "Skib" (because that is not his name) who presided over the "stick and case" many, many years before Marion arrived on this planet, and who recognizes and appreciates human worth and kindness, conceived the idea that the opportunity should not pass without due regard. He was aided and abetted by the former and another worthy follower of Franklin, who is playfully called "Professor", and your humble servant was appointed to cover the assignment.

The result was that Miss Dowd was presented with a nice box of Page & Shaw's chocolates, a gift always acceptable to girls, in the spirit in which it is given—as a small token of our great esteem. Nick Quad

—"Kora" has received a half dozen or more replies to his letter in the Gazette last week, and promises that there will be something doing.

New Hall and Gymnasium in Enlarged High School

The Selectmen have issued a warrant for a special town meeting which is advertised in the second section of the Gazette. It will be held in High School hall Monday, Feb. 5.

The only article is to see what sum the town will vote for enlargement of the High school building.

The special committee authorized at the last Annual Town Meeting is ready to report. The new plans call for a large wing on the southerly end which will be extended first to the south and then toward the street. It will provide many new class rooms, a large hall to seat about 1500, a gymnasium and other improvements. The cost is estimated at $275,000.

The Selectmen also voted to hold the Annual Town Meeting on the evening of Monday, March 5, at the Odd Fellows Opera House at East Weymouth.

License was granted to the Citizens Association of Nash's Corner to hold a dance in February.

Chester H. Rogers was granted a license for movies on Sunday, Jan. 28. The Boy Scouts were granted the use of the Town Offices for a meeting Jan. 26.

YOUNG'S STABLE SOLD

An important sale of real estate took place on Monday when Young's stable was put up at auction, the auctioneer being E. W. Hunt. For many years previous to the advent of the street cars and automobiles Mr. Young catered to the people of the South Shore from Quincy to Plymouth. Then barge parties were popular and in winter sleigh parties and Mr. Young did a big business, furnishing two-horse, four-horse, and even six-horse hitchers.

The estate including the large stable and about half an acre of land, nearly front of the new Gazette building, was sold for $2650 to W. A. Thurston of 40 Humphrey street.

When interviewed by the Gazette-Transcript Mr. Thurston said he would remodel the building and dem in second hand furniture, including the storage of household goods.

MEN'S CLUB

The next dinner of the Clapp Memorial Men's club is to be held on Wednesday evening, Feb. 14, at which time they are to have the exceptional opportunity of hearing an address by Hon. George Fred Williams on the Balkan situation. Mr. Williams has first hand knowledge of the conditions in the Balkan States, having been the United States representative to that troublesome section. The subject is one which is attracting deep attention and is a vital issue. A rare opportunity is afforded the members and guests to become intimately acquainted with conditions which are playing so important a part in the world's affairs.

NORFOLK—WOMPATUCK

Wednesday evening the Norfolk club of South Weymouth entertained the Wompatuck club of Hingham in the club rooms. The games resulted as follows:

At pool Maynard of Wompatuck beat Tirrell of Norfolk 100 to 95 and Jannell of Norfolk won from E. F. Wilder of Wompatuck 100 to 75.

At billiards Dr. Wilder of Wompatuck beat Thayer of Norfolk 100 to 60 and Nichols of Norfolk beat Townsend of Wompatuck 100 to 80.

In the cribbage games Gibson and Leavitt of Wompatuck won from Lyons and Bicknell of Norfolk, four games to three.

Hayes of Wompatuck won two frames of chess from Cook of Norfolk.

At duplicate whist Tom Nash, Ken Nash, Hawes, and Osborn of Norfolk won from Wavie, Lane, Talbot, and March of Wompatuck by 700 points.

At Boston pins the Wompatuck team beat the Norfolk five 1442 to 1266.

Breen of Wompatuck had the high single 121 and high three-string 313. Wompatuck got three points.

WARD ONE CANDIDATE

Robinson Crusoe Stuff

By JESSIE DOUGLAS

(© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Of course, you can ask them down," Aunt Hettie said amiably. "Bring down all your beaus, Annie Laurie!"

"They're not beaus," Annie Laurie answered indignantly. "You'll understand that when you see them! Jim's a good creature; you'll like him; and all the old—all the middle-aged women do. And Norman, well, Norman's different. You'll see, Aunt Hettie."

Aunt Hettie did. She saw just how it was when Jim jumped down from the train and took Annie Laurie's little hand in his big brown paw and looked at her adoringly. She saw, too, when Norman Dana, with his golf clubs and his two suitcases, with his gun case and his English tweeds, called nonchalantly: "Lo there, Annie!"

Annie Laurie lifted her head proudly with its soft, curling hair and answered Norman's sallies calmly and told Jim patiently that she had got his letter, that she hadn't had time to answer it. Oh, yes, and that the nicest girl was coming down for the week-end!

Aunt Hettie's cottage was snuggled in between the pine trees, and the blue lake glistened the other side of the birches. It was charming. But it had no gas nor running water nor sealed walls. The spiders had a merry way of skirting along the walls, and the well sometimes went dry.

But what was this to Annie Laurie when a round, golden moon swam across the sky and Norman unpacked his guitar and lifted a charming voice to the silent woods?

Jim meanwhile had trailled to the village in search of water. As Annie

The Storm Came Up.

Laurie said, he was always popular with middle-aged ladies.

It was Aunt Hettie who was voluble in her praise of Jim next morning, but it was to Norman that Annie Laurie's eyes kept glancing again and again. In a suit of new English knickerbockers he looked very manly and attractive.

"Canoe?" Norman suggested. Jim took him up with more enthusiasm than was necessary. Annie Laurie thought.

While Annie Laurie trailed her hands through the water Jim paddled and Norman, facing the pink and white fluff that was Annie, read snatches of poetry that, spoken in a deep-toned voice, were very charming.

Jim paddled silently, without a word, frowning now and then into the clear lake. It was he who broke into a bit about a rosy morn with the abrupt: "Going to be a storm. We'll have to clear over to Coon Island. Take a paddle, Norman."

Norman dug his paddle into the water. He was not as graceful as Annie Laurie thought as when he read verses. The storm came up. Suddenly like mountain storms, in a few minutes the sky was blackened and the pines rocked menacingly.

Jim beached the canoe and dragged Annie Laurie out, while Norman was still hunting for the poetry book.

The rain lashed out at them. Holding himself stiff against a tree trunk, Annie Laurie felt rivulets of water pouring down her neck, while Norman, speaking against the rush of the wind, shouted: "My coat!" and began to tear it from him and thrust it toward her. But before he had even pulled off the sleeve, Jim had caught her ruthlessly by the arm and dragged her away.

She turned furiously. Then she stood there breathless and laid both hands against Jim's sleeve as the tree trembled, seemed to quiver from root to tip and fell with a sighing groan.

The rain stopped. Almost as suddenly as it had begun the storm was over and the sun straggled through the clouds. Every leaf glistened with its load of jewels.

Norman gave a sudden cry.

"Look! The canoe!"

It had drifted easily to the center of the lake and there it seemed to find placid mooring.

"Rotten fix! Not a thing to eat and Annie Laurie shivering from cold," Norman growled, looking at Jim with disgust. Somehow he felt as though Jim had got the whole thing up.

Jim was placidly gathering together bits of dried bark, twigs and logs, and slowly a curl of smoke lifted and floated above them. Annie Laurie knelt down with a little rapturous cry.

"How lovely! If we only had some coffee," she sighed.

Norman was turning over the drenched pages of his poetry disconsolately. Somehow it had partially escaped the general disaster.

"The rosy morn—" he began lightly. But Annie Laurie did not glance at him, and continued to warm her hands and shake the water out of her hair.

Jim went placidly on about his preparations.

"What's that?"

Jim smiled, lifted his plain, good-humored face and said simply, "I was bringing some provisions up for your aunt; think we might as well use 'em now! Feel that branch, Norman; no, not that way; like this."

The savory odor of broiling bacon on white-peeled branches; the bubble of coffee on a three-pronged branch, held Annie Laurie fascinated. But why had he carried the food along in the canoe? Had he seen all the time—been prepared for this very thing—was he—? She looked up suddenly and saw his eyes laughing down at her, telling her something that sent the blood rushing to her cheeks.

"I'd do more than this for you, Annie Laurie," he said simply.

Annie Laurie did not answer. But it was she who gave little ecstatic cries as she ate bacon sandwiches and drank boiled coffee in a tin cup that appeared miraculously. Only Norman sat very still and appeared to find the food distasteful.

"If I had my ukulele now," he sighed after he had finished his fourth sandwich.

Jim's eyes met Annie Laurie's across the smoldering campfire. Hers were the first to drop. Perhaps it was the red flames that made her cheeks so rosy.

"Wonder what we'll do for the night," Norman growled. "Ground sopping and not a blanket to cover us! Fool stunt, anyway, to come out canoeing."

"Perhaps if I stood up and hallooed they might hear us the other side of the lake," Jim said with a slow smile.

Annie Laurie had never thought of that!

It was only as a motor boat nosed its way across to them that Norman put the ukase on the situation.

"This Robinson Crusoe stuff never made any hit with me."

Annie Laurie's voice was so low that only Jim could hear it.

"I'd rather like it if I could be Man Friday."

"We'll do it—on our honeymoon," he said daringly. And Annie Laurie, laughing softly, did not deny it.

HAVE ODD MEANS OF LIVING

According to Census Takers' Figures, There Are Peculiar Ways of Obtaining a Livelihood.

Many of the curious occupations which people pursue for a living are revealed by the census taker. One entry in the volumes of a recent census which puzzled the officials was that of a man who described himself as a "cartoon jonor." It took quite a long time to discover that the census taker meant that he was a carpenter and joiner!

Another occupation discovered by the census is that of a "rat charmer." Animals, indeed, seem to fill up the time of a large number of people. The quaintest confession comes from a "beetle and cockroach manipulator and bedbug wrestler!"

A woman was responsible for the entry: "Forelady gravy thick." When light dawned upon the census officers it was found that the person in question was a superintendent in a soup factory, evidently in the "thick" department. In many cases the true meaning of entries was never discovered, and the officials trusted to luck. One girl stated that she was a "tip-erolist." Various solutions were tried, including that of "tripperonster," and finally she was placed among the typists. "Squirmer" remained a mystery, though it was supposed to be something to do with electric lighting.

As Usual.

The stranger was exaggerating as usual. After his tallest story the silent man in the corner became impatient.

"I had an adventure like that once," he said. "It was in the jungle. A lion came for me. I saw his great mouth gaping wide. I was powerless, rooted to the spot. Nearer and nearer he came. It was awful."

He paused.

"And what happened then?" asked the teller of tall stories.

"Well," said the other. "I just put my arm into the lion's mouth, caught hold of its tail, and turned the brute inside out. But another lion came up—and I was done for."

"What happened?"

"He ate me."

In the Air.

Townsend—in the city it's getting worse than the pirates who hold up the rum ship on the high seas—

Streeter—Now, what's happened?

BOY SCOUTS

The benefits that a community receive from a local troop of Boy Scouts cannot be estimated. Weymouth is fortunate in having several live troops. And the scouts themselves seek opportunities of service to a locality to the extent they plan one large public good turn. This year the Weymouth Scouts have decided it should be a ratless Weymouth. For this purpose a meeting has been called and thru the courtesy of the town officials the use of the town offices in the Savings Bank building, East Weymouth, has been granted. Every scout leader and assistant are expected to be on hand and Dr. O'Donnell of the State Board of Health will be the speaker. He is an interesting speaker and his message to the scouts will be a good one. Anyone interested in scout activities is invited to be present.

CLUB and SOCIAL

The regular monthly meeting of the Old Colony chapter, Service Star Legion, was held in Pythian hall, Weymouth, Thursday afternoon, Jan. 25. In the absence of the acting president Mrs. Harriet B. Voorhees, the past president, Mrs. Albert E. Avery, conducted the meeting. Mrs. Avery translated and read a letter full of holiday greetings and loving gratitude from the little French orphan whom the chapter adopted two years ago. A sum of money is sent annually, making it possible for the little girl to attend school and receive an education which would otherwise be unattainable. On account of the unavoidable absence of several members, the annual election of officers was postponed until the next regular meeting, Feb. 15. The chapter voted to donate the sum of $20 toward the expense of a radio equipment which the Holbrook Unit, American Legion Auxiliary, with the sister units and other patriotic organizations, hopes to install at the Norfolk Tubercular Hospital at Braintree Highlands. The chief feature of the meeting was a pleasing informal talk given by the state president, Mrs. William Irving of Boston, who gave an interesting report on the Service Star Legion national convention held at Chicago last November, which she attended and was elected a member of the national executive board. During the social hour that followed the business meeting refreshments were served by a voluntary hospitality committee consisting of Mrs. Paul Dowd, Mrs. Charles Guertin, and Mrs. Mary Talbot.

Word has been received that a son was born on Jan. 21 to Mr. and Mrs. Gideon Murray of Detroit, Mich. Mr. Murray was formerly a resident of East Weymouth.

The afternoon subject was: "What constitutes a successful woman's club," was ably presented by visiting women of prominence in neighborhood clubs. The points brought out were many and interesting and each speaker emphasized that it was the spirit of co-operation and desire for service was not only necessary, but went a long way in the making of a successful club.

The speakers that represented the nearby clubs were: Mrs. L. W. Atwood of the Abington club, Mrs. Jenkins of the Whitman club, Mrs. Wilson Marsh of the Quincy club, Mrs. Woodsum of the Phillegians, and Mrs. Bowles of the Wollaston club.

The entertainment consisted of several groups of songs that were very delightfully rendered by Mrs. Marion Whitmore, who was encored repeatedly. Her accompanist was Mrs. Chandler W. Smith.

GEM THEATRE

The continuous patronage at every performance of the Gem Theatre and its large numbers is spurring Mr. Rogers on to greater efforts to keep his patrons coming. Last week the pictures presented were received by the audiences with high approval and justly so for they were of a clean, wholesome and moral standard. For Thursday and Friday of next week Mr. Rogers has secured that wonderful picture "When Knighthood was in Flower," with a matinee next Thursday at 4 P. M. for the school children. "Ninety and nine," a picture of thrills will shortly be presented to Gem patrons. Get the habit! Become a regular Gem Theatre picture fan.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday "Jackie" comes to Quincy in "Oliver Twist" in a masterpiece of the studio which is made possible because of the special talents of the boy who has created no end of thrills. The immortal story adapted from the famous novel of that name, is the basis of the production which overnight added to the cinema fame of the prodigy.

On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday "Freckles" comes in "Heroes of the Street". Realism never went farther than it has in this picture, where real crooks were hired to play the part of crooks in the picture. Who are the heroes of the street? Every one, particularly the firemen and policemen, who devote their lives to the suppression of crime, the protection of life and property. As irresponsible and freckled as is ascribed as ever "Freckles" is supported by Marie Prevost, Jack Mulhall, etc.

What Does Weymouth Need Today?

Weymouth has its problems—What Are They? Why do They Exist? What is their Solution? How Best to Proceed?

Here is a subject of vital interest to every citizen of Weymouth irrespective of class, race or creed, who feels the pride and enjoys the prestige of Home in this old town.

WHAT DOES WEYMOUTH NEED TODAY?

This is not a question for the people at large—a question that "The Gazette-Transcript" is going to ask of its readers; the answers, giving the public's views and suggestions, will be a Special Feature in our columns for months to come.

What Does Weymouth Need Today?

What will add to its population, increase its industries, develop its resources, enhance its prosperity, restore it as a seaport, develop it as a summer resort, bring about a revival of those intimate social relations which foster enjoyment in Games, Theatricals, Concerts, Dances, Contests, Debating Clubs, and any form of recreation which brings together clean hands, clean hearts and plenty of meritorious amusements of all kinds, and attract increasing thousands of visitors in future years.

THESE ARE THE QUESTIONS which The Gazette-Transcript desires answered, and to that end has already asked and shall continue to ask of its readers, their constructive opinions and suggestions on topics of vital importance relative to the best interests of Weymouth. In this way The Gazette-Transcript feels it can best serve its readers, can best shape its editorial policy by learning how the people really feel, and can better move in harmony and unison, straight to its goal; Analysis, Synthesis, Plan, Action.

THESE ALL IMPORTANT QUESTIONS, answered by interested citizens, and their opinions spread before our readers, should make clear many town topics which today are more or less obscure, and should result in placing upon our annual town warrant, constructive articles calculated to be of great benefit to our town.

IN ORDER, HOWEVER, to make this Latest Gazette Feature or greatest benefit to the town we must all wake up, and with the enthusiastic appreciation of the possibilities of the golden future, get together, one and all, and join hands in the great work ahead.

WHAT WE WANT is to develop, through the expression and interchange of thought, basic views calculated to stimulate Commercial, Development and Historic Interest, both divisions to be influenced by your ceaseless energy, civic pride and ambition.

So, when called upon for an expression—Let Us Have YOUR Answer to the vital all important question.

For those who are in need of a Kidney Pills. They are strongly recommended by East Weymouth people.

J. W. Snow, 73 Chard street, East Weymouth, says: "I strained my back lifting some time ago and it affected my kidneys and caused backache.
Mornings my back was lame and sore and when I raised up quickly a stitch took me in my back. I had to get up that night to pass the kidney secretions and they were highly colored and burned. I also had headaches and dizzy spells. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and used two boxes and they cured me entirely."
On February 9, 1921, Mr. Snow

"A FRAME-UP?"

John Bartley, noted criminal investigator, recently returned from Secret Service work during the war, is asked by the governor of New York to investigate a mysterious attempted robbery of the Robert Slyke home at Circle Lake, near Saratoga. Bartley is asked, in view of recent developments, to establish the guilt or innocence of two men in the penitentiary for the crime. A miscarriage of justice is suspected. Rogers, chief of the central office, arrives at Bartley and his friend Pelt, a newspaper man, are preparing to go on a fishing trip, and begins to describe the case.

CHAPTER I—Continued.

Bartley was interested. He took up his pipe, lighted it, and leaning back in his chair, listened attentively as Rogers continued.

"When it came time for the men to be identified, there was a bit of a conflict. The step-daughter was pretty sure that there had been two men, while Slyke insisted that he had only seen one. In fact, he did not seem to be very eager to push the case— even requested the police to drop it, since he had lost nothing."

Bartley asked in surprise, "Then why, under heaven, did they keep on with it?"

Rogers shook his head. "I don't know, John. It has been suggested that the city police did not want to drop it. Anyway, they held the men; and a few days later announced that they had found a piece of paper torn from a newspaper in the room where Slyke had discovered them. Several days later they announced that they had found a newspaper with a torn corner in Horn's pocket, into which the piece that they had found at Slyke's house fitted."

Bartley asked with a weary air, "Did they later find a piece of cloth torn from the coat or trousers of one of the men? Find it, perhaps, on a bush near the window the men had jumped out of?"

Bartley half laughed. "I never heard a word of it until you told me. I had an idea that a piece of cloth would be found that had been torn from the clothing of one of them. A piece that would fit, say, the torn trousers of one of them."

Rogers threw me a look, as if to ask how Bartley could have guessed, then remarked, "I don't see how you hit it off, John; but that's the very thing that did happen. All this did not come out until the trial. When it was introduced, it made a stir. Both men claimed, in fact, that the whole thing was a frame-up."

He paused to relight his cigar before continuing:

"The man to whom the trousers belonged asserted that they had been taken from him the week after he had been put in jail, and that there was no tear in them when he gave them up. A tailor at the trial testified that the cloth was so strong that it could not have been torn away by catching on anything, and that it looked to him as if the piece had been cut out with a knife."

Bartley threw back his head and laughed. Rogers was thoroughly displeased. "I don't see the joke."

"There is no joke, Rogers. Tell me who found all this evidence? Was it the police?"

"I am not sure. I think it was the head of the local police. It was a day or so after the crime that most of it was discovered."

I broke in to say, "I presume the men claimed the police faked the evidence?"

Rogers nodded. "That's just what they did claim. In fact, their whole defense was on that line. They were said to have been night-fishing on a game preserve near the lake. A good deal was made of the fact that the incriminating evidence was not found until some hours after the crime—even days in fact. I admit that it looks a bit fishy. Still, you never heard of the police faking evidence to the extent they claim this was done."

We both laughed and our laughter made the red face of the chief turn a shade darker. We had in mind the charges that one of the newspapers was making at the time against his own detectives, that they had planted guns on some men they wished to hold. But even at that, he was right. The police do not fake evidence to the extent that this story of his seemed to hint. Bartley's next remark showed that he felt as I did.

"You are right, Rogers, though the whole thing does look queer. I take it the conviction made a stir."

Rogers shook his head. "It did not at the time; it's doing it now. The papers thought the men's denial was the usual thing. But later the lawyers got interested, then a reform society, and now they are all getting after the governor. He thinks there might have been a miscarriage of justice and wants you to look into the thing. He wants you to do it at once."

With a shrewd look, Bartley asked, "Then there is something new?"

"Well," answered Rogers, "that depends. The other night there was another attempt to break into Slyke's house. They say there have been several since these men went to jail."

Bartley said but one word, but it was expressive enough. We sat in silence until Rogers pulled out his watch, glanced at it, and rose to his feet. "Time I ran along. That's the way it stands. The governor wishes you to look into it, and says he will consider it a personal favor if you will do so."

Bartley also rose, and placing his hand on his friend's shoulder, said, "I will deal with the case at once, but in my own way. Tell him he won't hear from me until I have found out whether those two men ought to be in prison or not."

Rogers nodded, and after a second glance at his watch hurried out. Bartley said, "Pelt, over in the bookcase, in the section of the trials, you will find a small brown book. It's somewhere in the third section, under the letter 'E.' The title is, I think, 'The Edlingham Burglary'."

Wondering a little why he should want it, I went over to the portion of the bookcase he had indicated. In a moment I had found the volume that he wanted—a thin book, covered with brown cloth, and on the title page

The Famous Edlingham Burglary or
The Innocent Persecuted
1879

I handed Bartley the book, and without a word he opened it and quickly ran through the pages. In a few minutes he threw it over to me, saying with a smile, "I know, Pelt, you are wondering why we should spend our time on a simple burglary case; but this may turn out to be a rather curious one. When Rogers told me the story of the Circle Lake affair, I recognized at once that it resembled a very famous case that took place in England in 1879."

He waited to fill and light his pipe before continuing:

"Yes, that's why I am interested in it. It's almost the same in every detail as the story you will find in that pamphlet you hold in your hand. The English case, known in criminal history as 'The Edlingham Burglary,' is famous because two innocent men were in prison for six years for a crime they did not commit. The evidence against them, the manner in which it was discovered, is almost, if not the very same as that in this affair at Circle Lake of which Rogers tells us.

"The Edlingham case goes down in the history of crime as one of the worst miscarriages of justice of which we know. There is no doubt that the police faked the evidence against the men. They spent six years in prison for a crime they knew nothing about. In that case, too, the two men were found early in the morning in the house of a local vicar. Just as Slyke and his step-daughter found someone in their house, so the vicar and his daughter discovered two men in their living room. Later the men were arrested on the outskirts of the little English village; and, as in the story that Rogers told us, a piece of paper was found in the room at the vicarage that fitted into the torn corner of a newspaper which was discovered some days later in the house of one of the men. Footprints were also found under the window, and a little piece of cloth on a rose bush. This in turn fitted into a torn place in a pair of trousers belonging to one of the men."

I uttered an exclamation of wonder, and Bartley grinned. "It is the most famous case of its kind in the history of English crime. It's odd how the evidence in this Circle Lake robbery parallels it so closely. It looks a little as if someone had read of the English crime, and tried to repeat the evidence in this one."

"And then these men may be innocent?"

"Well," replied Bartley thoughtfully, "maybe. The fact that there have been other attempts to break into Slyke's house points that way. To a student of criminal literature, the finding of an old crime re-staged is rather interesting. That is why I said I would like to look into it."

"Go into the office, will you, Pelt, and see what we have there on Slyke." Bartley had a large office, lined with tall, green filing cabinets, containing the reports of his cases and his wonderful card-index. This index contained information about almost every important person in the country, information that gave at a glance a keen insight into the character of the man whose name was on the card. It took me but a second to find the card that contained Slyke's name. When I returned to the library, Bartley asked me to read it aloud. It contained the following:

"Slyke, Robert, broker. Born Kittery, Maine. Educated in public school. In business in New Hampshire, 1879 to 1886, buying and trading cattle. Came to New York, 1886, became a broker. Made and lost several fortunes. Said to have been converted by Billy Sunday in 1913; no evidence of it. Rather eccentric, dabbled a bit in spiritualism and has been duped by several mediums. Quick tempered, with few friends. There is a question of his business honesty. Wife died 1914. One son and a step-daughter. Summer home, Circle Lake, N. Y. City home, Garden City. Was worth about $500,000, but rumored to have lost a part of this in recent years."

Bartley listened while I read this short and commonplace history.

When I had finished, he said simply, "I wonder what was in his house that the burglars wanted."

I asked the question that had been in my mind for some time. "Why was he unable to identify the men when his daughter said she could?"

Bartley smiled at my question. "You are getting wiser every day, Pelt. It is curious that Slyke professed to be unable to identify the men when the girl, who was on the steps behind him and even further away from the men than he was, could do so. It may be that he did recognize them and did not want to say who they were. If that is so, then the whole affair is more mysterious than ever."

He rose to his feet and glanced at his watch. "Tomorrow, or Sunday, we will run up to the lake. We had better drive up in my car. It will take only seven hours. I will telegraph to Currie, my old Harvard roommate, that we are coming. He has been after me for several years to come for a visit."

He walked the length of the room, and paused a moment to study attentively a Rops highly colored etching, much as if he had never seen it before. Then he turned back to the desk and said, "You had better read over that pamphlet of the Edlingham case now. The two cases are curiously similar."

As he left the room, he added with a regretful little laugh, "There goes our fishing; it's always the way."

An hour later when he returned I was still curled up in a big chair by the fireplace. I had spent the time reading the story of the old English crime. The two cases were, as Bartley had said, very much alike. I agreed with him that, if we took the ground that someone at Circle Lake had faked the evidence, then whoever he was he had read the report of this other crime and used it as a guide.

CHAPTER II

In Which We Visit Mr. Slyke, but Do Not Receive a Very Warm Reception.

It was not until early Sunday morning that we were able to leave the city. After the days of rain, the ride along the banks of the Hudson was very beautiful. At Albany we had luncheon in one of the large hotels to the accompaniment of an orchestra booming the popular music of the moment. Bartley was so thoroughly uncomfortable that he refused to speak. It was not until we were waiting for the waiter to return with our change and he had lighted a cigar that he became more amiable. He bowed to some people he knew, then leaned toward me and spoke softly so that those at the next table would not hear. "Pelt, we cannot say just what we will find up at the lake. I have thought the affair over carefully, and the more I think of it the more puzzled I am. If Rogers told us all the facts, then there are two well-defined conclusions to be drawn. The first is that those two men are innocent. The second is that Slyke knew who it was that broke into his house, but had strong reasons for claiming he could not recognize them. If his daughter could swear to the identity of the men that were arrested, he should also have been able to recognize them. But he says he did not, and we are told, he wanted the case dropped."

He paused as the waiter appeared with our change, and we went back to our car.

Saratoga was only a forty-five mile drive from Albany. Circle Lake was several miles nearer.

I knew very little about the place except that it was a small lake outside of Saratoga, where there were a number of large summer estates. Bob Currie, who had roomed with Bartley at Harvard, had a place there where he passed the greater part of the year.

About an hour and a half out of Albany, Bartley said suddenly, pointing to a small sheet of water in the distance, "That's Circle Lake."

We were on the top of a large hill at the moment, and though the lake was several miles away, it looked even smaller than I had expected. It was not more than a mile across, and was a complete circle except where a small bay broke its circumference.

"I'm sick of the whole thing. Those men had a fair trial and were found guilty. What more do you want?"

To the Honorable the Judge of the Probate Court in and for the County of Norfolk: respectfully represents FREDERICK D. KNIGHT of Weymouth, in said County, and Florence V. Knight, his wife, that they are of the age of twenty-one years or upwards, and are desirous of adopting Mervin E. Tabor, Jr. of said Weymouth, a child of Mervin E. Tabor, late of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and Lila F. Tabor, his wife, which said child was born in Pittsburgh, in the State of Pennsylvania, on the thirtieth day of May, A. D. 1917; that said Mervin E. Tabor and the said Lila F. Tabor are both deceased; that Alfred E. Haines, an uncle of said Lila F. Tabor, deceased, is the duly appointed guardian of the said Mervin E. Tabor, Jr. and assents to this petition for adoption.

Wherefore they pray for leave to adopt said child, and that his name may be changed to that of Mervin Tabor Knight.

Dated this eighth day of January, A. D. 1923.

FREDERICK D. KNIGHT
FLORENCE V. KNIGHT

The undersigned, being the guardian of said child, hereby consents to the adoption, as above prayed for.

ALFRED E. HAINES,

Too Country for Themselves.

The Picts and Scots were two warlike tribes of Celtic origin, formerly inhabiting Scotland, whose destructive inroads into southern Britain were a continual source of alarm to the inhabitants during the Fourth and Fifth centuries A. D. They were several times driven back, but after the withdrawal of the Roman forces from the island these northern barbarians renewed their incursions with increased vigor. Finally the Britons called to their assistance the Saxons, Angles and Jutes; and these Teutonic peoples after repelling the Picts and Scots finally succeeded in establishing themselves in the country which they were summoned to defend.

Diligence.

If men from their youth were weaned from that sauntering humor, wherein some, out of custom, let a good part of their life run uselessly away, without either business or recreation, they would find time enough to acquire dexterity and skill in hundreds of things, which, though remote from their proper callings, would not at all interfere with them.—Locke.

A Pertinent Query.

A small boy entered a library with a book that his mother wished exchanged. But, since she had neglected to send a list of books to choose from, the librarian was somewhat at a loss to know what book to send. Finally he asked: "Has your mother read 'Freckles'?" "No, sir," replied the boy; "they're brown."

Will Muss Up the Works.

An exchange remarks: "The motor car of today is a splendid example of scientific progress." And yet careless pedestrians are continually marring its delicate machinery with small pieces of themselves.—Boston Evening Transcript.

To Be a Means.

More happiness is in itself an insufficient aim. Devotion to some cause gives us a motive beyond this, and raises us to a means, which (in a world where there is so much to be done) is far nobler than to be an end.—James Rann.

Candlepower.

"One candlepower" means a light equivalent to that from a sperm-oil candle seven-eighths of an inch in diameter, weighing six to the pound, and burning 120 grams of wax an hour. This is a standard for testing brilliance of light.

Seemingly Nothing Doing.

Bobbie had just arrived in this country and was visiting his aunt for the first time. When bedtime came, he said goodnight formally, so his aunt asked him if he wasn't going to kiss her. He replied, "Seldom kiss grandmothers; aunts never."

Language Made by Lives.

Places sometimes take their names from prominent persons. Gibraltar is a case. The word was originally Jebel-Tarik, which means the hill of Tarik, a Moorish general who captured the rock a thousand years ago.

Important proviso.

"I see where another artist has married his model," remarked Mr. Grunpson. "Sometimes a marriage of that sort turns out well—if the artist doesn't get a new model."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Her Funny Papa.

Seeing her father shaving one morning, a little Brooklyn girl said: "Daddy, why do you wash your face with a little broom and wipe it dry with a knife?"—Boston Transcript.

Ink 3,500 Years Old.

A sample of dried black ink from an inkstand of the time of Amenhotep III, 3,500 years ago, has been analyzed. The ink contained no iron, its pigment being entirely of carbon.

Much in Choice of Literature.

Tell me what books you read when you are alone, and I will tell you which way you are moving, upward or downward.—Henry Van Dyke.

Inconstancy Contemptible.

Nothing that is not a real crime makes a man appear as contemptible and little in the eyes of the world as inconstancy.

Cats Foretell Earthquakes.

In the earthquake countries, the cats are said to show signs of uneasiness for days before the actual disturbance.

More Culture Not Enough.

Culture merely for culture's sake can never be anything but a sapless root, capable of producing at best a shriveled branch.—J. W. Cross.

Defective Eyesight Common.

It is estimated that one-quarter of American school children suffer from defective eyesight.

Dates From Middle Ages.

J. Gobelin founded the famous tapestry and carpet manufactory at Paris in 1515.

Superstitious Engineers.

Many locomotive engineers regard it as unlucky to enter the cab with the left foot first.

Essentials of Life.

Be true to your word and your work and your friend.—O'Reilly.

Exemplary.

Even cider teaches us a lesson by its willingness to work.

PYTHIAN SISTERS

Monday night was a red letter night with the members of Delphi Temple, Pythian Sisters, it being the occasion of the installation of the recently elected officers. The installing officer was Deputy Grand Chief Emma C. Perkins, assisted by the following members of her suite: Grand Senior, Blanche Safford; Grand Manager, Minnie Proctor, and Grand Mistress of Records and Correspondence, Nellie Chase. The officers installed were as follows:

Post Chief—Julia Hollis

Most Excellent Chief—Drusilla Davis

Excellent Senior—Mabel Tisdale

Excellent Junior—Elsie Nelson

Manager—Bertha Gifford

Protector—Mabel Hollis

Outer Guard—Lillian Gross

Mistress of Records and Correspondence—Helen Pray

Mistress of Finance—Bertha Tisdale

The members of the lodge presented retiring Most Excellent Chief Julia Hollis a cut-glass vase. She also received gifts of flowers and a string of pearls. The outgoing mistress of records and correspondence was presented a past chief's pin. At the close refreshments were served by a committee of which Minnie Aiken was the chairman. As the installation was in progress the hall was suddenly filled with thick smoke and all were obliged to make a hasty exit to the street. Investigation showed that someone had carelessly thrown a lighted cigarette into a barrel of rubbish in one of the ante rooms.

DEATH OF SISTERS

Miss Rebecca Seeley died at her home on Common street Sunday afternoon of pneumonia following a few days illness of the grippe. The funeral was held Tuesday from the Church of the Sacred Heart and as the mourners returned from the cemetery her sister, Miss Annie Seeley, died of the same disease. Their brother Richard Seeley, the only surviving member of the family, is also dangerously ill with the disease, but is expected to recover. He has the sympathy of everybody in his great affliction. Both of the ladies were most estimable women and were born and had always lived in Weymouth.

VESPER QUARTET

Last Sunday evening a large congregation assembled to hear the Vespers Quartet at the First M. E. church, East Weymouth. The Vespers Quartet is made up of Negro singers and they rendered music on the highest type. Their program consisted of spirituals, and many of the old sacred songs. It was a great disappointment that Mr. Boatner, the baritone, was detained, but the other members more than made up for his absence by their special numbers. Mrs. Ethel H. Smith, the soprano rendered "Largo" in a very pleasing manner, while Miss Katherine E. Pipes, contralto, sang "My Redeemer and My Lord" as well as several other selections which were greatly appreciated. Harry Delmore, tenor, rendered "Open the Gates" in a way which held his audience. The accompanist was J. H. Barclay. The sermon of the evening was preached by Rev. Stanley E. Grannum, preacher to the colored congregation of Morgan Memorial, and his message certainly struck the keynote of the times and left a message with every individual present. Such services as these help to uplift the spiritual life of the community.

A. O. H. INSTALLATION

The officers of Div. 6, A. O. H., were installed at Pythian hall Sunday afternoon by State Vice President Dennis J. Slattery, assisted by County President Daniel Slattery of Norwood and County Secretary Timothy F. Sullivan of Quincy. The officers installed were:

President—Thomas F. Hayes

Vice-president—John Brady

Recording secretary—Ralph Dowd

Financial secretary—Paul Slattery

Treasurer—William Burns

Sergeant-at-arms—William B. Trask

Chairman of Standing Committee—Mark J. Garrity

A banquet, speech-making, and entertainment followed the installation. Dennis Slattery was toastmaster, and the speakers were Daniel Slattery of Norwood, Mr. Burke, and Mr. O'Brien of Hyde Park. The banquet was served by the members of the Ladies Auxiliary. The entertainment included selections by the Hibernian orchestra; vocal selections by Milton Richmond and Leah Dalton; readings by Eleanor Donovan.

OLD COLONY INSTITUTE

The fourth meeting of the Third Annual Old Colony Institute was held in the vestry of the First M. E. church Monday evening. Mrs. Earl E. Story was chairman of the supper committee assisted by Mrs. W. E. Ames, Mrs. Charles H. Chubbuck, Mrs. Frank Channel, Mrs. W. A. Hodges, Miss Mary Marden, and Miss Helen Preston. The dean, Harold Kilder of Hanover was in charge of the program. Evening watch was presided over by Rev. Claude DeWitt of East Braintree, who sounded the note of evangelism in the work of today. The speaker of the evening was Prof. W. A. Haven of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who spoke on the subject "Be Big" or making the most of our lives in every way. The regular classes were held under the various instructors and at the close of these sessions a novelty performance was very much enjoyed with vocal selections and tamborine numbers by the Christianson brothers of East Braintree accompanied by their sister. A social hour was enjoyed and the evening closed, being agreed the best yet.

ILL BUT A FEW DAYS

Sylvanus B. Richmond, a well known citizen, died at his home on Washington Square Sunday of pneumonia following an attack of the grippe. He had been ill but a few days. For years he was a clerk at the store of E. W. Hunt & Son. He was for years connected with the police and fire departments, also a member of Delphi lodge, Knights of Pythias. He leaves his wife, a son William Richmond, and a daughter, Mrs. Robert Gay. He was born and always lived in Weymouth, being a son of the late William Richmond. The funeral took place from the First Universalist church Wednesday afternoon. Rev. James L. Dowson officiated. A large delegation attended from Delphi lodge. Burial was at Village cemetery.

Hard Road for Ruined Man.

It is not poverty so much as pretense that harasses a ruined man—the struggle between a proud mind and an empty purse—the keeping up a hollow show that must soon come to an end.

THREE-FLAT HOUSE GOOD INVESTMENT

Provides Home for Owner and Additional Income.

RENT WILL HELP PAY FOR IT

It is a Three-Flat Home With the Appearance of a Regular Private Residence—Has Many Good Features.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD
The home shown in the accompanying photograph is a new and ingenious income property that is gaining in popularity among home builders in every section of the country.

It is a combination residence and apartment building and is so designed that in addition to providing the owner a home of his own, it brings him in an additional income.

This beautiful structure, therefore, will particularly appeal to the man desiring a home for his family, but because of his financial circumstances feels the property must also produce an additional revenue to take care of the interest on his investment or assist him in meeting some other ob-three-room apartments with private baths. The home is designed so that another story could be built on without destroying its attractiveness. This would provide a six-room apartment on the first floor and four three-room flats instead of two.

The two three-room flats will bring in more rent than if the entire floor was rented as a six-room apartment. Three rooms is the popular size of small flats today in nearly all modern hotel-apartment buildings. They are also much easier to take care of and not so costly to furnish. Numerous space-saving devices may be installed that will provide nearly all the conveniences and advantages of larger quarters.

From the spacious and inviting front porch one enters a hall where the steps leading upstairs are located. The first entrance at the left opens into the large living room, which is 17 by 11 feet. Directly ahead is the dining room, which joins the kitchen.

ligations. It is designed with that idea in view and is an excellent investment.

In building a home of this type the owner need pay down only an initial investment. He can pay off the remaining indebtedness in regular payments from the rent he receives.

It is a three-flat home with the appearance of a regular private residence. This overcomes one of the most frequent objections to building a double house.

This particular style also has another advantage over the ordinary double or duplex house. By converting the second and third floor—if there is one—into three-room apartments it increases the earning capacity of the property considerably more than building a regular duplex.

In this arrangement one flat, consisting of six rooms—three of them bedrooms—and bath, occupies the first floor. This is ideally suited for the owner and his family, as the rooms are all large and comfortable with excellent light and ventilation. As can be seen from the floor plan this arrangement does not interfere with the privacy of any of the apartments.

On the second floor, are the two

To the right of the kitchen is a roomy pantry.

The other side of the first floor is occupied by the three bedrooms and bath. Each bedroom is equipped with a modern space-saving closet.

The stairs lead onto another hall on the second floor. Both apartments have a living room, dining room, kitchen and private bath. In the dining room and living room of each flat are bed closets containing disappearing beds of the type found in high-priced apartment hotels today. These beds are quickly and easily taken down at night, providing two beds for each apartment. During the day, since they are out of sight, the space that beds ordinarily occupy may be used for some other purpose. The floor plan indicates where the beds are located.

The two baths are located at the rear of the floor. In the hall near the bathroom doors are located the two scuttles to the attic, which is lighted by the windows of the two dormers.

The kitchens have an entrance opening onto a large back porch with steps leading to the ground.

Both flats open onto the common hallway which leads to the balcony.

SPITEFUL SPIDER.

His name was Spiteful Spider and he had just arrived at the zoo.

All the other creatures spoke to him, but Spiteful Spider wound himself up into a ball-like shape and would say nothing at all.

The zoo creatures wanted to hear Spiteful Spider's story. They wanted to know from where he had come and what were his ways, and whether he liked zoo life better than freedom, or both about the same.

Spiteful Spider had been in the zoo for several days. He had eaten, but he had not told his story. At last the creatures said to him:

"You might just as well tell us now, for we'll not be happy until we know it."

"You won't be happy after you know it," said Spiteful Spider at last.

"Is it such an unhappy story?" asked the others.

"I don't know that it is an unhappy story, but it doesn't seem to be a story that people like much. I heard the keeper telling my story to some one the other day, and I could see the person didn't think it was a very happy or a very pleasant story or a very jolly story."

"Well," the others said, "we would like to judge for ourselves. We would like to hear it in any case."

"Oh, very well," said Spiteful Spider. "I suppose, as you say, I may as well tell it now and be through with it. I'm sure it will not be the kind of a story that you will want to hear again and again."

"I've heard that some stories could be told over and over again, and that they were loved all the better, stories about birds, and dogs, and horses, stories about fairies, and brownies, and elves."

"But not my story! However, no one asked me to tell it again and again."

"I was only asked to tell it once, and so I'll do so."

Spiteful Spider gazed at himself for a moment.

"Take a look at me, Creatures," he said.

They looked at Spiteful Spider and saw that he had eight legs. His spidery body was covered with bristles, and when he opened his mouth for the creatures to see they noticed that he had hollow teeth.

"Now I shall tell you what I do with all these things," said Spiteful Spider.

"In the first place, my real name is Avicularia. I'm a spider. Spiteful Spider is a name I've been given."

"We Would Like to Hear It."

Perhaps you would call it a pet name. Perhaps you would not.

"My home was in Eastern Bolivia, which is in South America."

"Now you know most spiders eat harmful insects and do a good deal of valuable work."

"But I eat other creatures besides insects. I eat young birds."

"My skin is horrible—it will hurt creatures. My hollow teeth contain a poison which will kill creatures larger than I am."

"I live, or rather I lived, in a hollow tree and rested during the daytime."

"All night I would prowel forth and take young birds from their nests."

"Such is my story. I cannot do that any more. People are fond of birds, and those who have heard my story do not think I am nice."

"Well," said one of the creatures in the zoo, "you said your story was not a happy one, but I think it is."

"You do?" asked Spiteful Spider in surprise.

"Yes," said the creature, "I do."

"How strange," remarked Spiteful Spider.

"Not really strange," said the creature. "I think your story is a happy one, or rather that it has a happy ending, because you're here in the zoo to be looked upon as a curiosity, but you cannot go hunting for young birds."

"Yes, your cruelties are over with now, and I think the ending of your tale is as happy as happy can be, Spiteful Spider. That's what I think."

And the other creatures in the zoo said:

"We think so, too."

Natural Preference.

It seemed a curious question to little Harry when his uncle asked:

"What part of the chicken do you prefer, my little man?"

"I like the meat," said Harry, as he passed his plate timidly.

Semi-Annual

Sale
Suits & O'coats

THE interesting feature of this Sale are not the low prices, but the high qualities these low prices will buy. The good dresser knows that clothes satisfaction is worth more than it costs; only it costs less than usual right now!

HERE are Suits and Overcoats that are just the same—always—mid-season or mid-sale. Everything about them shows superiority, except price—but with reductions in effect they are much lower than the rest. And much lower, let us add, than Clothing promises to be when Spring comes around. Hence it behooves every man and young man to look to his future needs while these prices prevail.

NEED COOPERATION

Editor Gazette-Transcript:

As weeks go by, your paper grows more and more interesting, but when your columns were opened so kindly as to Weymouth's needs, I expected there would be so many ready to tell of these needs that there would be so many ready to tell of these needs that there would hardly be room for the social items. Instead of that there is nothing to be said. Is it possible that Weymouth is in a perfect condition? If so I am glad for there is nothing the writer is more interested in than the progress of our historic town.

We have had some winter during this month of January, and our Superintendent of Streets with his aides have taken wonderful care of our streets, and are certainly entitled to much credit for same.

The new Gem Theatre at the Landing is a great success, and although there has not been but one pleasant evening when there has been an entertainment there, that it has been pleasant, still there are full houses it seems as if people were glad of a place to go in such unpleasant weather, and forget it in looking at the wonderful lecture we see there.

It soon will be February, we hope our ice men will get plenty of ice for us to use next summer, for before we know it the spring and summer will be with us, and we will then have forgotten all about this winter of snow and ice.

What a wonderful thing it is to forget. It would be good if we could only forget all the trials and sorrows that come into our lives, but some stay by us no matter how hard we may try to forget.

One thing we always need in our town is the spirit of cooperation. Let us all try to make our town a model town; to work for each other's interest; to clean up our back yards and each do what they can to promote the interest of our old historic town, the second to be settled, Plymouth being first.
